A. Environmental Issues:

-Broadcast on April 3:

A discussion with guests Eric Soehren, Manager/Ecologist of the Elhew Field Station at the Wehle Land Conservation Center of the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, and Butch LeCompte, Wehle Center Festival Special Events Coordinator, about Alabama's Forever Wild Tracts that preserve land for public use, and the Wehle Spring Festival, adjacent to a Forever Wild Tract.

-Broadcast on May 17:

A pre-recorded discussion on-location on the Alabama River with guest Lt. Mitford Fontaine, Assistant Supervisor of District III of the Alabama Marine Police, Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, about Safe Boating Week and the requirements for vessel operation, PFDs (lifejackets), fire extinguishers, and personal watercraft.

-Broadcast on May 28:

A discussion with guests Dr. James Bradley, W. Kelly Moseley Professor Emeritus of Biology at Auburn University, and Jay Lamar, Director of Special Programs, Office of the Assistant Provost for Undergraduate Studies at Auburn University, about the landmark work of Charles Darwin, as interpreted by seventeen scientific contributors in the guests' new book, Charles Darwin, A Celebration of His Life and Legacy.

-Broadcast on May 30:

A discussion with guest Greg Lein, Director of the Alabama State Parks Division of the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, about the status of Alabama's State Parks, including the upgrade of Gulf State Park and the smaller parks in the system. As former Forever Wild Director, he comments on the long-term plans to make the Forever Wild Tracts accessible to the public.

-Broadcast on June 3:

A discussion with guests John Paul O'Driscoll, Chairman of Autauga County PALS - People Against a Littered State, and Amanda Melton, Vice-Chair, about Swift Creek Landing on the Alabama River and the problems of littering on this U.S. Army Corps of Engineers site. Autauga County PALS is spearheading a Swift Creek Cleanup on June 8 to return the area to its pristine condition.

-Broadcast on June 24:

A pre-recorded on-location discussion with guest Don McElliott, a hiking guide and Appalachian Trail hiker from Dahlonega, GA, about north Georgia's waterfalls and hiking trails. He talked about the AT and the Eastern hemlocks that are being destroyed by aphids. He shared advice on hiking in bear country and gave safety tips about hiking with young children.

-Broadcast on June 25:

A discussion with guest Randy Jinks, Promotions Director for the Alabama State Parks, Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, about the State Parks in our coverage area and the activities they offer to visitors.

-Broadcast on June 28:

A pre-recorded discussion on-location on the Alabama River with guest Lt. Mitford Fontaine, Assistant Supervisor of District III of the Alabama Marine Police, Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, about Operation Dry Water June 28-30, which stresses the dangers of alcohol use while boating. Marine Police officers routinely check for Boating under the Influence (BUI), and he talked about the penalties and fines.

B. Societal Issues:

-Broadcast on April 2:

A discussion with guests Dyann Robinson, Playwright, Founder, and Director of the Jessie Clinton Arts Centre, Bill Perry, Theater Musical Director, and Frank Andrus, Actor, about the new play, Tuskegee Rising, which interprets the history of Tuskegee, Alabama, and its continuing struggles to survive, despite the closure of Macon County's largest business.

-Broadcast on April 5:

A discussion with guest Rob Goldsmith of Dothan, about the efforts on Deli Day to feed hundreds of people in need. He delved into Jewish culture and the meaning of its kosher food traditions.

-Broadcast on April 9:

An eight-minute discussion with guests Mark Montoya, Montgomery artist and founder of the Renaissance Art Project, and Carole King, Historic Properties Curator for Landmarks Foundation, about the collaborative efforts among Aid to Inmate Mothers, Renaissance Re-Entry Community, and Landmark Foundation, to use art to help former inmates re-enter society after imprisonment. An Art Exhibit will showcase their work.

-Broadcast on April 9:

A seven-minute discussion with guest Joy Blondheim, cancer survivor and Founder of the Joy to Life Foundation, about the foundation's work to provide free mammograms and other breast cancer screenings to medically underserved women in Alabama. The annual Walk of Life is the primary fundraising event for the foundation.

-Broadcast on April 12:

A discussion with studio guest Jeanie Thompson, Executive Director of the Alabama Writers' Forum, and telephone guest Burgin Mathews (of Hoover, AL), a teacher and co-author of Doc, The Story of a Birmingham Jazz Man, about legendary jazz artist Dr. Frank Adams, who devoted more than 40 years to teaching children in the Birmingham City Schools. Although Doc was recruited to join some of the top Big Bands, he remained committed to the teaching profession, using music education to cultivate the minds and talents of young people. Burgin was a former recipient, as a young writer, of an award from the Alabama Writers' Forum.

-Broadcast on April 15:

A discussion with guest Rachel Simpson, Operation Military Kids Coordinator and Military Liaison for the Alabama Cooperative Extension System, about the Month of the Military Child. Alabama OMK is administered through Alabama 4-H, working with military bases, Guard and Reserve units, to provide programming to Alabama youth whose parents are risking their lives to protect American freedom. Purple Up Day in Alabama is April 15.

-Broadcast on April 30:

A discussion with guests Lenore Dillon, Rehabilitation Teacher and Orientation & Mobility Specialist with the Alabama Department of Rehabilitation Services, and Carole Pinkard, Oasis Program Coordinator, about the dynamics of vision loss, vision rehabilitation therapy, and orientation and mobility training. The Oasis Program serves blind and low vision clients.

-Broadcast on May 1:

On World Asthma Day, a discussion with guests Shanone Medlock, Aruna Rikhi, and Demetra Peoples of the Alabama Department of Public Health, about the prevalence of asthma in Alabama and the U.S. The Alabama Asthma Coalition joins ADPH in efforts to educate the public about asthma, with programs such as the Air Quality Flag Program, Tools for Schools, the No Idling Campaign, and the Tobacco Quit Line initiative.

-Broadcast on May 3:

A discussion with guest Edwin Marty, Executive Director of E.A.T. South, a nonprofit that encourages healthy lifestyles through education and sustainable food production, about the inaugural Southern Makers event. The May 4th event presents artisans and innovators, who bring the skills of yesteryear into their contemporary work. Proceeds benefit E.A.T. South.

-Broadcast on May 8:

A discussion with guest Dr. Margaret Jakes, Board-certified Montgomery Allergist/Immunologist and Medical Director of Camp WheezeAway, a free resident camp for children with asthma, about the spring and summer allergy season and ways to cope with tree pollens, grass allergens, and insect bites and stings. She also discussed the nature of anaphylaxis emergencies.

-Broadcast on May 10:

A pre-recorded on-location visit with guests at the Taoist Tai Chi headquarters in Montgomery – instructor Janet Hutto and adult students, about how their health has been impacted by the practice of Tai Chi. Dr. James Glass has Parkinson's, and he credits Tai Chi with a positive effect on his well being. Other students talked about help for back conditions, flexibility and improved balance.

-Broadcast on May 14:

A discussion with guest Ronnie Floyd, Alabama State Coordinator for the Alabama Senior Games and Board member of the Alabama Masters Games, about fitness for Seniors. He previewed the District and State games, which will culminate in sending 150 athletes to the National Senior Games July 19-Aug. 1, in Cleveland, Ohio. He shared advice about fitness, with resources for Seniors.

-Broadcast on May 15:

A discussion with guests Susan Moss, Executive Director of Central Alabama Crimestoppers, and Lt. Tony Garrett, Community Development Coordinator and Crime Prevention Specialist, about the nonprofit organization's efforts to combat crime in the River Region. Since 1997, Crimestoppers has assisted local law enforcement in solving more than 2,000 cases and has paid over $70,000 in reward money.

-Broadcast on May 16:

A discussion with guest Frank Winkler, certified Substance Abuse prevention educator and former longtime Executive Director of SAYNO, Substance Abuse Youth Networking Organization, about the link between substance abuse and crime as a community-based problem with a high economic impact. For parents, he outlined signs of substance abuse in children and discussed the importance of neighborhood watches and associations, to help halt illegal drug activity and its associated violence and crime.

-Broadcast on May 20

A discussion with guests Debbie Bond, Founder of the nonprofit Alabama Blues Project, and her husband, Rick Asherson, Blues educator and musician, about their efforts to preserve the heritage of Blues music in Alabama by educating children and adults across the state about the Blues.

-Broadcast on May 23:

A discussion with guest Christy Holding, Counselor with the nonprofit Samaritan Counseling Center, about Eating Disorders and the harmful effects on the body and mind of those affected by this often long-term practice.

-Broadcast on May 31:

A discussion with guest Karen Story, District Leader of the Montgomery Chapter of the nonprofit Compassionate Friends, about help for families grieving the loss of a child. She discussed the chapter meetings and how they offer support to families after the death of a child of any age. She announced the Balloon Lift Off, a special occasion of remembrance on June 4.

-Broadcast on June 7:

A discussion with Montgomery guest Kawaski Nelson, known in the music world as composer/musician KCentric, about how he composes electronic music, which is heard around the world on television, radio and film. Hurricane Katrina's profound impact led to his wrenching composition, Quiet Chaos.

-Broadcast on June 10:

A pre-recorded on-location discussion at Ivy Green, the Helen Keller Birthplace in Tuscumbia, AL, with guest Mary Eubanks, Tour Guide and Host, about the life and worldwide impact of Helen Keller and her teacher, Annie Sullivan. They opened the doors of education for people who are blind and deaf, and Helen's tireless efforts and example earned her the title of First Lady of Courage. Her statue is at the U.S. Capitol.

A discussion with guests Paul Hebron, New York-based actor, Dr. Susan Willis, Alabama Shakespeare Festival Resident Dramaturg, and Katy Swann, Stage Management specialist, about the craft of acting. The guests talked about historical research, character development, speech dialects, and stage management, in this behind-the-scenes look at the world of theatre.

-Broadcast on June 17:

A discussion with guest Kylie McKinney, Public Affairs Specialist with the Social Security Administration, with an update on Social Security – the SS Windfall Elimination Provision and Government Pension Offset, Retirement and Social Security, Social Security on I-Phones, and Social Security Accounts.

-Broadcast on June 20:

A pre-recorded discussion in Dahlenega, GA, with guest Andrew Ashton of Manchester, England, about the Talking Books program for blind people in England. Although similar to the Library of Congress Talking Books program in the U.S., the British program requires outside funding to record Talking Books. Andrew Ashton has raised funds for two Talking Books, through sponsorships of his participation in marathon running events.

C. Economic Issues:

-Broadcast on May 13:

A discussion with guest David Smitherman, President and CEO of the Better Business Bureau of Central Alabama and the Wiregrass, about the BBB's mission to establish trust in the marketplace. In 2012, the organization served one million consumers, providing them with information and consumer complaints about businesses and charities.

-Broadcast on June 11:

A discussion with guests Johnny Lawrence, Lee County Commissioner, and Dr. Bill Hutto, Board member of the Aviation Council of Alabama and Airport Director of the Auburn University Regional Airport, about the role of local airports in attracting new industry to Alabama communities. The guests recounted how the Lee County Commission, the Cities of Auburn and Opelika, and Auburn University used a solution-oriented community approach in working with the FAA to modernize the Auburn University Regional Airport.

D. Historical Issues:

-Broadcast on April 14:

A discussion with guests Mike Bunn, Historian and Executive Director of the Historic Chattahoochee Commission, and Ann Schaeffer, Chair of the 48th Eufaula Pilgrimage, the first pilgrimage in Alabama, about Eufaula and Barbour County's pivotal role in Alabama/Georgia history. The county provided the crossover point for white settlers into Creek Indian Territory, then served as a commerce center for riverboat traffic on the Chattahoochee River between Columbus, GA, and Apalachicola, FL. The guests discussed the historic structures remaining in Eufaula that will be featured on the 48th Pilgrimage.

-Broadcast on April 10:

A discussion with studio guest Dr. Sheila Guidry, medical ethicist, and Birmingham telephone guest Max Herzel, Holocaust survivor, about Mr. Herzel's World War II Holocaust experience. He will be a panelist at the annual Holocaust Education Program April 24 at Auburn University Montgomery, free and open to students and the public. Mr. Herzel's goal is to educate the public about the reality of the Holocaust.

-Broadcast on April 17:

A pre-recorded discussion with studio guest Dr. Kirk Curnutt, F. Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald Museum Board member and an organizer of the Alabama Book Festival, as well as Chair of the English Department of Troy University Montgomery Campus, and Raleigh, N.C., telephone guest Therese Anne Fowler, author of the novel Z, about Montgomery native Zelda Fitzgerald and the events that shaped her life with husband F. Scott Fitzgerald.

-Broadcasts on May 27:

A discussion with guest Warren Trest, retired USAF Senior Military Historian, about the unique and contentious history of Memorial Day, which started as Decoration Day (Decoration of the Graves Day), three years after the Civil War. Memorial Day's official name was declared by Federal Law in 1967, a century after the occasion was first observed.

-Broadcast on June 4:

A discussion with guest Teresa Paglione, Past-President and Board member of the Alabama Archaeological Society, about the archaeology of the Tennessee Valley. She also previewed the annual meeting June 29 at the Oakville Indian Mounds Education Center. The public is invited to the event, which will showcase the pre-history of the Tennessee Valley.

-Broadcast on June 14:

A discussion with guest Lt. Col. Bill Stewart (USAF Ret.) about Flag Day and Flag Etiquette. Lt. Col. Stewart narrated his original composition, "I Am Your Flag," which was written for the National Exchange Club and has been presented to the Alabama Legislature and to communities across several states.

-Broadcast on June 21:

A pre-recorded on-location discussion at the Consolidated Gold Mines in Dahlonega, GA, with Miner Mike Clark about the 1829 Gold Rush. Miners of the era also were active in Alabama and North Carolina, but the purity of Dahlonega gold sparked Gold Fever, and in one day miners brought up over 54 pounds of gold from the Glory Hole at the Consolidated Mines. Miner Mike Clark talked about mining methods then and now. Alabamian Bryan Whitfield, whose Demopolis family home, Gaineswood, is operated by the Alabama Historical Commission as a Mansion Museum, owns the mines, which are no longer working mines.

-Broadcast on June 27:

A discussion with guests Lt. General Charles Cleveland (USAF Ret.) and Warren Trest, Military Historian, about the Korean and Vietnam wars and General Cleveland's storied military career. His Fighter Ace verification, from Soviet military records, came more than 50 years after the Korean War. In Vietnam, he served as General William Westmoreland's Executive Assistant. Warren Trest's biography of General Cleveland is Once a Fighter Pilot, The Story of Korean War Ace Lt. General Charles G. "Chick" Cleveland. General Cleveland will give the keynote address at the Prattville Independence Day Celebration honoring Vietnam War veterans.
