FCC QUARTERTLY REPORT
4th Quarter, 2007
October 1, 2006 – December 31, 2007

The following are among the community issues to which KTLA has given significant treatment to during the calendar period identified above:

I. Consumer / Economy
II. Crime
III. Education
IV. Government/Politics
V. Health
VI. Minority Relations
VII. Urban Concerns
VIII. Employment/Unemployment
IX. Human Resources
X. Ecology

CONSUMER / ECONOMY / INFLATION

This continuing problem includes, but is not limited to, high interest rates, high rate of poverty among minorities and women who are heads of households, hunger, the homeless, federal state and local government spending, and the need for consumer education.

CRIME / CIVIL JUSTICE

This area of concern includes, among other things, an increase in youth delinquency, vandalism, proliferation of drugs, domestic and child abuse, use of neighborhood watch programs, court reform and judicious sentencing, senior citizen crime rate, and need for adequate and secure prison and county facilities. There are too many crimes committed against seniors and problems with prostitution. There is gang violence and hate crimes against the homosexual community as well.

EDUCATION

This issue includes, more teacher/parent involvement, art of motivation, young people need training in school readiness and work habits, funding cutbacks, effective use of funding, declining quality of education, issues concerning teacher, provision of relevant education for people of color, attitudes of teachers toward minority students. Minority youth feel disenfranchised by the system and the importance of reading classes.

GOVERNMENT / POLITICS

Problems in this area include, but are not limited to, cynicism and the need for elected officials and the community to work together to solve problems; inadequate political representation; threats to cut funding for health; education and social services programs; lack of Mexican-Americans in elected or appointed offices; absentee ballots; costly programs and registration of voters...verification of forms. Los Angeles City & County government lack direction and funds.

HEALTH / RECREATION

Concerns in this area include, among other things, the high cost of health care, funding cuts for health and recreation programs, and health care needs of the elderly. Drug abuse is a problem among the youth, more federal involvement, too much drug abuse in the community, schools and military bases, and more drug education programs. Including aids education, prevention and costs. County of Los Angeles health system lacks necessary funding.

MINORITY RELATIONS

The continuing concerns in this area include, but are not limited to, raising bigotry and racism often manifesting in violent acts; adequate political representations of people of color; stereotypical images; preservation of cultures; needs of minority women; and issues resulting in rise of minority populations. Additional problems include; too many liquor stores in black communities; building a better family involvement; need for more role models; need to integrate various ethnic cultures into the arts. Hispanic community lacks access to legal resources due to language barriers, economic barriers and inherent institutional racism; minority youth being disenfranchised from education system and from working world. Regarding media: news, coverage, employment, on screen image. Conflict resolution concerns between racial and ethnic communities.

URBAN CONCERNS

Problems in this area include: too many homeless people, the need for an efficient public transportation system, congested traffic systems, need for affordable housing, zoning problems resulting from to many homeless people, the need for affordable rental units and racial discrimination is still prevalent, gang problems.

EMPLOYMENT / UNEMPLOYMENT

This continuing area of concern include, but is not limited to, high minority and youth unemployment; need for apprenticeship programs; affirmative action and training programs for women and minorities; government funding cutbacks for training programs; employee lack of motivation; shutting down of major industries and the issues concerned with pay equity. Young people lack good grooming, maturity and dedication to hold jobs and minority youth feel disenfranchised.

HUMAN RESOURCES

This area includes but is not limited to, equal pay for women and the need for more shelters, needs of youth; including latch-key children; equal rights; women's reproductive rights; emergency housing for battered women and children; needs of single family households; and family relations.

ENVIRONMENT / ECOLOGY / ENERGY

Problems in this area include, but are not limited to, proper disposal of industrial waste. Santa Monica bay/ocean must be cleaned. Other issues include air pollution; legislation concerning pollution and toxic waste; cost of energy and other utilities; health problems resulting from bad air quality; extinction of rare species; and the need for the creation of desert parks. The need for more educational programs based on water conservation, minority and neighborhood environmental programs, and active youth participation in environmental programs and issues.

determined to make more of her life. She began taking night courses in college and landed herself a job at an insurance company. She then started her own insurance policy and investment business with her husband Jimmy Rideau after they were married. That was when she first appeared on Making It! in 1989 as the head of IC Rideau Securities, Inc. She remained at her company and was planning for her eventual retirement. But as she approached that point, she realized she did not want to live the rest of her life unproductively. This inspired her to form RIDEAU VINEYARD in California.

However, this idea did not come to her immediately. She had originally considered opening an inn or restaurant. But when the county of Santa Barbara denied both ideas, she turned her attention to winemaking. She received a golden opportunity when she met a winemaker who had just left a renowned winery. He was in need of a new facility and Iris, who was seeking a winemaker for her business, agreed to build a winery for the both of them in exchange for his services. She enjoyed a great deal of success in her new venture but had to endure some difficult times. Her most devastating experience as an entrepreneur happened three years ago, when a careless winemaker cost her 50% of her wine inventory due to contamination. The catastrophe nearly drove her to exit her business, but Iris chose to persist and eventually replaced her losses in two years. She learned a valuable lesson from the incident and has since taken a more hands-on approach to ensure high quality of her products. Rideau Vineyard is projected to make $2.5 million at the end of 2005. Iris is most proud of the fact that she is able to use her resources to provide for her family. Recently, she has donated food, clothing and money to her family members in New Orleans in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

Secrets of Success, Rev. Mark Whitlock (markw@corchurch.org) of Nehemiah Corporation outlines the steps to take in rebounding after business setback.

Studio Guest(s): President of The Blackson Group, Kute Blackson (818-990-0231), who shares insight on how to create a business from a personal passion.

RIPE FOR SUCCESS

GUEST IRIS RIDEAU – RIDEAU VINEYARD,

Iris Rideau (805-688-0717; www.rideauvineyard.com) was 12 years old when her grandmother first introduced her to table etiquette and fine wine appreciation. Her childhood passion would ignite her entrepreneurial spirit decades later, but not before she took a few turns personally and professionally. When Iris became a teenage mother, she had to work at a sewing factory to support herself and her child. However, she was determined to make more of her life. She began taking night courses in college and landed herself a job at an insurance company. She then started her own insurance policy and investment business with her husband Jimmy Rideau after they were married. That was when she first appeared on Making It! in 1989 as the head of IC Rideau Securities, Inc. She remained at her company and was planning for her eventual retirement. But as she approached that point, she realized she did not want to live the rest of her life unproductively. This inspired her to form RIDEAU VINEYARD in California.

PARTNERSHIPS FOR PROFIT

GUESTS: GENO TAYLOR AND DANNY RODRIGUEZ (BELLAVIC ENTERTAINMENT), JIM KELLY (JIM KELLY DESIGNER APPAREL)

Geno Taylor (www.bellavic.com) was a successful salesman of both wine and pharmaceuticals. However, he longed to have a place in the entertainment industry.

Geno seized the opportunity to pursue his dream when he met Mykal Wilson, an actor and independent film producer. The two formed a partnership and produced a film called "The Gristle." To fund the movie, Geno applied for an SBA Loan by using his house as collateral. His efforts paid off and he was approved for $250,000. This was unusual because at the time, the SBA was not accustomed to allocating funds to businesses in the entertainment industry. He then met Danny Rodriguez through a mutual friend and formed BELLAVIC ENTERTAINMENT. The company was an effective blend of Geno's salesmanship and Danny's production skills. The two also understand the importance of establishing strong relations with outside alliances. They have secured deals with Kendrick Group and Lightyear/Warner Video, which enables their films to be theatrically released, and then stocked in home video stores. Currently, Geno and Danny are marketing their latest feature called "The Devil Inside," and their company continues to assist other filmmakers in financing, producing, and distributing their works.

Jim Kelly (www.jim-jk-kelly.com) had an idea of creating bracelets that can be worn as cufflinks. In 1997, he brought his invention to life when he started his company JIM KELLY DESIGNER APPAREL. Unfortunately, he had to learn about the darker side of business fairly early. Jim worked with a manufacturer that cheated him by producing his BraceLinks with aluminum instead of the designated metals, like gold and platinum, which was more valuable. This did not discourage him and he continued to grow his business with the money he had earned as an actor and personal trainer. However, he sought outside assistance when his own funds were nearly depleted. He received financial support and gained a business partner when he met Bob Shulman of Lucasini. Bob was so impressed by BraceLinks that he agreed to license, manufacture, distribute, and sell them. Jim earns royalty from the sales and handles PR and marketing for the product line. In 2004, Jim Kelly Designer Apparel sold 50,000 shirts and BraceLinks. Currently, Jim is working with another partner Kevin Roberts and he hopes the new alliance will help take his company to new heights in the fashion industry.

In Secrets of Success, Rev. Mark Whitlock (markw@corchurch.org) of Nehemiah Corporation gives advice on how to proactively seek financial solutions for your business.

The studio guest is Olivia Fox Cabane (info@spitfireteam.com), Executive Director of Spitfire Communications, who shares insight on how to form strategic alliances.

BEST OF....RIDING THE WAVE OF SUCCESS

GUESTS: WING LAM, ED LEE AND MINGO LEE - (WAHOOS FISH TACOS), JUAN M. OROZSCO (U.S TOOLING & SPAS INC)

Have you ever felt the need to follow your own destiny? Well Wing Lam, Ed Lee and Mingo Lee, the creative and business forces behind WAHOOS FISH TACOS decided to do just that. The three brothers were born in Brazil to Chinese immigrants who fled communist China in 1951. The family eventually moved to Southern California and opened a Chinese restaurant. Although raised in the family business they fell in love with the surfing lifestyle. Wing Lam came up with the idea of selling fish tacos in a surfing interior design setting. With $30,000 he borrowed from his dad, he set up shop in Orange County in 1998. Creating their own wave of success they now have 23 locations in Southern California and Colorado, over 350 employees and grosses over $20 million.

Juan M. Orozco (909-923-5521) came to this country at the age of 20 with the hope of bettering his life after being raised as a farmer in Mexico. That he did – he became a multimillionaire! After years of making spas for another company, he decided to start his own business, U.S. TOOLING & SPAS, INC. Utilizing $12,000 from the only people that wanted to invest - his family, Juan set-up shop in his home garage. Today, with over 55 employees and operating from a 38,000 thousand square feet facility, U.S. Tooling & Spas, Inc. grosses over 5 million dollars yearly. The spas are sold nationally and internationally in places as far away as Norway, the Netherlands, and Israel.

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS (BOEING DEDICATED)

GUESTS: RAFATH ALI (KEMCO MANUFACTURING), CHARLESS WOO (CEO OF MEGATOYS), RICHARD KING (CHAIRMAN/FOUNDER OF KING INTERNATIONAL GROUP)

In 1992, Rafath Ali (www.ingeneum.com) seized the opportunity to acquire KEMCO MANUFACTURING, a machine and tool supplier that was founded in 1955. During Kemco's 50th year in business, he decided to diversify and rebrand the company. He asked his son-in-law Haider Nazar to join Kemco. Together, Rafath and Haider sought to provide engineering solutions for new programs in addition to software development. This led them to create new segment of their business under the new brand: INGENIUM, which means "power of mind" in Latin. To help support their new services, they acquired a call center in India to better serve their clients. The Missouri-based company has served high profiled clients like The Boeing Company and hopes to continue its international expansion by cultivating relationships with new customers.

Two global business experts talk about strategies of taking businesses out of the country. Charles Woo (charlie@megatoys.com) is the CEO of MEGATOYS, an international toy importer and exporter with offices in China, Hong Kong, and Los Angeles. He has found success by developing relationships with local and international trade organizations and financial institutions. Charles stays connected with international branches through the internet. Most importantly, he believes that companies need to successfully deal with cultural differences in order to flourish in the global market. Richard King is the chairman and founder of KING INTERNATIONAL GROUP, which has 35 years experience in international business consulting. Richard emphasizes the importance of establishing trust with one's clients. To accomplish this, he believes conducting face-to-face meetings is a must.

TOPIC: Greater Los Angeles economy

GUESTS: DAVID OFFENBERG, PH.D, Assistant Professor of Economics, Loyola Marymount University, JOEL KOTKIN, Author and Presidential Fellow, Roger C. Hobbs Institute, Chapman University, HOWARD FINE, Staff Reporter, Los Angeles Business Journal (by phone)

DISCUSSION: The housing crisis took front stage in the conversation. Each guest discussed from his respective position how the housing crisis would affect the Los Angeles economy. The lenders, homeowners and the construction industry will suffer. Already banks and mortgage companies have had to lay off employees. The construction industry will be hit hard if homes are not being built. Government coffers will have less revenue meaning the government services will be curtailed. There is concerned that the manufacturing industry is diminishing and jobs are leaving the country. Other topics included: the pros and cons of the "Manhattenization " of downtown Los Angeles, the Euro verses the American dollar and the lessening of the purchasing power of the middle-class.

BUILDING ON THE BASICS

Growing up,Vincent Nardolillo (888-2-REBORN) learned cabinet refacing skills helping out after school at his brother's woodworking shop. As an adult, he continued to make use of his craft working as a carpenter in his hometown of New York. When Vinny moved to California, he tried to convince his employer of the profitability in cabinet refacing. However, because the concept was relatively new to the West Coast, his idea received little support. At that point, Vincent decided to open his own business with his wife and created REBORN CABINETS in 1983. To support her husband, Brenda took accounting classes and became the office manager at their company. In the years that ensued, Reborn Cabinets grew significantly with help from Yellow Pages advertising and exhibitions in home shows. Today, the business employs 140 people in its 9,000-square-foot warehouse and grosses $13 million annually. The Nardolillos children have also joined the team. Vincent, Jr. is in charge of marketing while his brother Anthony manages production and in-home installation.

Maxwell Lee is the owner of ADENNA, INC., a manufacturer and distributor of latex rubber gloves. It currently supplies 1 billion gloves throughout the United States as well as to Mexico and Canada. He came upon the idea after speaking to relatives in Asia who were looking to push their products to America. Maxwell saw the potential but was unfamiliar with rubber gloves and had little money to create a business. Nonetheless, he decided to take the risk and used his savings as capital. His instincts were correct. His idea turned into a successful venture and was named one of Inc. 500's fastest growing companies in 2004. Maxwell continues to innovate by reinvesting his profits into research and development. Adenna is creating a new glove called "Miracle," which contains vitamins and herbal extracts for moisturizing and comfort. Maxwell is also working to expand his company by establishing a joint venture in China.

HOMEGROWN

Raised in L.A., Gwen Crews (JUNIORVERSITY) grew up in a close knit family filled with happy childhood memories. Her adult life had its share of ebbs and flows, such as when her first husband was killed in an auto accident. Her magical childhood memories, however, inspired her nonetheless to launch her 1994 home-based childcare business, "Little Lambs" with current husband Bobby Crews. As business expanded, so did her vision for a learning and development center when she and Bobby Crews saw a vacant warehouse near a freeway for sale in late 2001. Three and a half years later, a full service, multicultural child development center for infants through pre-teens manifested as Juniorversity! Juniorversity also provides scholastic education, parental training and a host of other skills pertinent to healthy childhood development. The center is currently licensed for enrollment of 96 students and is looking forward to expansion.

Josephina De La Cruz (CPA, INC.) was only 23 years old when she came to America from the Philippines on a student visa. Although she remained legally in the U.S for some time because of political turmoil in the Phillipines, she used her time productively and eventually became a full time CPA in Los Angeles and Beverly Hills. Her luck seemed to change when her youngest daughter fell ill and forced her to take a pay cut. To combat the cutback, she began bookkeeping out of her home for friends' businesses after hours. She then made the life-altering decision to quit her job and open her own practice, CPA, INC. 300 clients later, the 25-year-old consulting firm is devoted to small business development, offering a range of financial services.

Despite the business of her success, Josephina De La Cruz has still managed to invest in her community. As one of the founding board directors of the Filipino American Chamber of Commerce of Orange County, she was also their first woman elected President and their only president to be elected two terms.

With a business motto of "your success is our success," CPA, INC. looks forward to another 25 years of helping small and medium-sized business grow and succeed.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS Bonique Edwards (www.kconsultinggroup.com) owns and operates Kaleidoscope Consulting Group (KCG), a marketing group focused on providing web development and graphic design services for small to medium-sized businesses. She shares valuable tools needed to creating a great homepage, personalizing business emails and the do's and don'ts of flashy technology.

FINE TUNING FOR CUSTOMER SERVICE

Phenoyd Ezra (818-901-1521) was ten years old when he developed a fascination for the art of restoring pianos. At age 13, he followed his passion by working in the family's refurbishing business. There, he learned a great deal about time-efficient techniques but wanted to shift the focus to better customer service. This led him to open his own finishing company, CLASSIC WOODS BY PHENOYD in Van Nuys, California. However, he had to face rejection from many banks before finally getting financed. He endured another hardship when a tragic fire destroyed many of his customers' valuable pianos. Amazingly, Phenoyd was able to continue growing his company despite these losses. Because he was fully insured he was able to pay everyone for the full value of their pianos. He remains committed to craftsmanship and this helps him attract customers from as far away as Seattle and Utah. Classic Woods by Phenoyd is expected to gross over $400,000 in 2005.

Jake Yu and David Choi (www.globalpronex.com) were looking to start a business in an industry that traditionally lacked customer satisfaction. Jake was a business owner and David was an experienced professor at a university. They hoped that their combined expertise would enable them to serve their clients better than the businesses currently servicing them. They began their venture into the teller machines business when a friend introduced them to GLOBAL PRONEX, INC. However, they soon learned that financing the business was not easy. The additional ATM machines were costly to obtain and they had to keep them filled with cash. Their solution came in the way of Angel Investors and bank loans. Nonetheless, Jake and David maintain their business model by going the extra mile for their customers. They also monitor their machines online so they can quickly respond to problems. As a result, Jake and David have built a solid customer base through referrals. They are currently negotiating with a bank to further finance business growth.

In Secrets of Success, Duane Knapp (dknapp@brandstrategy.com) of Brand Strategy, Inc. talks about four ways to enhance customer service and increase your business.

The studio guest is speaker and business consultant Dr. Marissa Pei (562-596-9053).

GROWTH IS THE GOAL

The beginning stages of business can be very difficult and challenging, unless it has a spark and a determined person to drive it. For Linda Young, (Tailor Baskets, Inc) the spark ignited from a desire to create a gift basket industry for personal and business needs. It took form in a Newport garage in October of 2007 with a gloomy beginning. When good sales people were hard to come by, Linda's sister left her well-paying job to help the fragile business. Seven years later, however, the Newport Beach garage expanded to a 5,000 square foot warehouse that makes over $1 million annually. Business ethics such as effective cost and outstanding customer service are some of the key forces that drive the business. With clients in prestigious markets such as the real estate and lending industry, Tailor Baskets, Inc. looks to further expand in both gift baskets and full-service event planning.

The American Dream seemed miles away for Jesse Mendoza, Sr. who worked for a sporting goods store in Mexico. When he finally came to the U.S in the late 1960's, he never imagined the job he left in Mexico was actually a puzzle piece to the American Dream. After 15 years as a supermarket employee, the other puzzle pieces presented themselves to him at sporting goods expo that inspired him to open his own business in 1988 with son, Jesse Mendoza, Jr., who became co-owner in 1996. The initially 700 square foot space nearly quadrupled in size to a 2400 square foot shop with three locations. Their competitive prices, ability to be service oriented and specialization in products from named vendors will allow their American Dream to live on.

BANKING ON IT (COMERICA DEDICATED)

Gabriel Garcia (323-636-0156) was a teenager with only five years of education when he moved from Mexico to California. But a chance encounter at a coffee shop changed his life. It was there that he met Samuel Kimmel, the owner of a recycling plant who gave him a job. While working there, Gabriel learned English and much about the recycling business. He knew so much about it that when Samuel died, Gabriel was asked to run the business. He accepted and did so for nine years. Then Gabriel wanted to buy out the Kimmels' business but was rejected. That was when he decided to start his own company, which would become LU MAR INDUSTRIAL METALS, INC. With the help of Comerica Bank, he was able to attain the acres of land he needed for his operations. In addition, Gabriel's plant is advantageously located in the middle of Los Angeles. This allows him to easily access material from other parts of the city. Lu Mar Industrial Metals, Inc. ships recycled metal throughout the United States and overseas. Its clients range from computer manufacturers to restaurants like the Cheesecake Factory. Currently, Lu Mar Industrial Metals, Inc. is worth close to $30 million.

Ezekiel Patten (310-665-9100) has always admired smaller and more responsive companies. That is why he chose to work as a marketer for a small oil firm that sold to the Panama Canal. When his position there ended, he started PATTEN ENERGY ENTERPRISES, INC. in 1990. There, Ezekiel continued doing what he did best—buying gasoline and lubricants from large oil suppliers and reselling to various companies and the government. However, Ezekiel faced the difficulty of obtaining capital to start his business. He had to use his credit cards to gain a combined credit line of $80,000. Fortunately, he received financing from Comerica Bank as his business grew. In 2004, Patten Energy Enterprises, Inc. grossed $13 million and is continuing to climb. Even so, Ezekiel's company still faces a relatively thin profit margin due to high costs. He is hoping to lower his expenses by eventually purchasing his own oil refinery.

In Secrets of Success, author and attorney Cliff Ennico (www.cliffennico.com) talks about how to effectively ask people for money to start a business.

The studio guest is Don Kincey (213-484-3782), Vice President of Community Business Banking of Comerica Bank.

LET THE CUSTOMER BE YOUR GUIDE

Janice Brown initially began her corporate career as part of a large law firm. She decided she wanted to work in a less competitive atmosphere that promoted a collaborative effort to achieve common objectives, so she started her own law firm, BROWN LAW GROUP. The company consists of trial lawyers whose focus is preventative law. They work with larger companies to try to spot problems before they occur. They find and correct potential problem areas before a lawsuit is filed. Janice expresses thanks to Mary Woods, who was in house council with San Diego Gas and Electric (SDGE), a division of Sempra Energy. Janice asked Mary for SDGE's business before Janice even knew how to do it, but Mary and SDGE were supportive of Brown Law Group. Today, they have a symbiotic relationship in which they help each other with whatever legal problems they come across.

Robert Zamarippa was working for a large electrical distribution company until he became unhappy with the new management and left the company. In 1983, he decided to start his own electrical distribution company, ONE SOURCE DISTRIBUTORS. He funded the company by himself with the help of his business partner, his father, and local bank. He initially began by supplying electrical parts, but at a customer's request, Robert began an assembly and manufacturing division. One Source Distributors became involved with Sempra Energy through the San Diego Gas and Electric division. He credits San Diego Gas and Electric for pushing the company out of its comfort zone so that it could develop further. The Southern California Gas Group (SCGG) is another part of Sempra Energy that has been strategically important for One Source Distributors because SCGG consumes a lot of the company's electrical products.

In Secrets of Success, Stephanie Palmer of Good in a Room (www.goodinaroom.com) talks about creating a verbal teaser to introduce an idea. The teaser should engage the audience, clarify the idea, and leave the audience wanting to know more.

Studio Guest Frank Urtasan is the director of diverse business enterprises at San Diego Gas and Electric. He discusses the supplier diversity program, which opens opportunities for minority- and women-owned businesses and helps them develop.

GUESTS: KARL KANI (LIVE LIFE LOVE DENIM), CALLEEN CORDERO (CALLEEN CORDERO DESIGNS, INC)

INSOURCING: QUALITY AND STYLE

Karl Kani (323-466-3779) got his start in the Brooklyn projects, peddling logo-emblazoned tees and baggy linen suits sewn by his father's tailor. In 1999, he developed a business plan with his accountants to start his own urban sportswear company, Karl Kani, which currently has revenues of $65 million worldwide. He left the urban market to start a contemporary denim line, LIVE LIFE LOVE DENIM. He connected with Fame Church in Los Angeles, which has an investment fund to help local businesses. With the church's help, he raised enough money to develop the contemporary denim line. He embraces the challenge of following trends and takes care to not saturate the market so that his jeans are always in demand. His jeans are made from Japanese denim and are produced entirely in California so that he can control the product quality. His celebrity clientele includes Mischa Barton, Jessica Simpson, and Ashlee Simpson. He hopes to triple his revenues as he distributes his denim line to major department stores.

Calleen Cordero (818-764-0715) began working at age fifteen in a high-end boutique in northern California, igniting her passion for footwear. By age sixteen, she was traveling to Europe, working full time as a buyer. She moved to marketing and sales, helping to create markets for well-known American designers. There was no southern California infrastructure for shoe making, but Calleen strove to realize her passion. She began working in her windowless basement and to finance her work, she took a $5,000 loan, took in boarders, sold her cars, and refinanced her house. Her creations are now all handmade in her factory in North Hollywood, California. She purchases her leather in Italy and produces orthopedic and ergonomic shoes with hand sculpted wooden bottoms and modeled leather soles. She opened her first retail store in 2005 to showcase CALLEEN CORDERO DESIGNS, INC. and is now running a worldwide business. She ships her products within the United States and to Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.

GUESTS: VINCENT NARDOLILLO (REBORN CABINETS), MAXWELL LEE (ADENNA INC.)

BUILDING ON THE BASICS

Growing up, Vincent Nardolillo, (888-2-REBORN), learned cabinet re-facing skills helping out after school at his brother's woodworking shop. As an adult, he continued to make use of his craft working as a carpenter in his hometown of New York. When Vinny moved to California, he tried to convince his employer of the profitability in cabinet refacing. However, because the concept was relatively new to the West Coast, his idea received little support. At that point, Vincent decided to open his own business with his wife and created REBORN CABINETS in 1983. To support her husband, Brenda took accounting classes and became the office manager at their company. In the years that ensued, Reborn Cabinets grew significantly with help from Yellow Pages advertising and exhibitions in home shows. Today, the business employs 140 people in its 9,000-square-foot warehouse and grosses $13 million annually. The Nardolillos children have also joined the team. Vincent, Jr. is in charge of marketing while his brother Anthony manages production and in-home installation.

Maxwell Lee is the owner of ADENNA, INC., a manufacturer and distributor of latex rubber gloves. It currently supplies 1 billion gloves throughout the United States as well as to Mexico and Canada. He came upon the idea after speaking to relatives in Asia who were looking to push their products to America. Maxwell saw the potential but was unfamiliar with rubber gloves and had little money to create a business. Nonetheless, he decided to take the risk and used his savings as capital. His instincts were correct. His idea turned into a successful venture and was named one of Inc. 500's fastest growing companies in 2004. Maxwell continues to innovate by reinvesting his profits into research and development. Adenna is creating a new glove called "Miracle," which contains vitamins and herbal extracts for moisturizing and comfort. Maxwell is also working to expand his company by establishing a joint venture in China.

TOPIC: Drunk Driving during the Holidays

GUEST: NICK BLAIRE, Volunteer, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, MADD

DISCUSSION: The reason why Mr. Blaire is a spokesperson for MADD is because a drunk driver killed his daughter. MADD was founded in 1980 and is fighting drunk driving and is an advocate in preventing underage drinking. MADD also has programs that support victims and survivors. Mr. Blaire is not against drinking alcohol. Though he is concerned about drinking and driving, he is very concerned that too many teenagers are drinking and driving.

TOPIC: Rebuilding Garfield HS Auditorium Concert

GUEST(S): OMAR MARIO DEL CUETO, PRINCIPAL, Garfield High School
BOBBY ESPINOSA, El Chicano
JERRY SALAS, El Chicano

DISCUSSION: Garfield High School is a historical monument for the city of Los Angeles. The educational institution is mostly well known for the film "Stand and Deliver," in which legendary professor Jaime Escalante leads a group of math students in the early 1980s to successfully pass a series of Calculus advanced placement examinations for the first time in Garfield High history. Unfortunately and most recently, Garfield High has been in the news for the arson fire that destroyed its auditorium in May of this year—a place where much of its memorable history took place. Along with Hot 92.3, Chicano music groups like El Chicano and Los Lobos will join October 14 for a fundraising concert on behalf of the Garfield High significant auditorium. El Chicano delivers an East LA. sound, influenced by the culmination of the "kid bands" they have been exposed to throughout the years. They have also been heavily influenced by Jazz and they are currently traveling throughout the country, Salas said. The high school drop out rate is still very high among Latino students, Del Cueto said. This concert is one example of many, in which Garfield High helps to promote socializing events that can help students to stay in school. "It's a process of becoming a good human being," Del Cueto said. Aside from recovering a piece of architecture, Del Cueto said this concert involves parents, church and the community—a way to get to educational prosperity.

POLITICAL FUNDS
A NEW LA TIMES STORY HIGHLIGHTS A PRACTICE BY OUR ELECTED OFFICIALS THAT IS BOTH DUBIOUS, AND COMPLETELY LEGAL. THE STORY DETAILS LAVISH TRIPS AND EXPENSES BY LOCAL POLITICIANS.FOR EXAMPLE, LOS ANGELES ASSEMBLY SPEAKER FABIAN NUNEZ RECENTLY TOOK A TRIP TO FRANCE, AND SPENT OVER $5,000 IN A WINE SHOP. THAT TRIP TO THE WINE SHOP WAS CLASSIFIED AS A "MEETING". NUNEZ ALSO HAD "OFFICE EXPENSES" AT UPSCALE CLOTHIER *ROBERT TALBOTT, AND SPENT ALMOST $9,000 AT A LUXURY HOTEL IN SPAIN.ALL OF THIS IS LEGAL, BECAUSE THESE EXPENSES WERE PAID BY CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS, AND NOT TAXPAYER MONEY.BUT CALIFORNIA LAW REQUIRES ALL CAMPAIGN FUNDS TO BE USED ON EXPENSES "REASONABLY" RELATED TO A GOVERNMENT PURPOSE.
