Chasing News Issues/Programs List – 2nd Quarter, 2018

Date: April 2, 2018

Time: 4:00

ISSUES: Community / Transportation

NJDOT ILL PREPARED FOR BAD WEATHER

Monday's commute into work is treacherous and slippery with an expected 3 to 5 inches of snow falling until 2 p.m. and speed restrictions on some highways. The state recommended drivers reduce their speeds because of the road conditions. The snow got a jump on the plows this morning, with up to an inch accumulating in some areas before the first plows came through.

Date: April 2, 2018

Time: 3:50

ISSUES: Community / Children/Youth

PALM SUNDAY MASSACRE' KILLER NOW LIVES NEXT TO A DAYCARE

He killed eight kids and two mothers in one of the city's most infamous mass shootings, and as soon as he was sprung from prison in January, Christopher Thomas told authorities he was headed to his mom's Bronx home which is right next to a children's day-care center. Thomas, 68, was freed from upstate Shawangunk Correctional Facility after serving more than 32 years for the so-called Palm Sunday Massacre in 1984. At the time of his release, Thomas told parole officials that he would be living at the Beck Street home of his 87-year-old mom. A second day-care center is just five doors down.

New York's 1.1 million students have this week off, giving Richard A. Carranza, as of Monday the chancellor of the city's public schools, a chance to ease into running the country's largest school system. With 75,000 teachers and 1,800 schools, the job is a big leap for anyone. Mr. Carranza faces an additional set of challenges. He is new to New York and has never worked in the system, unlike his predecessor, Carmen Fariña, who spent 52 years in the city's schools. His new boss, Bill de Blasio, is a second-term mayor with likely ambitions for higher office and a reputation as a micromanager.

A bill that would allow local governments to accept property taxes in the form of charitable contributions passed the New Jersey Legislature on Thursday and landed on the desk of Governor Phil Murphy, who has endorsed the effort to circumvent the new federal tax code. The legislation, which passed the Assembly, 68-1, with one abstention, would authorize municipalities, counties and school districts to create charitable funds that could be used as a revenue source. Local governments could give tax credits to residents who contribute to the fund, allowing them to offset up to 90% of their own property tax bills and take a write-off on their federal income taxes. DEMOCRATS' RIFT

The conflict between Governor Phil Murphy and fellow Democrats who control the New Jersey Legislature hit a new high Thursday. Both of the state's top legislative leaders warned the new Governor not to let an outside group put pressure on lawmakers to get behind his state budget proposal as the clock to the June 30 deadline counts down. The men reacted to a report that Murphy's allies might launch a public campaign to pitch his budget, which includes tax increases that top lawmakers have not supported. The outside group that roiled lawmakers is called New Direction New Jersey, formed by a series of former Murphy campaign consultants and staffers, including Brendan Gill, Murphy's former campaign manager.

After all, Facebook already lets you "poke" people, whatever that means, and lets you broadcast your relationship status. If you ever download all the data Facebook has on you, you'll see it even keeps track of all the past partners you've listed on Facebook, even if this isn't visible on your profile.

New Jersey won a landmark ruling from the Supreme Court Monday that could lead many states to legalize betting on college and professional sports. The Justices ruled 7-2 that a 25-year-old federal law that has effectively prohibited sports betting outside Nevada by forcing states to keep prohibitions on the books is unconstitutional. The ruling could set the stage for other states to expand legalized gambling as a source of government revenue. Justice Samuel Alito, a New Jersey native, wrote the court's opinion in the case. Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Sonia Sotomayor dissented. It was a victory for the state's recently departed Governor, Chris Christie, who had challenged the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act, passed by Congress in 1992 to preserve the integrity of the nation's most popular sports.

DRUGS AND PROSTITUTION: WHAT MIGHT BE NEXT FOR NEW JERSEY

Politicians itching for new revenue are looking to tap new sources like legalized marijuana and sports betting, one-time vices that could suddenly become industries in New Jersey. With a quarter-century ban on sports betting reversed and talk of legalizing marijuana heating up, what could be next for New Jersey? Prostitution and sex work. Despite public acceptance of marijuana use, recreational as well as medical, the path to legalization has been slow-going, albeit enthusiastic. Sex work advocates also hope to take that first step and decriminalize sex work. Advocacy groups are pushing for decriminalization as it would lead to more safety for workers, access to police and the ability to unionize, said Derek Demeri, co-founder of New Jersey Red Umbrella Alliance, a sex work-advocacy group.

NJ PENSIONS

Should we be fuming that all these former NJ public servants are reaping more than $150,000 a year in pensions? NJ 101.5 lists 50 such people drawing the big bucks, with 3,000 or so pensioners earning six figures from the state's struggling pension system. Did they earn it over their lengthy careers in public service? Likely so. But NJ 101.5 is listing all their names and pension amounts on its website, and letting you decide the degree of outrage.

THIS IS NASA'S NEW PLAN TO DETECT AND DESTROY ASTEROIDS BEFORE THEY HIT EARTH

NASA has updated its plans to deflect potentially hazardous Earth-bound asteroids and none of them involve Bruce Willis. The White House Office of Science and Technology Policy released a new report today (June 20) titled the "National Near-Earth Object Preparedness Strategy and Action Plan." The 18-page document outlines the steps that NASA and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) will take over the next 10 years to both prevent dangerous asteroids from striking Earth and prepare the country for the potential consequences of such an event.

BRONX TEEN

In a case that provides potential new evidence of the emergence of the notorious Trinitarios street gang in Paterson, authorities are seeking to extradite a city man and five New York residents who were apprehended at a 3rd Ward home on Sunday in connection with last week's reported mistaken-identity slaying of a teenager in the Bronx. Court records say the six men arrested Sunday are all wanted in New York on homicide charges. The Passaic County Prosecutor's Office announced that an extradition hearing is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon in Superior Court in Paterson.

RED HEN

The Red Hen in Swedesboro has been flooded with angry messages, negative reviews and threats after Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders was kicked out of a similarly named restaurant located 312 miles away in Lexington, Virginia. Elizabeth Pope, the managing partner of the New Jersey restaurant, said they have received at least 600 phone calls, according to the Associated Press. Many people have been mistaking the restaurant in Virginia that has caused tons of controversy in the past several days. Sanders was asked to leave the Red Hen in Lexington after employees called the owner and expressed their concern. People have threatened the staff and the restaurant in Swedesboro, causing a message to be pinned at the top of their Facebook page.

ANGRY PARKLAND PARENT

The parent of a child killed in the Parkland shooting massacre ripped New Jersey state Senate President Stephen Sweeney on social media for not publicly supporting Governor Phil Murphy's push to increase fees for buying and selling firearms in the state. The move, which Murphy has pressed for months, was part of the budget proposal the Democratic Governor sent to legislative leaders from his own party in June. But it was not included in the budget passed by the state Senate and Assembly last week, leading to outcry from gun control advocates.

TOYS R US CLOSING

It marks the end for a company that sold toys, bikes, video games and birthday presents to millions of American kids. For half a century, Geoffrey the mascot giraffe invited children to its giant playhouses. Legions of adults who came of age in the 1980s and 1990s can probably still whistle the jingle: "I'm a Toys 'R' Us kid." Yet Toys "R" Us fell victim to the strong currents pulling specialty retailers into oblivion. Walmart, Target and other big-box retailers, stores that offered aisles of toys and everything else, too, began to erode its dominance. And then the emergence of Amazon sped its demise. Toys "R" Us will shut or sell all of its 735 stores in the United States, according to court documents filed early Thursday. About 31,000 workers in the United States will be laid off.

NJ BUDGET BATTLE

Al Gore took a break from trying to save the planet Thursday to help rescue Governor Phil Murphy in his budget battle in Trenton. The two-term Vice President pumped some of his political capital into a 42-word tweet, urging Murphy's Democratic Party foes such as Senate President Stephen Sweeney to stand behind Murphy's proposed tax hike on millionaires.
