House Denver/AD COUNCIL-HIGH SCHOOL	PSA	Jan	39	:30	More than 29 million adults in the U.S. do not have a high school diploma. Data shows that adults without a diploma tend to work multiple jobs in the least stable positions, earn less money than high school graduates, and experience a lower quality of life. In fact recent data shows that nearly 30 percent of adults with household incomes at or below the federal poverty line do not have a high school credential. The High School Equivalency campaign seeks to combat this critical issue by encouraging those without a high school diploma to take the first steps toward a better future and sign up for free adult education classes in their area. The "Skip the Drama" campaign highlights how not having a high school credential can cause unnecessary drama, and situations like filling out a job application that seem normal and mundane, can become nerve-wracking and intense when questions of education arise.
House Denver/AD COUNCIL-LEARNING ISSUES	PSA	Jan/Mar	157	1:00	In the U.S., one in five children struggles with a learning and/or attention issue. As a result, these children often face both academic and social challenges. However, with the right strategies and support, they can succeed in the classroom—and outside of it, too. This campaign stems from the idea that parents can sense when their children are struggling but may not know why. Or what to do. By demonstrating the realities that children with learning and attention issues face daily, the campaign aims to increase the number of parents who are actively helping and seeking help for their kids.

House Denver/AD COUNCIL-HUNGER PREVENT	PSA	Jan/Mar	236	:30	Hunger is a concern for millions of Americans, but many people don't realize its disproportionate effect on children. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently announced that nearly 16 million children, or one in five children in America, face hunger. The new Child Hunger PSAs highlight how food banks work collaboratively with their communities to bring surplus food to children and families in need, including working with farmers, grocery workers, food bank employees and volunteers.

House Denver/AD COUNCIL-RECYCLING	PSA	Jan/Mar	103	1:00	Since 2010, 63 percent of the population has had access to curbside recycling; yet recycling rates are still surprisingly low. In fact, only 34.5 percent of the 251 million tons of trash Americans generated that year was recycled or composted. And in an Ad Council survey, 62 percent of Americans admitted they were not avid recyclers. To improve these rates, the Ad Council teamed up with Keep America Beautiful and San Francisco-based ad agency Pereira & O'Dell to launch the I Want To Be Recycled campaign. This playful--and powerful--campaign personifies everyday recyclable objects, allowing plastic bottles, steel cans and more to share their dreams of a different life.

House Denver/CO OFFICE OF ECONOMIC TRADE	PSA	Feb/Mar	91	:30	In the wake of the widely publicized "sexting" scandal at Canon City High School last November, state Sen. Kevin Grantham of Canon City teamed with Donald Zuckerman of the Colorado Film Commission to The PSA designed to educate and help kids who may find themselves in a similar situation. The 30-second ads feature different scenarios in which teenagers are seen re-evaluating their actions, with the ad asking the question, "Is it worth it?" The ads should be airing soon. It's painfully obvious, based on this episode, that we as parents and teachers as well as our students need to be more aware of what consequences there are by engaging in these activities.

House Denver/AD COUNCIL-SEAT BELT	PSA	Jan	104	:30	The new Seat Belt Safety campaign pulls from the insight that as a parent, sometimes you have to let your kids have their way. But your kid's safety should never be up for negotiation, no matter how much they push back on the seat belts being uncomfortable, unnecessary for just a "short drive" or any other excuses. The campaign utilizes the concept that "life as a parent is full of compromises, but seat belt safety for my children is not up for negotiation." -
