the NFL, but it's also the biggest game for advertisers. Many people who don't even like football, tune into the game just to see the ads. But what makes a really good Super Bowl ad? We talk to three marketing specialists about how to craft a good ad, how ads are effectively measured and what makes an ad memorable.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Aaron Goldman, Chief Marketing Officer for 4C Insights; David Stewart, President's Professor of Marketing at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles; Richard Krevolin, branding consultant and author of the book, The Hook: How to share your brand's unique story to engage customers, boost sales, and achieve heartfelt success.

16-04 SEGMENT 1: LESSONS LEARNED FROM THE HORACE MANN SCHOOL SCANDAL

00:00
Schools by trusted teachers, coaches and clergy have come to light in the past decade or so. One of the latest is the abuse suffered by some students at the Horace Mann School in New York City. We talk to a former student of the school about how the story of abuse came to light, how teachers and coaches lured children into sexual situations and how the draconian statute of limitations on child sex abuse in New York and other states hurts victims who wait until adulthood to reveal their horror.

16-04 SEGMENT 2: LAB-GROWN DIAMONDS AND GEMS: ARE THEY REAL?

cause a great deal of environmental damage getting them out of the ground, not to mention the horrible working conditions of miners – some just children – have to endure in some of the world's diamond mines. Lab-grown diamonds and gemstones don't require dangerous working conditions, and they're made with just a fraction of the environmental impact of mined gems. But are those stones grown in laboratory really diamonds? Do they look the same as the mined versions? We talk the study of sociology was dominated by the University of Chicago and other, historically white universities. Scholars at these schools conducted "armchair" theorizing – developing theories without actually going into cities and towns to talk to the people they were studying. One man – an African-American scholar and author – changed all that with his groundbreaking research and writing about Black people, their culture, and economic and social situations in urban areas. We talk to a

16-08 SEGMENT 1: W.E.B. DU BOIS: THE SCHOLAR DENIED

4/6/2016 1:14 PM

00:00

Synopsis: Sex and labor trafficking are big business in the U.S. and around the world. Often it's young people and immigrants who are forced to work in the sex industry or in sweatshops, restaurants and hotels with little pay, horrible hours and horrible living conditions. We talk to an author who's experienced dealing with young people caught in this web, and a university lecturer who's an advocate for trafficked victims, about the extent of the problem, how desperate people become ensnared in the trafficker's trap, and how law enforcement and communities can help the victims escape from a life of slavery and abuse.

Host: Gary Price. Guests: Ellen Hopkins, author of the young adult verse-novels, Tricks, and Traffick; Tony Talbott, director of Anti-Human Trafficking Initiatives at the University of Dayton.

16-13 SEGMENT 1: THE POLITICAL CLASSROOM: TEACHING CIVICS

00:00

Synopsis: Civics classes in many grade schools and high schools aren't the same as they were 20 years ago, when teachers lectured on "how a bill becomes a law" to a roomful of bored students. These days, kids are more likely to discuss and debate some of the most pressing issues of the day. We talk to two educators about how some schools are teaching students how to debate correctly, how discussion of hot topics can foster understanding of diverse points of view, and the long-term benefits for students who engage in thoughtful, civil, debate.

Host: Gary Price. Guests: Diana E. Synopsis: Economists are saying that American workers' wages are stagnant and have been for quite a few years now despite working longer hours and being "on call" all the time through technology. That doesn't mean that business is lagging though, since corporations, their CEOs and other high-level managers are doing quite well in that department. Our guest says that work and the way we compensate the rank-and-file workers needs to change to bring up wages and add benefits to make the
