Short Description (250 Characters):

In the midst of repeated, outsized, and unprecedented attacks on the people of Gaza, we talk to Rashid Khalidi about his book "The Hundred Years' War on Palestine." We focus on the very early history of the Zionist movement in Palestine and his argument that it was, from the start, a settler-colonial endeavor.

Long Description:

For the last 6 months, the world has been witness to a humanitarian crisis in Gaza. Outsized, and unprecedented attacks on the people of Gaza, and support from western countries for these Israeli attacks have led to a situation where Gaza is being referred to as the world's largest open-air prison.

In this episode with Gaza-based reporter Rami Almeghari, we talk to Rashid Khalidi about his book "The Hundred Years' War on Palestine" in order to learn more about the very early history of the Zionist movement in Palestine and his argument that it was, from the start, a settler-colonial endeavor.
