June 10, 03:30-03:45 a.m.

MATH MONSTERS

"Mapping"

The Monsters are throwing a party and have sent out invitations. One of their guests, Binary Bill has no idea how to get to their castle from his computer shop. Multiplex draws a free form map with just a curving line and emails it to him. This doesn't work and Binary asks for landmarks. Multiplex quickly adds a few things that can be seen on route - but he doesn't draw them in the right order. This leads to confusion and a further refining of the map. Ultimately the Monsters leave the castle and go on site to label all the streets in their neighborhood. Then Mina flies up above Monster Land to compare the map to the actual territory. Our field visit is to a school bus driver who explains how he works with maps in order to pick up children.

June 10, 03:45-04:00 a.m.

MATH MONSTERS

"Time and Money"

The Monsters go outside to play and fly a kite. Since there is only one kite, they must take turns but how long should each of these turns last? Our field trip is to a clock maker who introduces us to the way human beings use analog and digital clocks to tell time.

June 10, 04:00-04:15 a.m.

MATH MONSTERS

"Patterns"

In this episode, the Monsters learn to recognize, describe, extend and create patterns. They have decided to paint a border around their living room. One Monster starts and asks the next to continue - but what exactly makes a pattern, and how can it be extended? Other Monsters decorate their rooms with flip patterns, number patterns and growth patterns. The field trip is to visit a naturalist who can help us understand more about patterns in nature.

June 10, 04:15-04:30 a.m.

MATH MONSTERS

"Counting and Symbolizing"

The Monsters are invited to help Cousin Digit do an inventory of fish at his fish store. Because the fish are moving around, it is difficult to get an accurate count. What can they do to determine just how many fish there are? How can they avoid double tagging? A variety of counting strategies are explored to help the Monsters come to understand one -to - one correspondence. Their first attempt is to actually draw pictures of the fish on a piece of paper to represent those in the tank. Another attempt involves the use of colored tally marks. Once the exact number of fish is determined, the Monsters explore ways to symbolize the information. The field trip is to a museum where we learn how other cultures and peoples who lived in earlier times symbolized their numbers.

June 10, 04:30-04:45 a.m.

MATH MONSTERS

"Computing"

One day, a brand new computer arrives at the castle that has been sent by Binary Bill. After unpacking and setting up the monitor, mouse and key board, the Monsters plug it in and turn it on - only to discover that Binary Bill has set certain challenges before the Monsters can log on. These challenges are in the form of exploratory math questions that get the Monsters (and viewers) seeing some of the playful sides of math. " Once the questions have been addressed, though not necessarily with the "one and only correct answer", the monsters are treated to some of the wonderful variety of communication and learning possibilities the computer provides in the form of email, the internet, calculations and games. The field trip involves a visit to a working mathematician who explains how she uses computers and other math tools in her work.

June 10, 04:45-05:00 a.m.

"James King; Verna Jones; James Adkins"

Del. James King; (R) Anne Arundel County, District 33a Delegate James King of Anne Arundel County and Sen. Verna Jones, District 44 of Baltimore City join Jeff on the State Circle Political Roundtable. James Adkins; Secretary, Maryland Department of Veteran Affairs The number of Army troops suffering from severe combat stress is skyrocketing, rising from just over 1,000 new cases in 2003 to more than 28,000 soldiers today diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder, according to the Army surgeon general. Maryland's Secretary of Veterans Affairs joins Jeff to talk about legislation recently signed into law by the governor that ensures that Maryland's over 10,000 veterans receive the behavioral health services they deserve. In collaboration with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, the legislation helps veterans throughout the state coordinate and obtain access to services available through the federal government and the State's public mental health system. The legislation also offers crisis services for severe problems that could become emergencies until longer-term services can be obtained, and creates a Veterans' Behavioral Health Advisory Board to identify gaps in services and make recommendations for further steps to ensure that all Maryland veterans and their families receive the support and services they require and deserve.
