Teens	Parenting Today's Teen	4/24/2019	8:24am 6:24pm	60 sec	FM	Have you set high standards for your teen? Do you want them to grow up to be smart, mature and responsible? We all want the best for our teens. And a healthy amount of prodding and preparing are good. It's what we're called to do. But when moms and dads become more concerned with meeting the standards and looking good to the neighbors bad things happen. So don't give up on helping your teen become the best adult he can be. But watch what you're really after. If it's just the standard and making yourself look successful; better double check your motives! Get back to loving your teen.

Teens	Parenting Today's Teen	4/26/2019	8:24am 6:24pm	60 sec	FM	Teens today feel a sense of entitlement. They want more, demand more, and expect more than any other generation I've know. Dr. Tim Kimmel, puts it this way: "The problem with teens brought up in our typical middle class home is this... they're born on third base but are under the delusion they hit a triple!" It's this platform of unbridled entitlement that cause young people to remain immature, neglect responsibility and treat people disrespectfully. Refusing to grow up. There's nothing wrong with wanting to give your child things, and put'em on third base...but consider how withholding privileges might teach your child much more than hitting a grand slam!
