Detailed Description: Healthcare workers at Auburn Community Hospital are sounding off, alerting patients and the public that 28 hospitals across the state could be in jeopardy of closing. That is if the state senate and assembly do not restore the $290 million dollars in critical funding that is currently excluded, from this year's budget. Our reporter also spoke with hospital officials and they say that is not the case, and they do not want to worry the community. Right now the hospital is receiving funds through the federal Medicaid waiver, which helps hospitals who are "seriously distressed."

Duration of Segment: 2:35

Detailed Description: Continuing coverage from Onondaga County Court on the Dr. Robert Neulander case. Two forensic witnesses dominated the day. Dr. Tracey Corey was on the stand for about an hour and half this afternoon. She testified about the wound on Leslie Neulander's head. Saying it was a massive head injury, much more severe than what she would expect to see from a fall from a standing position in the household. Also on the stand for about 5 hours was Dr. Karen Green, who owns her own company in the state of Washington. Green testified that the best explanation for the blood spatter around the bed is an impact event with a possible resulting castoff. Dr. Neulander is accused of murdering his wife Leslie in their home in 2012, and covering it up to make it look like an accidental slip in the shower.

Duration of Segment: 2:10

Detailed Description: Testimony continued today in the Gary Thibodeau hearing. Thibodeau was convicted of kidnapping Heidi Allen in 1994 from a convenience store. A group of defense attorneys are working to overturn his conviction with a new trial because of possible evidence that could link three other men to the crime. Former Oswego County District Attorney Donald Dodd was on the stand for more than six hours. Dodd was questioned about the files and documents turned over to Thibodeau's original defense regarding Heidi Allen's status as a confidential informant. At issue is if there were clear and verifiable procedures used when those documents were handed over and if all the necessary documents were given to the correct agencies.

Detailed Description: A jury always has a difficult job, taking in all the evidence and testimony during a trial and then collaborating together to hopefully reach a verdict. But legal experts say Dr. Robert Neulander's case will be even harder for a jury to decide. Dr. Neulander was able to bring expensive experts to support his case over the Defense Attorneys. Another big hurdle for the jury was that there are no witnesses or a weapon.
