Frank Stella: A Retrospective	:15 sec PSA	JULY	A joint exhibition with the Whitney Museum of American Art, Frank Stella: A Retrospective is a comprehensive exhibition of one of the most important living American artists, the first of its kind in the United States in nearly 30 years. Stella, the enormously influential and fiercely innovative abstract expressionist painter, gave his full support, lending complete access to his collection and archives. The exhibit opens Sunday and runs through September 18 at The Modern Art Museum of Fort Worth (3200 Darnell St.). With 100 paintings, reliefs, maquettes, sculptures and drawings, the exhibit highlights Stella's best-known work along with some rare pieces from the mid-1950s to the present. Countless series are represented here, chronicling early minimalist paintings through a progression into more complex and dynamic work. For more info, visit themodern.org.
Eye of the Collector	:15 sec PSA	JULY	What's the difference between hoarding and collecting? Well, hygiene, for one, and focus and curating. Basically, a hoarder's collection of mostly empty pizza boxes and utility bills will never find its way into a museum like The Perot Museum of Nature and Science (2201 N. Field St.). The museum will, however, present Eye of the Collector, nine different people's collections that range from historical to a little bit strange. Steve Sansweet's Star Wars collection will be there, which is so great, it's recorded as a Guinness World Record. Carla Eames Hartman will be there with her PEZ candy dispenser collection. Or if you're a fan of antique duck decoys, Ron Gard will be there with his. All of this begins Saturday and it's free for Perot Museum members. For non-members, admission is $24 to the museum, plus the special exhibit. For more information, call 214-428-5555.
