The Supreme Court 2016: It was a term defined by the death of Justice Antonin Scalia. Nevertheless, the High Court completed its work this week (June27) after handing down a number of decisions important to religious communities. The eight justices ruled on immigration, abortion, the so-called "contraception mandate" in the Affordable Care Act, and affirmative action in college admissions. Host Bob Abernethy and managing editor Kim Lawton discuss the cases and decisions with Richard Wolf, who covers the court for USA Today.

Trump and Clinton prep for conventions, terror in Turkey, and SCOTUS rules on abortion: Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton gear up for their party's conventions as talk about potential running mates escalates. Trump seeks a VP with the Washington experience he lacks as he continues the struggle to unite the Republican party. Meanwhile, Sen. Elizabeth Warren joins Clinton on the campaign trail. Will Warren attract progressive Democratic voters to Hillary? Mistrust still surrounds the former secretary of State as the investigation into her personal email account carries on. And heading into the July 4 weekend, global security forces are on high alert after a well-planned terror attack at the Istanbul airport left hundreds dead or wounded. Plus, the Supreme Court -- still operating with just eight justices -- issues its most decisive decision on abortion in 25 years.

This is the first documentary about the abandoned immigrant hospital on Ellis Island. During the great wave of immigration, 22 medical buildings sprawled across two islands adjacent to Ellis Island, the largest port of entry to the United States. Massive and modern, the hospital was America's first line of defense against contagious, often virulent, disease. In the era before antibiotics, tens of thousands of immigrant patients were separated from family, detained in the hospital and healed from illness before becoming citizens. FORGOTTEN ELLIS ISLAND is a powerful reminder of the best - and worst - of America's dealings with its new citizens-to-be.

Turning 315 billion pounds of plastic ocean pollution into sea-saving art: At the Smithsonian's National Zoo, a massive exhibit made entirely of 315 pounds of plastic pollution fished from the Pacific is on display. Called "Washed Ashore: Art to Save the Sea," it features 17 sculptures, from jellyfish to shark. The lesson? The ocean's deadliest predator is trash. In our NewsHour Shares moment of the day, Julia Griffin pays the plastic sea creatures a visit.

Virginia Theological Seminary's New Organ: At the Virginia Theological Seminary, a fire in 2010 destroyed the chapel and its beloved, 100-year-old pipe organ. Its replacement has now been built from scratch by Taylor and Boody in Staunton, Virginia. It is another mechanical pipe organ, nothing electronic, and it has received rave reviews. Seminary professor William Roberts describes the new instrument as "an organ that sings."

SHOULD ORGANS BE SOLD? Each day, twenty-two people in the US die waiting for an organ. Although a majority of Americans support organ donation, only a fraction are registered as organ donors. The introduction of a market for organs would probably decrease waiting lists and decrease deaths, but it a market could also incentivize dangerous behavior from both buyers and sellers and result in a drop in the number of altruistic donations. With so many lives at stake, we must ask: should organs be sold?

Hot in Cleveland? The city's new, cool Public Square: Just in time for next week's Republican convention, Cleveland has unveiled a $50 million renovation of its historic, 10-acre Public Square in the city's downtown. The landscape architect was James Corner, the same man behind New York City's celebrated High Line. The square is sure to be the site of expected protests next week. Corner says it's ready. Jeffrey Brown reports from Cleveland.

Struggles for power plant with White House backing raise concerns about clean coal: Clean coal technology is key to the Obama administration's plans for combating climate change. But a high-profile power plant, once a poster child for clean coal's promise, has run billions over budget in construction costs, faces federal investigations and allegations of fraud. William Brangham talks with Ian Urbina, who investigated the story for The New York Times.

SHOULD ORGANS BE SOLD? Each day, twenty-two people in the US die waiting for an organ. Although a majority of Americans support organ donation, only a fraction are registered as organ donors. The introduction of a market for organs would probably decrease waiting lists and decrease deaths, but it a market could also incentivize dangerous behavior from both buyers and sellers and result in a drop in the number of altruistic donations. With so many lives at stake, we must ask: should organs be sold?

A narrow frontier between warm and cold latitudes extends 500 miles from the Alaskan mainland, separating the tempestuous Bering Sea from the Pacific: the Alaska Peninsula, a cloud-cloaked land of active volcanoes, rolling tundra and the greatest concentration of the largest bears on earth. The writings of naturalist Loren Eiseley inspire this cinematic essay on a landscape where bears outnumber people and the sockeye salmon run is the most prolific in the world. At the base of the peninsula lies Katmai National Park, a wilderness larger than Yellowstone and Yosemite — combined. Farther down the peninsula, a giant volcanic caldera emerges on the horizon, so remote that more people climb Everest than visit Aniakchak National Monument. Alaska is warming at more than twice the rate of the rest of the planet. In KATMAI: ALASKA'S WILD PENINSULA, filmmaker John Grabowska profiles the remote Alaska Peninsula and asks how climate change will affect this magnificent land of wilderness and wildlife.

What is it like to be a dog, a shark or a bird? This question is now getting serious attention from scientists who study animal senses. Humans rely on smell, sight, taste, touch and sound; other animals have super-powered versions of these senses, and a few have extra senses we don't have at all.

From a dog that seems to use smell to tell time to a dolphin that can “see” with its ears, discover how animals use their senses in ways we humans can barely imagine. But it’s not just the senses that are remarkable — it’s the brains that process them. NOVA goes into the minds of animals to “see” the world in an entirely new way.

This is the first documentary about the abandoned immigrant hospital on Ellis Island. During the great wave of immigration, 22 medical buildings sprawled across two islands adjacent to Ellis Island, the largest port of entry to the United States. Massive and modern, the hospital was America's first line of defense against contagious, often virulent, disease. In the era before antibiotics, tens of thousands of immigrant patients were separated from family, detained in the hospital and healed from illness before becoming citizens. FORGOTTEN ELLIS ISLAND is a powerful reminder of the best - and worst - of America's dealings with its new citizens-to-be.

SHOULD ORGANS BE SOLD? Each day, twenty-two people in the US die waiting for an organ. Although a majority of Americans support organ donation, only a fraction are registered as organ donors. The introduction of a market for organs would probably decrease waiting lists and decrease deaths, but it a market could also incentivize dangerous behavior from both buyers and sellers and result in a drop in the number of altruistic donations. With so many lives at stake, we must ask: should organs be sold?

How sexual rivalry, fist fights and other shenanigans drove Ernest Hemingway: A photo of Ernest Hemingway sitting with a mischievous-looking group in Pamplona inspired Leslie M. M. Blume's new book, "Everybody Behaves Badly." It was 1925, a year before Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises," hit. The group was a volatile mix, complete with fights and sexual rivalries that inspired his writing, Blume tells Jeffrey Brown, in the last of our series on summer reading suggestions.

Would eliminating low-level offenses stop police shootings? Newshour Weekend special correspondent Chris Bury reports on new efforts in the Twin Cities of Minnesota to change how and when police interact with residents. In almost an opposite theory to what's been called "Broken Windows" policing, there is an organized move to eliminate many low-level offenses. This approach raises the question: Would many of the police shootings of young men of color happen, if they were never pulled over or stopped in the first place?

U.S., NATO troop buildup in Eastern Europe to counter Russians is largest since Cold War: Russia's 2014 annexation of Crimea radically changed the calculus between the West and Russia that has defined the last 25 years. NATO is now trying to reassure a nervous Eastern Europe and deter Moscow from new aggression. This level of tension hasn't been felt in a generation. With the help of the Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting, Special Correspondent Nick Schiffrin reports from Poland.

Explaining the ‘scandals, lies and incivility’ of the 2016 election to teens: Blurb: The 2016 election mudslinging from “crooked” Hillary Clinton and “dangerously incoherent” Donald Trump has even piqued the interest of teens — and made teaching high school civics that much more difficult. So it’s time to get creative, which one 12th grade government teacher has done with his ‘scandals, lies and incivility’ curriculum. Education Week’s Lisa Stark reports for the NewsHour.

Fatal shootings revive questions of race and policing, FBI closes Clinton email probe and Trump meets with GOP Congress: Five police officers were killed in a sniper attack in Dallas during a protest following two police shootings of black men in Minnesota and Louisiana this week, and political leaders were once again trying to respond to the tragedy. But action in Congress remains unlikely. Plus, despite calling Hillary Clinton's use of a private email server while secretary of State "careless," FBI Director James Comey recommended no charges for the presumptive Democratic nominee. And Donald Trump met with Republicans in Congress, hoping to unite the party just ten days before the start of the Republican National Convention.

Washington Week in Cleveland: Candidates respond to terror attack, Trump names Pence as VP and Sanders endorses Clinton: The 2016 campaign has once again shifted to threat of terrorism and how the candidates would respond to a major attack. Just days before the Republican National Convention meets in Cleveland to officially nominate Donald Trump as the GOP nominee, Trump announced Indiana Gov. Mike Pence as his vice presidential running mate. And Democrat Hillary Clinton won the endorsement of her one-time rival Bernie Sanders. Our panel reports on the state of the 2016 election from Cleveland, Ohio, the site of the Republican National Convention.

SHOULD ORGANS BE SOLD? Each day, twenty-two people in the US die waiting for an organ. Although a majority of Americans support organ donation, only a fraction are registered as organ donors. The introduction of a market for organs would probably decrease waiting lists and decrease deaths, but it a market could also incentivize dangerous behavior from both buyers and sellers and result in a drop in the number of altruistic donations. With so many lives at stake, we must ask: should organs be sold?

What is it like to be a dog, a shark or a bird? This question is now getting serious attention from scientists who study animal senses. Humans rely on smell, sight, taste, touch and sound; other animals have super-powered versions of these senses, and a few have extra senses we don’t have at all. From a dog that seems to use smell to tell time to a dolphin that can “see” with its ears, discover how animals use their senses in ways we humans can barely imagine. But it’s not just the senses that are remarkable — it’s the brains that process them. NOVA goes into the minds of animals to “see” the world in an entirely new way.

For tiny Estonia, deterring Russia requires major backup: Estonia is one of the smallest countries in NATO, and one of its most committed members. And it needs that alliance now more than ever. After 25 years of independence, Estonians have watched in horror as Russian soldiers helped destabilize Eastern Ukraine, fearing their country will be next. Special correspondent Nick Schiffrin reports in partnership with the Pulitzer Center on Crisis Reporting.
