The “Making It Grow” Halloween special will air this Halloween, October 31, at 7pm. With everyone in costume, Hosts Amanda McNulty and Terasa Lott are joined by Clemson Extension Agents Adam Gore and Carmen Ketron along with Dr. John Nelson, retired curator of the AC Moore Herbarium.

For this themed episode, we will answer questions about and show carrion flowers, carnivorous plants, and voodoo lilies. We will also show jack-o’-lanterns made from peppers, apples, onions, and potatoes.

We hope you'll tune in and enjoy this hour of learning about gardening and getting tips and suggestions from our panelists and special guests. That's at 7pm on Tuesday, October 31, on South Carolina Educational Television. Hope to see you then.

November

Be sure to put a reminder on your calendar for November 7, at 7pm as we bring you a new episode of "Making It Grow" recorded during the 2023 South Carolina State Fair. Hosts Amanda McNulty and Terasa Lott are joined by Clemson Extension Agents Vicky Bertagnolli, Adam Gore, and Dr. John Nelson, retired curator of the AC Moore Herbarium.

Since one of our first shows was at the South Carolina State Fair in 1993, we thought it would be appropriate to show a montage of 30 years of "Making It Grow" which highlights some of the people and places from over the years.

Later in the show, Terasa talks with audience members and asks them their gardening questions for the panel to answer.

But first, we focus on the Fair Food - candy apples, fried mushrooms, French fries, and elephant ears (fried dough). This fun discussion allows the panel to share lots of information about apples, peanuts, mushrooms, potatoes, and the non-fried dough elephant ears.

We hope you'll tune in and enjoy this hour of learning about gardening and getting tips and suggestions from our panelists and special guests. That's at 7pm on Tuesday, November 7, on South Carolina Educational Television. Hope to see you then.

Be sure to put a reminder on your calendar for November 14, at 7pm as we bring you a new episode of "Making It Grow". Hosts Amanda McNulty and Terasa Lott are joined by Clemson Extension Agent Rob Last, and Dr. Herrick Brown, curator of the AC Moore Herbarium.

We visit Sal's Ol' Timey Feed & Seed in Columbia, where Amanda meets with owner Sallie Sharpe to learn about their heirloom vegetables, chickens, horses, compost practices, and also their homing pigeons.

Later in the show, Terasa talks with Bailey Slice Parker, Executive Director of the Gills Creek Watershed Association, about the steps they have taken to improve water quality and the environmental habitat at Crowson Road which was a site of major flooding in 2015.

We hope you'll tune in and enjoy this hour of learning about gardening and getting tips and suggestions from our panelists and special guests. That's at 7pm on Tuesday, November 14, on South Carolina Educational Television. Hope to see you then.

Be sure to put a reminder on your calendar for November 21, at 7pm as we bring you a new episode of “Making It Grow.” Hosts Amanda McNulty and Terasa Lott are joined by Clemson Extension Agent Rob Last, and Dr. Herrick Brown, curator of the AC Moore Herbarium.

We visit Hickory Top Farm in Eastover, SC and talk with Amanda Malanuk about their therapeutic riding program that helps individuals with unique challenges to gain confidence and improve motor skills. We also had the pleasure of talking with one of their riders, Winston Ridley, who shares what he enjoys about the program, and we watched one of Winston’s sessions to see his skills in action.

Later in the show, Terasa talks with Joseph Berry of PalmettoPride about a device called the Watergoat that acts as a trash barrier in streams, ponds, or lakes capturing plastic bottles that can then be removed and sent to an appropriate facility.

We hope you’ll tune in and enjoy this hour of learning about gardening and getting tips and suggestions from our panelists and special guests. That’s at 7pm on Tuesday, November 21, on South Carolina Educational Television. Hope to see you then.

December

Be sure to put a reminder on your calendar for December 12, at 7pm as we bring you a new episode of “Making It Grow.” Hosts Amanda McNulty and Terasa Lott are joined by Clemson Extension Agents Jackie Jordan and Rob Last along with Mary Vargo from the South Carolina Botanical Garden.

For our first featured segment, Ikebana Artist Lin Ko joined us once again in the studio a few weeks ago to create an arrangement inspired by Fall leaves and flowers.

Later in the show, we’ll revisit a trip to Historic Columbia where the Robert Mills House and the Hampton-Preston Mansion have 19th and 20th century Christmas decorations.

We hope you’ll tune in and enjoy this hour of learning about gardening and getting tips and suggestions from our panelists and special guests. That’s at 7pm on Tuesday, December 12, on South Carolina Educational Television. Hope to see you then.
