KUNC, 91.5 – Greeley / Fort Collins, KRNC, 88.5 PROGRAMS ISSUES LIST NAME OF PROGRAM BROADCAST TIME DURATION Issue #1 - KUNC served the audience of Weld, Larimer, Boulder, Summit counties, and the greater Denver metro area by providing news coverage of environmental impacts and climate change. These issues are very sensitive to Coloradans, and KUNC aired several stories during the 4th quarter that informed the audience about the changing environment and climate change Wildfire smoke isn't just changing the sky color. It's also impacting your brain. Colorado has seen a record increase in wildfires over the past couple years, an even if a fire was not burning in the state, smoke from fires drifted across the Mountain West region. Now, new research is showing that exposure to wildfire smoke can have negative effects on the brain. 7am & 9am Newscasts and 4pm and 6pm Things Considered radio Ismoke can have negative effects on the brain.

A new study from Portland State University suggests that some of the Mountain West's gladers on hor qualify as gladers anymore due to their size and lack of movement. This impacts Colorado residents in Weld, Larimer, Boulder, and the greater Denver metro area - as dimbling gladers are a reflection of climate change. That's an issue the listening audience is keenly paying attention to. KUNC educated the listening audience about what's happening a cross the Rocky Mountain region.

Wildfire smoke can linger in homes, study shows. Many Colorado homeowners live near wildfire prone areas and are used to seeing smoke outside their window. But that smoke might linger in the home longer than previously thought, according to new research done by Colorado State and other universities. 10/4/2023 news programs Newscasts Morning Edition / All 10/16/2023 news programs Morning Edition / All Morning Edition / All 7am & 9 am Newscasts 1 minute 13 seconds 110/18/2023 news programs Newscasts 1 minute 13 seconds 110/18/2023 news programs Newscasts 1 minute 13 seconds 110/18/2023 news programs Newscasts 1 minute 13 seconds 110/18/2023 newsprograms Newscasts 1 minute 13 seconds Small town newspapers across Weld, Boulder, Larimer, and other small counties in the KUNE listening area continue to struggle after major printing press closure. They're vanishing in Colorado and across the country, according to a new analysis done for the Colorado Media Project. KUNC's Morning Edition Host, Nikole Bohismon Carroll interviewed a reported from the Colorado Sun about the topic. This issue resonates with listeners in Weld, Boulder, and Larimer counties as local news organizations have been assimilated by larger corporations, which lead to cutbacks. Construction balts on new NoCo Regional Airport air traffic control tower. The project to develop a more cost-efficient remote air traffic control tower has been in the works at the airport since 201s. The issue serves the listeners of Larimer country in particular as the NoCo Regional airport continues to be unable to provide air passenger service to DIA, creating a difficult commute for residents in Fort Collins. 10/4/2023 Morning Edition 4 minutes 30 second 8:45am 10/24/2023 All Things Considered 3:44pm & 5:44pn Tap water is precious. Its price tag may soon reflect that in Northern Colorado, including Weld, Larimer, Boulder counties - as well as counties on the Eastern Plains. Ashrinking Colorado River and aging Infrastructure are putting that water supply to the test. That means water bills are likely to go up in the near future. This issue serves the listeners of Weld, Larime, Boulder, and the n the No Co daily nodcas future. This issue serves the listeners of Weld, Larimer, Boulder, and the Eastern plains by informing them of upcoming water relatincreases. A second attempt is underway to repeal Fort Collins land use code changes. A rewrite of the land use code in Fort Collins was approved in October, and there's a fready a movement to repeal it. KUNE'S Nikole Robinson Carroll spoke with The Colorador's Rebecta Powell about what's happening now and what 10/25/2023 5:49am & 9:49an could come next. This directly affects listeners in Fort Collins, which is the bulk of KUNC's listening audience share. 11/1/2023 Morning Edition 8:45am 4 minutes 30 seconds Issue #3 - Housing Issues across Colorado, including the KUNC listening area. High housing costs affect all Coloradans, espeically those living in Larimer, Weld, Boulder counties, the Demetro area, and the Mountain commuties KUNC serves. KUNC News covered the issue through newscast and longer form reporting. The KUNC Newsroom tried to bring voices from 11/1/2023 4 minutes 30 : why rental owners are concerned.

Colorado Governor Polis convened special legislative session to curb spiraling property taxes. These taxes directly affect homeowners in Larimer, Soulder, Weld counties - saw leat as the mountain communities EUNG series. After his Democrast's tax relief plan failed in the general election, Governor Jarred Polis wanted lawmakers to come up with a plan to avert next year's sharp property tax increases. KUNK served the listening area by informint the audience about. Morning Edition / All Things Considered radi Jak microses. Now. Serve the instelling alled by minimining the abundance about plans at Colorado's capitol. High cost of living in Colorado extends beyond housing. We've talked a loot about housing on KUNC – not least of all about the high price tags. But there's more to Colorado's economic picture that makes it expensive to live here. The 11/10/2023 news programs 7:45am, 3:44pm, 5:44pm 4 minutes 30 se colorado Sun reporter Michael Booth joined KUNC's Nikole Robinson Carroll to liscuss the full economic picture. Morning Edition Issue #4 - Labor Right / Healthcare. Listeners across Larimer, Boulder, Weld counties - as well as listeners in the Denver metro area were affected by the Kaiser Strike in 2023. KUNC News informed listeners about the latest details on the strike, as well as airing several stories about the greater lack of employees in the healthcare industry. Among the major factors included the high cost of living in Colorado, burnout, and a lack of training from healthcare providers. Colorado's ambulance services are stretched dangerously thin, including in Weld, Boulder, Larimer counties and the greater Denver metro area. The crisis spells trouble for residents and overworked EMTs and paramedics. KUNC statehouse reporter Lucas Brady Woods sat down with In The NoCo's Robyn n the No Co daily podcast 10/10/2023 / newscast segment 5:49am & 9:49am The first day of the Kaiser Permanente healthcare strike in Northern Colroado Thousands of Kaiser Permanente healthcare workers in Colorado including Weld, Boulder, and Larimer counties have walked off the job for three days. They said they were stretched thin amid a serious employee shortage and better pay. This news coverage served the listening audience by informing In the No Co daily podcast about wait times, doctors visits, and prescription medications.

Health care workers across Colorado went on strike Wednesday to demand fai wages and better staffing from the health care company Kaiser Permanente. 10/5/2023 / newscast segment 5:49am & 9:49am Morning Edition / All 6am & 8am Newscasts and 3:30 and 4:30pm KUNC served the listening audience in Weld, Boulder, Larimer, and the greater Denver metro area by informing the audience during our top of the hour

10/4/2023

10/18/2023

news programs

Morning Edition / All Things Considered radio news programs Newscasts

7:45am, 3:44pm, 5:44pm

newscasts.

netro area.

8 minute:

Colorado students are experiencing a mental health crisis. One answer to the youther lahealth crisis? Asking Colorado students how they're feeling. Starting next year in some Colorado schools, students will be asked directly about their mental health. These screening questions are part of a pub to to identify more of the kids who are struggling, as the youth mental health crisis persists across the state. KURC news reported on this issue, which directly affects youth in 90kd, Laminer, Boulder counties, as wellast the greater Denver.