1. Use enterprise/investigative journalism techniques to gather, analyze, interpret and report news related to education issues, producing broadcast stories, on-line features, enterprise reports, and spots for news and public affairs programming
2. Generate and develop ideas for stories, series and documentaries, working both independently and collaboratively with other reporters, producers, and Youth Focused staff
3. Within proper journalistic bounds, and in collaboration with Youth Focused staff, provide training to students participating in instructional programs such as "Youth Voice" and "Am Grad" (American Graduate) projects
4. Compose and edit content for accuracy, timeliness and proper usage
5. Serve as editor for content generated by students for the American Graduate program
6. Cultivate diverse sources, including under-represented segments of the population
7. Contribute to roundtable discussions, broadcast and multimedia talk shows, interviews and community engagement discussions of news and public affairs
8. Engage with the audience via social media, using station-defined best practices
9. Operate recording and other digital editing equipment, and computers with professional competency
10. Assist with other productions as assigned, including in-studio or field records for radio, television, and online media
11. Participate in WSKG fundraising and promotional activities
12. Professionally represent WSKG in the community
13. Other duties and special projects as assigned

Candidates should possess at least a Bachelor's degree in broadcast journalism or related field, or equivalent experience; experience with multi-platform reporting, submission of content to national programmers, and NPR production and writing standards; proficient announcing, newscasting, and on-air hosting skills; significant knowledge of reporting techniques and guidelines; ability to independently manage the online component of a project; and ability to work weekends and evenings as needed.

Additional preferred characteristics include an advanced degree in a related field; experience with live forum hosting and production, and as a newscaster or local host for national news-magazines; and experience reporting on education issues and coaching high-school aged youth.

Interested candidates should send audio samples, a resume (noting where this job announcement was found) and cover letter to Jobs@WSKG.org, mail to WSKG Public Media, Attn. Rebecca Vytlacil, 601 Gates Road, Suite 4, Vestal, New York, or fax to 607-729-7328.

Dear Donald Torrance,

I am hoping you can help me in letting people know of a reporter opening we have here at WSKG Public Media. WSKG is a radio, TV, and web public media station located in Vestal, New York, which is about 80 miles south of Syracuse. We are looking to hire a full-time reporter to focus on education-related issues of local and regional interest. This person will also be mentoring and helping to train high school students participating in journalism programs offered by WSKG.

The posting is attached in pdf format and it can be found online at <http://www.wskg.org/about/education-reportertrainer>. It is relatively entry-level and could be a great first step in someone's career.

Thank you,

Rebecca
