GUESTS ADDRESSING THE PROBLEM:

Harry Mathias, Superintendent, Central Columbia School District

DESCRIPTION OF DISCUSSION/NEWS:

This interview program focused on the unique and highly successful career tract oriented high school curriculum and facilities at the Central Columbia School District. We discussed the freshmen career identification process, the facility and staff changes which target possible careers for students.

We aired a 20-minute interview recorded at the high school so we could see the school and the students first hand. We were reporting on the district's innovative and comprehensive, four-year, career intensive pre-college/job/college/life-long-learning program they call...high school. We talked about how the building was altered to handle the student/graduation centered program that looks more like a Penn State/Trade School/Career-mini-college than a high school

PROBLEM ADDRESSED: The issues associated with:

- 46) Poverty. Local families living on the margin, food insecurity and the cycle of poverty.
- 47) Transportation. In a rural area, with no mass transit, rides to work, higher education and health care is an issue.
- 48) Substance abuse. The opioid crisis, the impact of addiction and overdoses, and the impact on lives and families.
- 49) Diversity. Our area can be very insular, bullying issues in schools, and blatant incidents occur.
- 50) Children, youth and teens. Making sure that education, early childhood initiatives, and family opportunities are discussed and talked about.

GUESTS ADDRESSING THE PROBLEM:

Dr. Anthony Ragusea, Psychologist, Evangelical Community Hospital

DESCRIPTION OF DISCUSSION/NEWS:

This interview program focused on suicide prevention, including among teenagers. We talked about the pressures from adults and teens face from job loss, adolescent issues and past trauma can be factors in a suicide. We talked about how professionals can often miss the signs of suicide and what we all should be looking out for.

We aired a 20-minute interview with the guest as Evan is providing additional services to the families of people laid off from the Wood-Mode plant. We discussed the pressures families after job loss and how people can get help. We talked about the hard to spot signs of suicide among children.

He was on WKOK Sunrise, as a guest, and then excerpts of his remarks were used to generate news stories in Daily Local Newscasts on WKOK, WEGH, WMLP, WQKX and WVLY. The stories discussed the issue and proposed solutions. The stories aired occasionally in the above scheduled newscasts.
