Anne Frank: A History for Today	:15 sec PSA	JANUARY	Anne Frank was one of more than a million Jewish children murdered during the Holocaust. Her diary gives us insight into her thoughts. This exhibit gives us insight into the family and world events that shaped her life. January 9 to May 31, 2016. Anne lived for nearly two years in a secret annex in Amsterdam, hiding from the Nazis. She kept a diary in which she recorded her fears, dreams and experiences. Anne's diary, published after her untimely death, is one of the most widely read books after the Bible. Her story has inspired countless children worldwide and is available in 67 languages. Anne Frank: A History for Today takes you beyond the pages of her diary by providing a wide perspective on the Holocaust, human rights, the Nazis, and the Frank family's experiences in hiding.
Plant Propagation Workshop, Texas Discovery Gardens	:15 sec PSA	JANUARY	Learn easy-to-implement techniques from an expert in plant propagation, Dallas county Master Gardener Roseann Ferguson. Bring home some plant starts to get your garden going
Taste of the Bishop Arts District, Dallas, TX	:15 sec PSA	JANUARY	THE WEATHER WILL BE PERFECT when we tour the eclectic and amazing Bishop Arts District on foot. We stop at many great restaurants/eateries including Eno's Pizza, Lockhart Smokehouse, Dude, Sweet Chocolate and Veracruz Mesoamerican Cafe for very generous samples (this is a LOT of food!). You'll also learn the colorful history of Oak Cliff and of the unique Bishop Arts neighborhood where Bonnie met Clyde, the trolleys ruled in their heyday and some of Dallas' most prolific inventors launched their brilliant ideas. Note: any drinks beyond water are on your own. All that is needed is a group of 8 or more people. Advance ticket purchase required.

Lively Storytelling on Canvas: Texas Folk Art, Amon Carter Museum of American Art	:15 sec PSA	MARCH	Texas Folk Art features the spirited work of some of the state's most original painters and sculptors, including H. O. Kelly, Reverend Johnnie Swearingen, Velox Ward, and Clara McDonald Williamson, among others. Developing their own styles, these artists were unfettered by the conventions of academic training and traditional guidelines of art making. Lively storytelling was their primary focus, and they used any pictorial means necessary to create animated narratives about working, playing, and worshipping in Texas. Because their subject matter most often derives from personal experiences, these artists created scenes reminiscent of Texas's past. Kelley, Ward, and Williamson, for instance, depicted scenes of rural life, daily chores, and family and community rituals that they recalled from their youth. These paintings are more than autobiographical memories; they are historical reminders of the state's rural past and evolving identity.

Adventure Awaits: Explore Dallas with Kwest, Dallas, TX	:15 sec PSA	MARCH	Do you hear that? That's Dallas calling you. Yes, you. Calling you to come explore all it has to offer. So ditch the status quo and find your Kwest: a scavenger hunt reimagined for the digital age. Using your smartphone as a guide, Kwest allows people to embark on a unique journey through different areas of Dallas, learn new things about familiar (or unfamiliar) places, and earn discounted swag from local merchants, as well as digital currency. You'll navigate your way through town via location-based riddles and puzzles, GPS compass-navigation, image recognition and even augmented reality. Watch, as Dallas comes to life through the eyes of your smartphone. And did we mention Kwest is FREE? (For a limited time only.) Currently, you can experience Kwest firsthand in Bishop Arts District, Dallas Arts District, Deep Ellum, historic downtown Grapevine, and Denton, TX. Coming to Arlington and Coppell soon! Download Kwest from the App Store to see what's near you! (Kwest only operates on iOS devices at this time. Sorry, Android.)
