For programming that, in whole or in part, "communicates a message relating to any political matter of national importance," list the matters below:

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to recognize that a problem exists. This involves gathering information about the situation and identifying the specific issue that needs to be addressed.

2. Once a problem has been identified, the next step is to define the problem clearly. This involves stating the problem in a concise and specific manner, identifying the scope of the problem, and determining the goals that need to be achieved.

3. The third step in the process is to generate potential solutions. This involves brainstorming ideas and considering different approaches to solving the problem. It is important to consider a wide range of options and to evaluate the potential benefits and drawbacks of each solution.

4. The fourth step is to select the best solution. This involves comparing the potential solutions and choosing the one that is most likely to be effective and feasible. It is important to consider the resources available and the time constraints when making this decision.

5. The final step in the process is to implement the chosen solution. This involves putting the solution into action and monitoring the progress. It is important to communicate the solution to all relevant parties and to ensure that everyone is working towards the same goal.

I represent that the payment for the above described broadcast time has been furnished by:

Lois Wakimoto
