NEWARK COMMUNITY GUNS

In Newark, guns are used in crimes and then hidden in communal places to avoid criminal possession charges. The growing number of community guns has led to children accessing them. The Newark Police has struggled to get the guns off the streets. The gun buyback program that takes guns back, no questions asked, has aided in getting guns off the street but criminals are using this program to get rid of guns that have become 'hot' or are related to multiple crimes. Many of the guns that are used in NJ crimes are brought over from Pennsylvania, despite NJ's strict gun laws.
