1/2/20 - 1:06pm 13:29 13:29

HOMELESSNESS - The Takeaway starts the hour with a look at the state of homelessness across the United States, and the rising trend of criminalizing those on the streets this winter. Last week, the Trump administration picked Robert Marbut [MAHR-bit] as the new director for the U.S. Interagency Council on Homelessness.... Marbut previously worked as a consultant on homelessness with cities and counties across the country, and he has a history of pushing for the criminalization of homelessness.

1/5/20 - 1:06pm 13:29 26:58

PUERTO RICO EARTHQUAKE - A 5.9 magnitude earthquake rocked Puerto Rico on Saturday... It's the latest in a series of quakes to strike the island over the last two weeks. Up next, The Takeaway talks to a reporter on the ground about this weekend's earthquake and its aftermath.

1/15/20 - 1:06pm 13:29 40:26

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH SPLIT - The United Methodist church recently announced a plan to split the church over fundamental differences on same-sex marriage. The plan, expected to be approved in the spring, would create a new "traditionalist Methodist" denomination that would continue to ban same-sex marriage as well as the ordination of gay and lesbian clergy.

POLITICS - In 2016, newspapers overwhelmingly endorsed Hillary Clinton, leading to anger from some readers and allowing President Trump to paint the media as against him and part of the Democratic party. As newspapers around the country prepare their endorsements for the Democratic Primary, The Takeaway looks at the ways that endorsements, and opinion journalism in general, has changed since 2016.

GUN RIGHTS - Thousands of gun rights activists are expected in Richmond, Virginia, today, to rally against a series of proposed gun control laws. The rally's organizers are calling for a quote "peaceful event" at Capitol Square. But some fear today could turn into a repeat of the 2017 Unite the Right Rally in Charlottesville that led to the death of one woman, Heather Heyer.

POLITICS-IMPEACHMENT - House managers began their case against President Trump yesterday. Each of the seven managers will continue to present different aspects of the case without any challenge from Trump's lawyers or GOP senators, who will get a chance to weigh in next week.

POLITICS- FIRST AMENDMENT - The Trump administration's hostile attitude towards the news media escalated over the weekend... following an exchange in which Secretary of State Mike Pompeo verbally berated veteran NPR reporter Mary Louise Kelly. For more on this... The Takeaway turns to Kelly McBride, senior vice president and chair of the Craig Newmark Center for Ethics and Leadership at the Poynter Institute, and Jane Kirtley [KURT lee], media ethics and law professor at the University of Minnesota.

COVID-19 - The death toll of the new Coronavirus that started in the Chinese city of Wuhan has now risen to at least 100. The virus has spread to at least a dozen other parts of the world... including Thailand, Hong Kong, the U.S., Taiwan, Australia, Macau, Singapore, Japan, and Canada. As fears about the Coronavirus spread, The Takeaway looks at global preparedness for outbreaks.

SEXUAL ASSAULT - In a downtown Manhattan courthouse, the trial of Harvey Weinstein has been moving quickly. The Hollywood mogul is accused of raping a woman in 2013 and sexually assaulting another in 2006. He has pleaded not guilty and denied all allegations.

IMMIGRATION/TRAVEL - On Friday, President Trump announced he would be expanding his controversial travel ban to include six new countries: Nigeria, Eritrea, Tanzania, Sudan, Kyrgyzstan, and Myanmar. This comes three years after his first ban restricted the travel of immigrants to the U.S., from predominantly Muslim countries. Coming up, what it means for countries like Nigeria, and what we might expect in terms of judicial challenges.

POLITICS-IOWA CAUCUSES - After months of campaigning, the Iowa Caucuses are finally over, well almost over.... The Iowa Democratic party says that due to inconsistencies in data, the results are delayed but could be released later today. Even with no results, many of the candidates believe they performed well, some even claiming victory before making their way to New Hampshire.

2/4/20 - 01:30pm 9:30 152:49

THE BRAIN-CTE - CTE -- that's chronic traumatic encephalopathy is often associated with repeated head injuries from football. For now, there is no reliable technology to detect CTE in the living...it can only be fully diagnosed after someone dies. Up next, The Takeaway looks at the latest science around CTE, and how CTE, and brain injuries, are discussed in the media, in sports, and the military.

POLITICS-IMPEACHMENT - Representative Steve Israel joins the show to discuss what's next for the Democrats, arguing that, in light of Trump's acquittal, Democrats should still keep exposing the misdeeds of Trump and turn their attention to 2020.

COVID-19 - The Takeaway, speaks with two journalists recently back from Wuhan and under quarantine for updates on the Coronavirus outbreak.

2/13/20 - 1:06pm 13:29 193:16

GUN VIOLENCE - In December, Congress approved $25 million for gun violence research, to be split equally between the CDC and the National Institutes of Health. It was the first time in over 20 years that federal funding had been approved for this type of research. Despite limited research...The CDC estimates that 40,000 people each year are killed from firearm related deaths.

2/17/20 - 1:06pm 13:29 206:45

IMMIGRATION-SANCTUARY CITIES - As part of its escalating crackdown on sanctuary cities, the Trump administration will be deploying dozens of border patrol agents in cities that have pushed back against its immigration enforcement policies, including Los Angeles, Newark, Houston, San Francisco, and more. The move is the latest in a series to put pressure on so-called sanctuary cities. The Takeaway looks at this latest development, how else the administration is targeting these cities, and what it means for those communities.

SEXUAL ASSAULT - On Monday, former Hollywood mogul Harvey Weinstein was found guilty of two charges in his sexual assault trial: rape in the third degree and criminal sexual assault in the first degree. He now faces 18 months to 4 years for the first, and 5 to 25 years for the second. However, the 12-person jury acquitted Weinstein on the other three charges, including the most serious ones. Coming up... The Takeaway looks back at the high-profile trial, what the verdict means for MeToo, and how this might impact conversations about sexual assault moving forward.

2020 CENSUS - 2020 will be the first time ever that most people will use digital technology to fill out the census... In the long run, this could help expand the reach and decrease the costs of the census, but the shift to digital also opens up the process to a number of cybersecurity threats.

WORLD AFFAIRS-IRAN/IRAQ - Host Marco Werman speaks with The World's Shirin Jaafari about the latest on the aftermath of the death of General Suleimani, digging into the rationale for the targeted killing now. Also, Iraqi MP Sarkawt Shams is worried about the political chaos that has engulfed Iraq in the aftermath of the Pentagon's assassination of a top Iranian general. He's concerned that the blow back will offer an opening to radical Iraqi groups. Shams tells host Marco Werman that although Friday's US drone strike has further splintered Iraq along sectarian lines, the nation is united in its desire maintain a relationship with Iran.

1/8/20 - 2:06pm 11:00 21:35

WORLD AFFAIRS - A DIPLOMAT PARSES TRUMP'S SPEECH/ TEHRAN'S PERSPECTIVE - President Trump made it pretty clear today in his remarks to the nation today that the military tit for tat with Iran is over. But what options remain for a less volatile relationship between Washington and Tehran? Marco Werman speaks with former NATO Ambassador Ivo Daalder who now heads the Chicago Council on Global Affairs. Then, Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei has called his country's missile strike on US targets in Iraq a "slap in the face" for the US. The World's Marco Werman speaks with Tehran University's Zeinab Ghasemi about the Iranian government's view of the rising tensions in the region.

1/9/20 - 2:06pm 8:35 30:10

WORLD AFFAIRS-PLANE CRASH - US intelligence official say the Ukraine International Airlines flight was mistakenly shot down by an Iranian missile. Host Marco Werman talks to AskThePilot's Patrick Smith about the likelihood of this theory. Many of the victims in the Ukraine International Airlines crash were Canadian or returning to Canada, and many were Iranian-Canadians. Host Marco Werman speaks to Payman Parseyan, former president of the Iranian Heritage Society in Edmonton.

1/14/20 - 2:06pm 9:30 39:40

IRAN-NUCLEAR SANCTIONS - Germany, Britain and France have challenged Iran over its resumption of nuclear activities and have formally initiated a dispute resolution mechanism under the 2015 nuclear deal. That process could lead to UN sanctions being snapped back on Iran. But analysts say the Europeans are actually trying to keep the agreement alive. Host Carol Hills speaks with Constanze Stelzenmuller, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution. The Trump administration has imposed severe sanctions on Iran as part of its "maximum pressure campaign." The goal of the campaign is to pressure Iran to renegotiate the 2015 nuclear deal. But in reality, these sanctions have led Iran's economy to the brink of collapse. Millions of Iranians are suffering as a result. Host Carol Hills gets the details from The World's Shirin Jaafari.

1/16/20 - 1:12pm 7:50 47:30

CLIMATE CHANGE-AUSTRALIAN BRUSHFIRES - BBC Reporter Shaimaa Khalil shares her accounts of death and devastation in the wake of Australian bushfires: destroyed wildlife sanctuaries, thick smoke in the cities and frustration over the lack of political action on climate change. With months of fire season still expected, Khalil says firefighters are looking to the sky and praying for rain.

An online petition with thousands of signatures calls for koalas impacted by the Australian bushfires to be relocated to New Zealand. But as The World's Amanda McGowan reports, ecologists say this approach has some major issues.

HUMAN RIGHTS-VENEZUELA - Since Nicolas Maduro came to power in 2013, 15,000 Venezuelans have been detained. The country now has the largest number of political prisoners in the Americas. Marco Werman speaks with Alfredo Romero, a human rights lawyer who provides pro-bono legal assistance to Venezuelan detainees and political prisoners. He says the government of Nicolas Maduro use of arbitrary detentions are a key form of political intimidation. Venezuela's economic and political crisis is displacing people faster than the Syrian civil war. Another two million people are expected to flee the country in 2020 -- and many of them are walking out on foot. This mass migration is putting a strain on Venezuela's neighbor, Colombia. Reporter Teresa Cotsirilos talked to one Colombian woman who's chosen to help the migrants... with little government support.

THE HOLOCAUST - Today is the 75th anniversary of the liberation of the Auschwitz death camp by Soviet troops in Poland. Around 90% of Poland's Jewish population was killed in the Holocaust. Even after the war, many Jewish families who remained in Poland hid their religious identity. The World's Orla Barry reports on Jewish life in Poland today. A new memoir of the Holocaust and World War II comes out tomorrow, it's penned by former resistance fighter in the French Resistance, Justus Rosenberg, who is closing in on 100 years old. Host Marco Werman tells his story.

COVID-19 - Chinese leader Xi Jinping vowed to defeat the "devil" coronavirus that's killed more than 100 people in China. But as The World's Patrick Winn reports, the government's efforts to contain the epidemic are hampered by the public's lack of trust. Marco Werman speaks with a Pakistani university student in Wuhan, in central China, where the coronavirus has led to the delay of the start of spring semester. He describes daily life for international students who have nowhere to go.

1/29/20 - 2:06pm 10:00 91:20

COVID-19 - Flights are cancelled, citizens are quarantined and foreign governments are trying to evacuate their citizens. Hosts Carol Hills talks with Dr. William Schaffner, infectious disease expert at Vanderbilt University Medical Center. They'll discuss the global effort to contain the respiratory illness, and whether the measures are based on evidence or fear. 'Coronavirus' is the name we're using to describe the respiratory virus that's captured headlines. But that's actually a family of viruses, and the specific name is still being determined. The World's Elana Gordon breaks down why it's so difficult to name a new virus.

COVID-19 - The World Health Organization convenes today to discuss the coronavirus and to decide whether the outbreak is a global health emergency. Host Marco Werman gets the latest from The World's Elana Gordon. The pharmaceutical company Inovio is one of a number of research facilities urgently trying to develop a vaccine for the deadly outbreak of coronavirus. The BBC's Global Health Correspondent Tulip Mazumdar reports from the company's labs in San Diego.

COVID-19 - China has been hit the hardest, by far, with the coronavirus outbreak. But people in Thailand are worried too, especially those who cater to tourists from China. The World's Patrick Winn reports from Bangkok. Former diplomat Nicholas Burns speaks with host Marco Werman about how the coronavirus outbreak could shape relations between the US and China, and Chinese president Xi Jinping's political future. With tens of millions of Chinese residents forced to stay indoors out of fear of infection, many have chosen to follow the speedy construction efforts in real-time. This large following has created the most unlikely heroes in these building sites. Host Marco Werman had details.

RUSSIA/UKRAINE - Since the beginning of the Trump presidency, both Russia and Ukraine have become major focuses in the US and internationally. The Mueller investigation and now the impeachment process have dominated the news cycle throughout President Trump's first term. Joshua Yaffa, the New Yorker's Moscow correspondent has traveled extensively to both Russian and Ukraine and he has now published a new book titled 'Between Two Fires.' Yaffa speaks with host Marco Werman about his unique perspective on the region.

2/4/20 - 2:06pm 10:30 130:10

COVID-19 - Shanghai, in southeast China, is far away from the outbreak of the coronavirus, but the city is still feeling the impact. A return to school and work after the Chinese New Year holidays has been pushed back, travel is restricted, and residents are required to send in daily reports on their body temperatures. As scientists race to get ahead of the spread of this new virus, and answer key questions, agencies like the World Health Organization warn of another problem: an "info-demic," the spread of false information. After the Shanghai stock exchange saw its single worst day of trade in five years, the world is watching to see how this epidemic will influence the second largest economy on the globe. Host Marco Werman speaks with David Dollar from the Brookings institution.

2/4/20 - 2:50pm 7:50 138:00

STATE OF THE UNION SPEECH - "Plus One." We've all been invited to something with those two words included. For a member of Congress, what to do with that extra ticket for tonight's State of the Union address can be a choice loaded with symbolism. Host Marco Werman talks with Rushan Abbas, a prominent Uighur human rights activist and the guest of Republican Senator Marco Rubio. Marco also speaks with Miguel Perez, an Illinois veteran who was deported following a non-violent drug conviction despite two tours in Afghanistan. Perez is the guest of Democratic Congressman Jesus "Chuy" Garcia.

2/11/20 - 2:06pm 10:45 148:45

COVID-19 - Matthew Smith and his wife are about to enter their second week floating in quarantine along with some 3,600 passengers and crew onboard the Diamond Princess, docked south of Tokyo. At least 136 of the ships' passengers have confirmed cases of coronavirus. Smith tells host Marco Werman about the experience. Then, after months of anti-government protests and street clashes, the demonstrations in Hong Kong are on pause. That's largely because of the coronavirus. The World's Patrick Winn reports.

2/17/20 - 2:06pm 13:00 161:45

COVID-19 - The Diamond Princess cruise ship, docked near Yokohama, Japan now has the second-largest cluster of individuals infected by the new coronavirus. At least 450 people on the vessel tested positive for COVID-19, the disease caused by the virus. The US State Department evacuated more than 300 Americans from the ship over the weekend. But Matthew Smith and his wife Katherine Codekas were not among those airlifted out. Smith tells The World's Marco Werman why he decided to stay put. A Chinese American family from California was visiting relatives in back in China when the coronavirus outbreak hit. They've been mostly stuck in an apartment for three weeks now, as The World's Monica Campbell reports.

2/24/20 - 2:06pm 10:15 172:00

COVID-19 - The World Health Organization (WHO) says this is not a pandemic, but some people are already making the connection. The coronavirus has now spread to South Korea, Iran, and Italy — and it's raising international concerns. The World's Elana Gordon joins Marco Werman to explain. One week ago, South Korea had 30 confirmed cases of the coronavirus. Today, the number is approaching 1,000 and South Korea's government is on high alert. But as reporter Kelly Kasulis reports from Seoul, people are anxious.

2/27/20 - 2:06pm 13:30 185:30

COVID-19 - When overwhelmed health workers combating the coronavirus in China need counseling, some reach out to Erjing Cui, a Seattle-based psychotherapist. Cui volunteers for a hotline called Yong Xin Kang Yi. That translates to 'Use Heart to Fight the Virus.' Host Marco Werman and Cui discuss the mental health problems right now for healthcare workers in parts of China. About 90% of the active ingredients used by US companies in drug manufacturing come from China. The coronavirus outbreak has put that dependence under scrutiny, and Congress is now taking up the issue. Marco Werman talks with Rosemary Gibson, author of China RX: Exposing the Risks of America's Dependence on China for Medicine. Muslims who have planned a pilgrimage to Saudi Arabia are cancelling plans because of the Kingdom's decision to ban foreign pilgrims from entering the country over coronavirus fears. Host Marco Werman speaks with Yasir Qadhi, an Islam theologian in Dallas, Texas.

3/5/20 - 2:32pm 9:35 195:05

WAR CRIMES - The International Criminal Court in the Hague today ruled that it will investigate alleged war crimes by the US military in Afghanistan, even though the US is not a signatory to the ICC. The World's Orla Barry reports from London. Afghanistan's government opposes the International Criminal Court's inquiry into US war crimes on Afghan soil. Roya Rahmani, Afghanistan's ambassador to the United States tells Marco Werman why her government isn't cooperating.

COVID-19 - German Chancellor Angela Merkel raised a few eyebrows and some alarm when she said that up to 70% of Germans could become infected with the coronavirus. How do epidemiologists predict the path of the coronavirus? Marco Werman speaks with Marcel Salathé, an epidemiologist at the École Polytechnique Fédérale de Lausanne in Geneva, Switzerland. Then anxiety is a fact of life in Wuhan, China, where COVID-19 has hit hardest. Reporter Rebecca Kanthor has the story on mental health at ground zero in Wuhan.

3/12/20 - 2:06pm 13:30 219:50

COVID-19 - Leaders from the European Union were not pleased when President Trump decided to ban most travel to the US from Europe without consulting them first. The World's Orla Barry reports from London. Then, caught in the chaos and confusion is The World's Lydia Emmanouilidou who is flying today from Athens, via Munich, back to the US. She tells Host Marco Werman about the mood at European airports. Finally, the number of Americans who have been tested for COVID-19 is in the thousands. The numbers of South Koreans: nearly 200,000 people. The US has been noticeably slow in getting people tested for the virus. Marco Werman speaks with Michael Mina, an epidemiologist at the Harvard T. H. Chan School of Public Health, on the value of testing and what's in it for the individuals, as opposed to the group.

COVID-19 - Germany has become the latest country to close its borders as European nations try to stem the spread of the coronavirus. Its borders with France, Austria and Switzerland were shut on Monday morning, except for commercial traffic. Host Marco Werman speaks to Berlin-based reporter Rachel Waldholz. Then, Paris held its municipal elections over the weekend — for Parisiens, it's not about who won the mayoral contest, but answering the question of whether they should even be going out to vote amid the coronavirus outbreak in the first place. Host Marco Werman speaks with reporter Anita Elash in Paris. Britain's approach to the coronavirus is at odds with most of the rest of Europe. Basically if you have a cough, stay at home. But critics say it could see over 80% of the population in the UK contracting the virus. Host Marco Werman speaks with The World's Orla Bary in London. So far, multi-lateral diplomacy hasn't been used to effectively beat back the coronavirus outbreak. Nicholas Burns, a former US ambassador to NATO speaks with The World's Marco Werman about what steps the international community could be taking together to confront the contagion, and who has the power to lead a global effort.

COVID-19 - A lab in Singapore is developing a new test for COVID-19 to determine if you've ever had the infection. That's hugely important for scientists trying to figure out just how lethal this new coronavirus really is. The World's Patrick Winn has the story. The coronavirus outbreak has also quickly become a worldwide economic problem and governments across the globe are coming up with stimulus plans. Marco Werman speaks with Matthew Slaughter, a global economics professor and the Dean of the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College. Iran is experiencing one of the worst outbreaks of the coronavirus in the world. More than 1,000 people have died and about 17,000 have been infected. Meanwhile, the outbreak has dampened Persian New Year celebrations for millions of Iranians inside and outside of the country. The World's Shirin Jaafari reports.

COVID-19 - South Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore have all been praised for "flattening the curve" of COVID-19 outbreaks. But these places can't celebrate just yet. They're seeing a spike in new cases. The World's Patrick Winn has the latest from Asia.
