Slug: FULL BUS PKG

School officials at Beloit Turner say it's a tragic example of why it's so important to hold drivers accountable and why they took action year ago after a number of close calls in their own district. The district mounted cameras on some of its school buses in hopes of capturing law breakers on video. But a year later, was it worth the investment? Andrew Merica is digging deeper into how well the cameras are holding drivers accountable and keeping kids safe.

Slug: DHS ALERTS

Right now -- many communities in Wisconsin are still struggling with an opioid problem. In 2018 -- the Wisconsin Department of Health Services reported 181 opioid deaths in our area and 609 people were hospitalized for an opioid overdose. In that same year -- DHS started a new effort to alert counties when there's a spike in suspected overdoses. Wake Up Wisconsin anchor Nick Buffo is digging deeper into how these alerts are helping combat the state's drug crisis.
