Description of program:

FOX SPORTS VOICES celebrates diversity in sports with interviews and stories of athletes creating change in their communities and breaking down barriers. Hosted by FOX Sports broadcasters Curt Menefee and Michael Strahan, the one-hour special illuminates the work of athletes who are uplifting their communities during this season of change and tells compelling stories of their activism.

After Las Vegas Raiders' defensive end Carl Nassib came out this summer, Curt Menefee spoke to R.K. Russell, a fifth-round pick of the Dallas Cowboys in the 2015 Draft who came out as bi-sexual in 2019. He spoke about his challenges and some that he thought Nassib may face.

Curt also talked to Chiefs TE Travis Kelce who opened a STEM lab for some disadvantaged kids in Kansas City, MO. After MLB moved the All-Star game from Atlanta to Denver, Curtis Granderson spoke about how MLB is trying to grow and hopefully attract more black Americans to the game. Tom Verducci sat down with Kim Ng, the Florida Marlins GM, and the first woman to hold that position in the history of MLB.

Shannon Sharpe spoke to NBA player DeMar DeRozan about his struggles with his mental health.

At the height of the USMNT's run in the 2021 Gold Cup, FOX Soccer Analyst Stu Holden heard from several players about racism in soccer and discussed what can be done to change that.

Title: Stand Up to Cancer

Issue: Charity

Description of program:

The entertainment community will come together for Stand Up To Cancer® (SU2C) and its seventh biennial roadblock televised fundraising special, supporting urgently needed research and new treatments for cancer. Anthony Anderson, Ken Jeong & Tran Ho, and Sofia Vergara will cohost. Common and Brittany Howard are the first of many during the special evening.

The COVID-19 pandemic has affected virtually every aspect of cancer care and research—causing delays in screenings, diagnosis, and treatment, and critically impacting the fundraising needed for innovative, high-quality cancer treatments and new approaches to cancer screening. The pandemic has also shed light on the longstanding health inequities that have affected cancer care and outcomes for decades. Leveraging the research community's sense of urgency instigated by the pandemic will be crucial in the continuing fight against cancer, and public support and awareness are a vital piece of that effort.

Stand Up To Cancer was established in 2008 by a group of women who wanted to galvanize the entertainment community to raise awareness and funding to accelerate collaborative cancer research and end cancer as a leading cause of death. Since its inception, SU2C has raised over $603 million to bring together more than 1,950 of the best scientists from over 210 leading institutions to collaborate towards ending cancer's reign as a leading cause of death worldwide. SU2C's research has contributed to nine FDA approvals for new cancer therapies, and 258 clinical trials treating more than 19,000 patients. Recognizing that improving cancer care is a critical need in medically underserved communities, SU2C began developing its Health Equity Initiative in 2017. The initiative aims to increase diverse enrollment in cancer clinical trials, fund innovative research that addresses cancer inequities, and raise awareness of the importance of cancer screenings.
