

KPBS
TV News Q4, 2023

Date	Evening Edition	Scheduled Time	Title	Story List
10/2/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The union representing thousands of health care workers continues negotiating with Kaiser Permanente. Then, it's Banned Books Week and one North County school district closed its libraries. Finally, the La Jolla Playhouse brings the elite world of Japanese sumo wrestling. KPBS looks behind the scene to look at the premiere of "Sumo."
10/3/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A South Bay organization is doing what it can for the thousands of migrants who arrived in the U.S. as funds run low. Then, the Chula Vista city officials break ground at Bayfront. Finally, KPBS goes to La Jolla and discovers how artists created a giant mosaic.
10/4/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A historic strike is underway. Tens of thousands of health care workers have walked off the job in several states, including here in San Diego. Plus, the battle over a biodiesel factory in Barrio Logan is pitting industry against neighbors. Why the factory's future is now uncertain. And a unique graduation ceremony. How these inmates earned degrees while serving time.
10/5/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Day two of the nation's largest ever health care worker strike. What progress has been made between Kaiser and union negotiators. Plus, the DMV office in Hillcrest is more than 60 years old and in need of replacement. How that site could one day become affordable housing. And a heat advisory is in effect for parts of the county. How hot it could get before a cool down arrives.
10/6/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The three-day Kaiser health care worker strike is almost over, but the battle may not be. We're live with an update from the picket line. Plus, asylum seekers have been arriving in Jacumba for a month now. Why migrant aid groups helping them say the situation is becoming increasingly dire. And a street in Barrio Logan will be renamed after a priest who spent decades in the community. How Father Brown came to mean so much to the neighborhood.
10/9/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Americans were among the hundreds of civilians killed during an escalating conflict between Israel and Hamas. Plus, a proposal poses to cut the financial benefits of adding solar to schools, farms and apartments. What does that mean for the state's climate goals? Finally, how local tribes keep their ancestors and traditions alive as Indigenous Peoples' Day approaches.
10/10/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	San Diego County leaders allocated millions of dollars to help migrants arriving at the U.S.-Mexico border. Plus, how one North County school district is helping students with their mental health. Then, why U.S. college students cross the border to attend schools in Tijuana.
10/11/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Soon millions of student loan borrowers will face the hard reality of paying back their debts. Plus, how the San Diego Zoo Wildlife Alliance is ensuring the survival of a threatened species. Then, a San Diego lawmaker shares her coming out story on National Coming Out day.
10/12/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Migrant aid groups have been warning about the dangerous conditions at a makeshift camp in between the border walls. Now, an asylum seeker has died. Plus, Jews and Palestinians here in San Diego are calling for action as the civilian death toll in the Israel-Hamas conflict continues to climb. And, reducing drug dependency. How local libraries are trying to help reach those who are most at-risk.
10/13/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Migrants continue to arrive in San Diego as aid groups wait for money promised by county leaders. KPBS looks at how the drop-off process could soon be changing. Plus, Coronado is working toward creating more affordable housing. Here's where city planners think there is potential for development. And it's known as the "Ring of Fire" — don't miss this weekend's rare solar eclipse.
10/16/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Medicare enrollment is underway. What's changing for seniors this year enrolled through Scripps Health? Plus, warmer weather is coming to San Diego. Then, a University Heights bridge showcases public art.
10/17/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Flavored tobacco is still being sold in San Diego after it was banned by local and state laws. What steps are local leaders taking? Plus, sand replenishment projects are up for consideration in North County. Then, a musical bridge in Golden Hill is the latest installment on KPBS' public art series.
10/18/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The growing civilian deaths in Gaza calls for humanitarian aid. How will the U.S. respond? Plus, there is a harassment allegation at a migrant shelter in Tijuana. See what aid groups are saying. Finally, it's been a year since Harborside Park in Chula Vista closed. What does it mean for families living nearby?
10/19/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	What one North County city is doing to help people living in their cars. Plus, Twitter has undergone a lot of changes since Elon Musk's takeover. How some local scientists say those changes have impacted their research. And a lesson in culture, heritage and remembering loved ones we've lost.
10/20/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A controversial biofuel plant that neighbors had long complained about won't be expanding after all. Why it's closing down instead. Though their records don't show it, SDPD still enforces curfew with juvenile diversion. One mother says her son's curfew arrest changed how she sees the police. And lowriders will be free to cruise across California, thanks in part to enthusiasts in the South Bay.
10/23/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	New efforts are underway to streamline the migrant arrival process at our border and get nonprofits the money needed to help asylum seekers. Plus, a North County city wrestles over how to maintain its beach town feel while complying with state housing laws. Then, KPBS' Public Art series takes its audience to Encinitas.
10/24/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Poway and the city of San Diego have considered homeless encampment bans. Now, San Diego County may have a similar idea. Plus, California and other states are suing Meta, the parent company of Instagram. They claim the app's addictive features are harmful to young users. Then, health care enrollment is here and premiums are rising. What should you look out for?
10/25/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	College students across San Diego County join a national Walkout for Palestine. Why some say the cause is personal. Plus, today marks 20 years since the start of one of the biggest wildfires in California history. Then, health care workers are reporting higher rates of poor mental health than they did at the start of the pandemic.
10/26/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A group of local republicans are calling for the border to close. KPBS fact-checks their claims about national security threats. Plus, why San Diego was recently named the most expensive city in the country. Then, KPBS heads to Imperial Beach for the latest installment to their public art series.
10/27/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The University of San Diego is facing a lawsuit following reports of hazing and harassment on the football team. And be prepared for major construction if you are headed to the airport. KPBS looks at how to navigate the changes. Plus, longtime San Diegans may remember seeing movies at the Unicorn Cinema. Here's how the theater's history is celebrated today.
10/30/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Santa Ana winds are elevating fire risks across California, including San Diego County. Plus, using electric power helps San Diego rapidly reduces greenhouse gas emissions, but the city's carbon footprint continues to rise. Then, North County's healthy art scene helps drive economic activity.
10/31/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Americans are among the hundreds of civilians killed during the escalating conflict between Israel and Hamas. Plus, what could it mean for the state's climate goals after an issued proposal to cut financial benefits of adding solar to schools, farms and apartments. Then, how local tribes are keeping traditions and ancestors alive during Indigenous People's Day.
11/1/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	One week after a USD football player filed a lawsuit over hazing allegations the school announced its athletics director is leaving. Plus, home sales are slowing down but prices are still high. Why real estate agents say that may start to change. And on this Día de Muertos why volunteers are keeping watch around the clock at a community altar in Hillcrest.

KPBS
TV News Q4, 2023

11/2/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A South Bay politician and her brother face felony charges after being accused of fraudulently obtaining COVID-19 relief funds. Plus, the lawyer representing those charged after a pro-Trump rally turned violent. Then, what Scripps researchers hope to learn by studying an underwater canyon off La Jolla Cove.
11/3/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A tech company based in Carlsbad lays off hundreds of employees worldwide, including those in San Diego. Plus, find out why a 12-foot-tall puppet named "Little Amal" is a symbol for refugee children around the world. Then, how local fishermen and chefs are coming together to feed families in need.
11/6/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	More than 100 people protested outside Sen. Alex Padilla's San Diego office, calling for a ceasefire in Gaza. Plus, how a supervisor says the centers mislead people seeking abortion care and what the county should do about it. Then, a KPBS investigation found out the most likely places to get a parking ticket in San Diego.
11/7/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	It's the last day to vote for special elections. KPBS goes live at the Registrar of Voters with last minute tips and when to expect results. Plus, Covered California open enrollment is offering new incentives to people who don't have health insurance. Then, a lawsuit accuses Rady Children's Hospital of secretly surveilling a teen patient and her parents.
11/8/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	There's a decisive winner in one local race, but another appears headed for a runoff. An update on the Special Election results. Plus, the San Diego Tourism Authority is reporting record-breaking numbers. What that means for our economy. And the surveillance used by Rady Children's Hospital in a failed attempt to prove child abuse is the subject of debate among experts. Part two of this KPBS investigation.
11/9/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Demonstrations across our county today as hundreds of people gather to call for an end to the war in Gaza. Plus, a hedge fund with a reputation for staff cuts now owns the San Diego Union-Tribune. How could that impact democracy in our region. And they won't take the pitch until 2025 but San Diego's new Major League Soccer team is working on building a home here.
11/10/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	San Diego County allocated $3 million to fund a migrant welcome center — but that money is already running out. Plus, the expansion of Terminal 1 at the airport is bringing changes to nearby roads, and not everyone is happy about that. And the San Diego Symphony kicked off the statewide California Festival in an unexpected place: Tijuana. KPBS looks at how this cross-border collaboration began.
11/13/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	San Diego County expects big changes in the weather. The first atmospheric river of the season is forecasted to arrive this week. Plus, a coach Brady Hoke from San Diego State is retiring at the end of the season. Then, KPBS shares stories about the gender-diverse community during Transgender Awareness Week.
11/14/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	San Diego Padres owner Peter Seidler died today. How the Friar Faithful are paying their respects at Petco Park. Plus, a new county program is trying to give people in immigration court legal representation. Then, why the humane society's plea to help clear their overcrowded animal shelters became urgent.
11/15/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Scattered showers, flashes of lightning and roars of thunder as the first storm of fall arrives in San Diego County. Plus, it's not just the rain, but the dropping temperatures that are posing a threat to migrants camped out in Jacumba. What aid groups are doing to help. And the airport is celebrating a construction milestone just ahead of the busy holiday travel season.
11/16/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Pandemic-era food assistance may be over, but food insecurity remains. Plus, California regulators approved new rules for solar panels that advocates say removes financial incentives. And the colorfully painted piano we first showed you over the summer now has a permanent home at a local school.
11/17/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A plan to address the homelessness crisis is running into opposition from neighbors. Plus, as migrants continue to arrive at our border, government resources are running out quickly. How a local church is stepping in to help. And, families who lost loved ones in traffic collisions are calling for change. Where San Diego stands on its goal of making streets safer.
11/20/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	It's been a blustery day, especially in mountain communities. KPBS will have the latest forecast on how long these strong winds are expected to last. And, multiple storm systems threatening the southern U.S. are set to complicate holiday travel plans for many. Then, how the emerging lithium economy has big potential in Imperial County.
11/21/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Israel and Hamas reported to nearing a deal to release 50 women and children held hostage in exchange for Palestinian prisoners. Then, a local nonprofit received $3 million from San Diego County to run a center for asylum seekers, but critics say the money is misspent. Finally, December Nights in Balboa Park is coming soon, but a plan to limit bus services to the event is being criticized.
11/22/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	It's the busiest travel day of the year, according to AAA. How things are going for those with plans to getaway this Thanksgiving, and the impact weather is having. Not all climate change solutions are big and expensive. The latest on an idea that uses rain barrels in Imperial Beach. There's limited access to fresh produce for San Diegans in disadvantaged areas. But a new program looks to change that.
11/27/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Law enforcement is on the lookout for shoplifters as the holiday shopping season approaches. But is retail theft that big of a problem? Next, although the pandemic is over, it looks like remote work is here to stay. What does that mean for future transportation in the San Diego region? Then, the San Diego Public Library is helping to expand the availability of banned books nationwide.
11/28/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A new report is highlighting the "real cost" of living in San Diego. Plus, Scripps scientists will attend the United Nations Climate Conference. Then, a Polynesian crew sails around the world.
11/29/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A Poway Unified controversy known as "Clapperate" is heading to court. KPBS reveals why a lawsuit has been filed against the superintendent and district. Plus, credit unions have a reputation for forgetting people over profits, but a KPBS analysis shows they rely on overdraft fees. Then, the San Diego Humane Society is asking for help to identify two abandoned horses.
11/30/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	It's billed as a battle of political heavyweights — but is there any substance to tonight's debate between Governors Newsom and DeSantis? Plus, more migrants than ever are ending up in the hospital after falling from the border wall. Why some doctors are calling it a public health crisis. And, Tibetan monks are visiting North County spreading a message of peace, compassion and love.
12/1/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Thousands of people are expected at Balboa Park for December Nights this weekend. Here's what you need to know before you go. Plus, California's solar industry will lose 17,000 jobs by the first quarter of 2024. KPBS looks at what's driving the decline in solar installations. And could lithium be the new gold rush? Some believe that mining could revitalize the Imperial Valley financially.
12/4/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	California State University faculty members are going on strike one campus at a time. The demands they're making. Plus, the state has declared a new citrus quarantine in Valley Center. What that means for growers and the millions of dollars in fruit they produce. And controversy is brewing over several benches removed from Swami's Beach. Why some believe it's about more than routine maintenance.

KPBS
TV News Q4, 2023

12/5/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The San Diego City Council is declaring a behavioral health bed crisis. What that means, and how it clears the way for more facilities. Plus, anchovies may be small, but they play a big role in the ocean's food chain. Now research reveals why the fish population cycles in booms and busts. And jumping in the name of science! Why students across the county were hopping and stomping around.
12/6/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A proposal to raise a certain flag is now raising questions in North County. What Oceanside city officials are considering tonight. Plus, San Diego's affordable housing agency will soon have a new leader. Who has been tapped as CEO, and the challenges they face. And this was one engineer's idea of "the car of the future" back in the 1980s. How the prototype sports car achieves unheard of gas mileage.
12/7/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A proposed ballot initiative would make it easier to prosecute drug overdose deaths as homicides. Why some say that could lead to unintended consequences. Plus, it's the first night of Hanukkah. How the Jewish Festival of Lights is sending a message of hope during a dark time. And if you want to get a real Christmas tree this year, there's a more sustainable option in North County.
12/8/23	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A pedestrian crossing at the border is closing Saturday, with federal agents citing an increase in asylum applications. KPBS looks at the potential economic impacts. Plus, Imperial County is getting millions of dollars in federal funding to mitigate the harmful environmental health effects of the drying Salton Sea. And an artist's work is deemed too woke for the San Diego International Airport.
12/11/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A pedestrian crossing at the border is closed. KPBS investigates how it will affect small businesses that rely on cross-border traffic. Plus, a fallout from a cyber attack that disrupted services at a North County hospital has some to question what may have happened to patient information.
12/12/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	San Diego County's district attorney testified in a congressional hearing about retail theft. She says it's about more than stolen merchandise. Plus, San Diego Pride is going through changes in leadership. Who is seeing the organization through this transitional period? And what's next? Finally, KPBS takes you on a tour through the property that was once home to a woman known as Betty Crocker.
12/13/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Housing construction is about to get super-charged in San Diego with the goal of incentivizing more affordable options. Plus, the city recently created two new parking districts in San Ysidro and Kearny Mesa. How parking meters can help create more walkable neighborhoods. And sparks fly as students learn welding aboard the USS Midway.
12/14/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A Camp Pendleton Marine killed in a rollover crash on base has been identified. Why a father who lost his son in a similar crash says not enough is being done to prevent these accidents. Plus, do parents have the right to know if their child identifies as transgender at school? How the legal battle is playing out here. And taxi drivers are getting their own app to compete with rideshares.
12/15/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Advocates for asylum seekers are tracking family separations at the border. How they say it's been happening. Plus, San Diego County's Sheriff has proposed a 500 million dollar plan to modernize aging local jails. But advocates say problems in the jails go beyond the buildings. And a holiday festival in the South Bay this weekend is offering entertainment as well as a life-saving opportunity.
12/18/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A recent ruling clears the way for redevelopment in the Midway area. What's next for the project. Plus, after more than three decades serving the LGBTQ+ community, Auntie Helen's is closing its doors. Why now as we look back at the thrift store's early days. And how a plan for sand replenishment in North County could be a model for other coastal cities.
12/19/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Highly purified sewage water can now go directly into California's drinking water supply. What do the new rules mean for San Diego County? Plus, why flight attendants are picketing at the San Diego International Airport. Then, a new analysis reveals a closer look at Chula Vista's parkland divide.
12/20/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	Stormy weather is making its way across California, posing a threat to holiday road trips. What you need to know before you go. Plus, MTS is still working to get service back to pre-pandemic levels. How it's trying to reduce wait times at transit stops. Finally, colorful murals that once decorated the Mexican side of a border wall are gone. But now artists are working to replace them.
12/21/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	With a storm approaching and temperatures dropping, migrant advocates are raising concerns about encampments near the border. Plus, rain is already soaking parts of Southern California. Here's what to watch out for. And we are counting down to Christmas. KPBS looks at where you can celebrate the holiday spirit throughout the weekend.
12/22/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A man is finally free after being stuck in a hole in Sunset Cliffs for hours. What made the rescue especially challenging. Plus, thousands of homes could hit the market in the coming years if San Diego decides to allow the sale of accessory dwelling units. And privacy advocates are raising concerns as Customs and Border Protection expands its surveillance capabilities along the border.
12/26/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	KPBS hears from local high school students about what they're learning about the war in Israel. Plus, there are concerns over artificial intelligence and its impact it may have on democracy. Then, find out where San Diegans can dispose of their Christmas trees safely and for free.
12/27/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	U.S. senior officials meet with Mexico's president about the record number of migrants crossing the U.S.-Mexico border. Plus, a beloved San Diego tradition returns to Petco Park. Here's everything you need to know about tonight's Holiday Bowl. Then, it's not your typical opera. A look back at the horror-inspired production "Ghosts."
12/28/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	A high surf and coastal flood advisory is in effect at our local beaches. In July, a New York hedge fund with a reputation for staff cuts bought the San Diego Union Tribune. KPBS explores how the purchase could impact democracy in the county. Plus, inside the "whodunit" streaming next month that was made on a budget.
12/29/2023	5&6:30	28:51:00	Evening Edition	The U.S. military is changing how it prosecutes sexual assault and other serious crimes, but will this long-awaited change increase the number of prosecutions? Also, KPBS looks at the new laws and the need for more funding for child care in 2024. Plus, KPBS explores the beloved Hotel Robinson in Julian and its connection with Black history.