Highmark Caring Place

Type of Business: Community resource – children's grief

Guest: Terese Vorsheck, Director of the Highmark Caring Place

highmarkcaringplace.com

Hello and welcome to Our Issues Pittsburgh - I'm your host Shelley Duffy. Today I'd like to welcome Terese Vorsheck, Director of the Highmark Caring Place. Welcome!

Interview Questions and Answers:

What is the Highmark Caring Place?

- The Highmark Caring Place began in 1996.
- It is a center for grieving children, adolescents and their families.
- Our mission is to raise awareness of the needs of grieving children, provide programs to address those needs and empower the community to support children who have experienced the death of a loved one.
- The Caring Place child-centered—focused on supporting children who have experienced the death of a family member—and also family-focused: the whole family comes with the child or children to the Caring Place.
- It's a safe place where grieving children and families can come together and be with others who understand what they're going through.
- Since its inception in 1996, the Caring Place has served more than 90,000 family and community members through facilities in downtown Pittsburgh and in the Warrendale/Cranberry region, as well as in Erie and Harrisburg.
- Financial support from Highmark allows the Caring Place to provide these services free of charge to all, as a community service to all families and children who can be helped by the program.

Why is a program like this needed anyway?

- First of all, there are a lot of children who need the help. Did you know that one out of every twenty children will experience the death of a parent before they graduate high school? And there are many more children who lose a brother or sister, a close grandparent, or aunt or uncle or cousin.
- And one out of 5 children will have someone close to them die before they are 18.
- But do they really need that much help?
- Children are resilient. Most children will survive after the death of a loved one; they'll go on, finish school, move on into adulthood.
- But surviving does not necessarily mean thriving.
- The death of someone close is an earthquake in a child's life; they find that lots of what they thought was firm and stable in the world, and in their own internal life, has been knocked down and broken into pieces.

- It's not just the death itself that's difficult—it's the fact that every day they wake up and Mom is still not there to see them off to school; every evening, that chair at the table is still empty; every birthday or holiday or vacation or other special day, that loved one is still not there to be a part of it. That hole remains, every moment of every day.
- This experience is frightening. It's confusing. It's sad in a way they'd never thought possible. There are effects in every part of their lives, some of which don't become apparent until weeks, or months, or even years after the person died.
- And the experience is very lonely. These kids feel profoundly alone in their grief, because the vast majority of kids in this situation don't know anyone else who has gone through this. No one understands what they're going through. Their friends treat them differently now. They feel cut off from the world.
- They need support.

How does the Caring Place work?

- The Caring Place works through peer support.
- Children and teens get together with other kids their own age, and soon begin to share their feelings, memories and experiences with each other.
- Just being with others their age who have experienced a death helps these kids so much—they don't feel all alone in their grief anymore. They don't feel like no one understands. Because their new friends do understand.
- This in itself is profoundly healing.
- They also get to talk about things that they often have had no chance to talk about up until then, to unlock feelings and thoughts and worries and questions which had been bottled up before this.

How does it provide support to grieving children?

- And—they just get to be kids at the Caring Place. They talk with their new friends about normal kid things—about school, and sports teams, and music, and videogames, and proms and boyfriends and girlfriends—these are kids who happen to be grieving the loss of someone they love. But they remain kids. And they can be who they are at the Caring Place.
- The same groups of kids, with their families, come together for evening meetings at the Caring Place. There are ten meetings, held every other week, which begin with sharing dinner together, and then, in the second hour, the kids are divided into groups by age, while the adults meet together with the other adults.

Do you provide counseling to these grieving children?

- No. The groups of children and adults—helping each other through peer support—are facilitated by trained adult volunteers. These volunteers come from all walks of life; they don't usually have any kind of background in counseling or any related field.
- They simply want to help kids who need the help.
- All of the volunteers go through an extensive 26-hour training to prepare them to be with the families. Above all, the training focuses on listening.
- In addition to the work that the kids do with each other and the volunteers in their group rooms, there is also available to them, during the dinner hour, and sometimes during the group hour, what we call our Family Activities Room.
- When kids (or adults) first think of what a grieving center might be, they come up with all sorts of ideas, but very few of them imagine a place with air hockey games. But playing, laughing, smiling, having fun—these are all just as valid an expression of who they are as the tears or anger or confusion that they might express at other times.

How does a parent (or any adult) know when their children might need help after the death of a loved one?

- First I would say that the grief by itself is usually enough reason that a child will need extra support, especially to help them know they're not alone.
- Grief is a natural and normal response to the death of a loved one—but natural doesn't mean that help is not needed.
- Beyond that, some children exhibit certain behaviors that adults might be concerned with, especially if these behaviors continue for many weeks or months. These could include withdrawal from friends or family, a long-term drop in school performance, acting-out behaviors, or anger outbursts.
- All of these things could very well be seen in the reactions of many children, especially in the days and weeks soon after the death. It's the continuation over the long-term that may cause an adult to wonder if these are signs of a more complicated grief reaction that might need extra help.
- If anyone has questions like this about their own child, I would encourage them to call the grief specialists at the Caring Place to discuss this question. We can help you sort through these and any other concerns you might have about your child.

What is Children's Grief Awareness Day?

- Children's Grief Awareness Day is a day to bring attention to the fact that grieving children often feel very alone and forgotten in their grief. It provides an opportunity for all of us to raise awareness of the painful impact that the death of a loved one has in the life of a child, and an opportunity to make sure that these children receive the support they need.
- Children's Grief Awareness Day is recognized and observed by organizations around the United States and across the world. But it was created in 2008 right here in western Pennsylvania, by the Highmark Caring Place and our partnership with schools, the Caring Team for Grieving Children. Since that time, thousands of individuals and organizations, along with local, state and national leaders from across the U.S., have worked to raise awareness of grieving children and to change the culture in order to make death and grief a topic that can be spoken of openly and compassionately. The Highmark Caring Place continues to lead the coordination of the observance day.
- This special day is observed every year on the third Thursday in November—which is November 19 this year.

What are the goals of Children's Grief Awareness Day?

- The goals of Children's Grief Awareness Day are to:
  - o Raise awareness of the impact of death on children;
  - o Raise awareness of the benefits of support for grieving children;
  - o Provide information in order to increase the general knowledge of the needs of grieving children; and
  - o Make resources available to raise this awareness and increase this knowledge

How can people observe Children's Grief Awareness Day?

- Many activities, large and small, can raise awareness of grieving children. The most basic way to participate is to wear blue. And, when you do wear blue, make sure you publicize the reason why you're wearing blue—to bring awareness to grieving children! The more that everyone knows why they're seeing so many people in blue, the more they will start to think of the needs of grieving children too.
- There are many other activities that are shown on the Children's Grief Awareness Day website. The main point is that whatever you do, there will be many kids who will feel validated and special because you took the time to recognize how hard it sometimes is for them as they deal with the loss of someone close. And some of these kids you would never even know were grieving, because they don't feel comfortable talking about it. But those kids are being helped just the same.

Why is Children's Grief Awareness Day set in November?

- Any time of year can be difficult for kids who have lost a loved one. But the holiday season, with the emphasis on family get-togethers, and the memories that come up about holidays of years past, becomes a particularly difficult time for people who are grieving. It's appropriate to have an occasion set aside at this time of year to let grieving kids know that they're not alone, and that there are people all around them who want to support them, and who really do care about them.

Why is it important to raise awareness for grieving kids and teens?

- Many people don't realize that it takes most children much longer to deal with their grief than we expect. The struggles they go through inside, which remains invisible to most of the rest of us, is much more intense than we have any idea of. So we want to raise awareness so that people will realize that even if they can't see this inner turmoil, there can still be a lot of pain and anxiety and confusion inside a grieving child's heart. And so that people will understand that a grieving child can't just "get over it"—not in any set time period, not by any act of their own will—and that there's no reason that they should just "get over it." We want to raise awareness to help people learn ways they might help a grieving child they happen to know, now or in the future.

It looks like you have brought a few items with you today. Could you show them to us and explain what they are?

- First, this is part of our "Holding on to HOPE" initiative, which encourages people to take a photo with HOPE the butterfly, and post it to Twitter and/or Instagram with #CGADHope. The HOPE butterfly print out is available on the Children's Grief Awareness Day website. The initiative has been well received, garnering support from people around the world.
- I also have an example Caring Place quilt square. Families create quilt squares in honor and memory of their loved ones during the time they are at the Caring Place. A group of dedicated quilters works together to arrange and sew these squares into quilts, which, after being dedicated to the families, hang on the walls of the Caring Place.
- I also have some of the projects children have created at the Highmark Caring Place to help express their grief following the loss of a loved one.

Welcome back to Our Issues Pittsburgh. I'd like to thank Terese Vorsheck, Director of the Highmark Caring Place. Thank you for joining us today. (Say goodbyes.)

About the Highmark Caring Place: The Highmark Caring Place champions the cause of grieving children by creating awareness of their needs, providing programs for them and their families, and empowering the community to effectively support them.

The first Caring Place facility opened in Pittsburgh in 1997. Since that time, the program has expanded across Pennsylvania, with additional facilities in Erie, near Harrisburg, and in Warrendale.

Thousands of community members are helped by the Caring Place each year at no cost through our peer support groups, and through our education, consultation, and referral services.

Upcoming Event: Children's Grief Awareness Day (November 19, 2015)

Created in 2008 by the Highmark Caring Place, A Center for Grieving Children, Adolescents and Their Families, and since recognized by organizations around the world, Children's Grief Awareness Day is observed every year on the third Thursday in November (the Thursday before the U.S. holiday of Thanksgiving). This time of year is a particularly appropriate time to support grieving children because the holiday season is often an especially difficult time after a death.

Children's Grief Awareness Day seeks to bring attention to the fact that often support can make all the difference in the life of a grieving child. It provides an opportunity for all of us to raise awareness of the painful impact that the death of a loved one has in the life of a child, an opportunity to make sure that these children receive the support they need.

Episode #61

WPNT, Sunday, November 22, 2015

Contemporary Craft

Guests: Janet McCall, Executive Director, Society for Contemporary Craft

Rachel Saul, Assistant Director of Education, Society for Contemporary Craft

www.contemporarycraft.org

Hello and welcome to Our Issues Pittsburgh - I'm your host Shelley Duffy. Today I'd like to welcome Janet McCall, Executive Director and Rachel Saul, Assistant Director of Education at the Society for Contemporary Craft. Welcome!

For Janet McCall (approximately 75% of interview)

Please start with telling us about your organization. What is contemporary craft?

SCC has a reputation for exploring social justice themes in their exhibitions; why is craft particularly well suited for these topics.

Tell us about Mindful. Where did the idea for the exhibition come from?

How did you go about finding artists to feature?

The exhibition really seems to go beyond the gallery walls; please tell us about the various community partners – advocacy groups, therapists, universities, etc. – you've engaged in the planning of Mindful.

How did their knowledge and insight impact the final exhibition?

How does Mindful help break down the stigma surrounding mental illness?

What do you hope the public takes away from the experience?

Is there anything else you'd like to add?

For Rachel Saul (approximately 25% of interview)

How does Mindful carry over into The Studio, SCC's education center?

Tell us about the public schools you're partnering with. What will students experience during their time at SCC?

One of the main takeaways from Mindful is that the act of making can have a positive impact on our mood... resulting in compassion and resiliency. How do you nurture this in The Studio? (workshops)

Where can people learn more about Studio workshops and group/school programs?

Welcome back to Our Issues Pittsburgh. I'd like to thank Janet and Rachel from The Society for Contemporary Craft. Thank you for joining us today. (Say goodbyes.)

If you'd like to learn more about SCC you can go to their website at contemporarycraft.org. ## MINDFUL FAST FACTS

When: September 18, 2015 – March 12, 2016

Where: Society for Contemporary Craft, located at 2100 Smallman Street in the Strip District's historic Produce Terminal. ** SCC's exhibitions and Drop-In Studio are always free of charge. **

Overview:

Someone you know lives with a mental health condition, yet this common illness often remains hidden behind a wall of secrecy and isolation. Mindful: Exploring Mental Health Through Art - SCC's latest socially engaged art experience - breaks down stigmas and offers an opportunity to encounter and understand mental health through the lens of contemporary craft. The exhibition explores the impact that mental illness is having on society, and the role the arts can play to both encourage positive self-expression and guide effective mental health promotion and treatment.

Following the significant impact of SCC's 2014 exhibition ENOUGH Violence: Artists Speak Out, Contemporary Craft once again steps beyond the gallery walls, enlisting the guidance of a wide variety of staff, academic experts, social service professionals, and the general public in the development of Mindful. From an open call for personal mental health narratives to language sensitivity training, the innovative, crowd-sourcing approach to Mindful ensures the exhibition is connected to the community in a meaningful, genuine way.

Art & Artists:

- Mindful features 14 artists from around the country.
- There are 33 works of art in the exhibition.
- The show highlights a variety of techniques and forms that include innovative art expressions rooted in traditional craft materials such as metal, wood, fiber, and clay, as well as art that explores unexpected relationships between craft and painting, sculpture, conceptual, and installation art.

Community Engagement:

- SCC partnered with more than 15 mental health social service groups, colleges, and universities to develop Mindful. Known as the "Saturday Information Sessions," representatives from many of these organizations will be present in the gallery the first Saturday of every month throughout the exhibition's run as a resource for visitors.
- A calendar of related events and programs - including Studio workshops, Saturday Information Sessions, and a lecture with Pittsburgh Arts & Lectures - can be found at www.exploremindfulart.com
- SCC engages local partner schools in related programming and offers a free Teacher's Curriculum Guide for both educators and families.
- Complimentary exhibitions of community and student artwork are located in the SCC Studio and the BNY Mellon Satellite Gallery throughout the run of Mindful.
- A free, family-friendly hands-on art activity created by exhibition artist Grace Kubilius is available in SCC's Drop-In Studio.
- A series of Mindful Studio workshop experiences are planned throughout the run of the exhibition. Details are available at www.contemporarycraft.org.
- SCC's current artist-in-residence, Daniel Baxter of the "Kreepy Doll factory," brings an element of whimsy and hope to the exhibition. His quirky plush dolls remind us of the restorative and positive effects making can have on our minds and moods. Daniel has also created an exclusive Mindful doll available for sale in the SCC Store.
- Osprey, a whimsically illustrated fable warning of the dangers of stigma by local artist and author Nathaniel Taylor, is also exclusively available at SCC throughout the run of Mindful.

ABOUT CONTEMPORARY CRAFT

Presenting contemporary art in craft media by regional, national, and international artists since 1971, the Society for Contemporary Craft (SCC) offers cutting edge exhibitions focusing on multicultural diversity and non-mainstream art, as well as a range of studio workshops, community outreach programs, and a retail store. Through its mission of engaging the public in creative experiences through contemporary craft, SCC offers meaningful art opportunities for more than 145,000 people a year through four core values: providing vital support for artists; filling critical gaps in public education; sharing cross cultural perspectives; and using art to build community. SCC is located at 2100 Smallman Street in the Strip District of Pittsburgh, PA. Hours are Monday through Saturday, 10:00 am to 5:00 pm. The satellite gallery is located in the "T" station lobby of BNY Mellon Center in downtown Pittsburgh, and is open daily from 6:00 am through midnight. Exhibitions and informal, hands-on art activities in the Drop-In Studio are always free to the public. For more information, visit www.contemporarycraft.org or call 412.261.7003.
