FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Jan 7	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Step-Grand parenting. Many people are becoming step-grandparents either because they got married later in life or because a son or daughter is now a stepparent. They are asking what is expected. Be a catalyst for inclusion. Have an open spirit toward both the new people and the old ones. A great way to love your grandchildren is to love your step-grandchildren. Love for all. That's what grandparents are for.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Jan 19	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal - Co-Parenting: Spy Kids. When children are living between two homes don't ask your child to be a spy for you. Questions put your child into a loyalty bind that makes them feel guilty for loving people. It hurts your child. So instead give your kids your permission for them to love others. It won't take anything away from you but it's a huge blessing to them.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Jan 21	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Helping the Irresponsible Become Responsible. One way parents can help an irresponsible or unmotivated child is to change the child's environment; the boundaries and consequences that you set. But if it is an irresponsible co-parent you have a bigger problem because you do not control their environment. What you can do is manage yourself. Do not repay evil for evil. Keep your obligations. In other words, instead of trying to change them change yourself to be more like Christ.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Jan 26	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Insecurity Leads to Competition. In stepfamilies sometimes family members compete. Generally speaking in a biological family when a parent gives time and care to their child they are also caring for their spouse. But in stepfamilies when time and energy is given to someone else it can feel like a threat. A stepparent may resent the time their spouse gives to the children or children may feel jealous of the time their parent gives to the stepparent. The issue here is insecurity. So you do not feel the need to compete remind yourself that God provides us with an endless amount of love. You have more than enough love for everyone in your life and they have more than enough love for you. There is no need to feel insecure or compete.

FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Feb 2	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Stepparenting: Bonding Tips. Emotional bonding should be your first priority. Stepchildren of every age are like everyone else. They want to know how much you care before they care how much you know. If you have natural connecting points make the most of them. Take interest in things they are interested in. Or if they are interested in your talents or skills share what you are good at. Teach them to play the guitar or build something for the house or use a software program. Find things that make both of you smile and share them.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Family Life Blended	Feb 15	6:23a 4:24p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Stepparenting: Love the Hurt Child. Many parents today are attempting to love foster children, adopted children, and stepchildren who have been hurt by others. But despite the parent’s good intentions sometimes the child puts up a wall. So here’s a thought. Don’t try to break down their wall. Just hang out as close to their life as you can. Ask about their day, support their interests, and try to share a smile when they will let you. Take what they give you and love them with the same stubborn love that Jesus loves you with. It softened your heart maybe it will soften theirs, too.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Parenting Today’s Teens	Jan 19	8:23a 6:24p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – When it comes to raising healthy kids every parent has their own style. However, if you have teenagers at home a couple of things are non-negotiable for parents. As your kids grown up, you’ll need to revise your parenting style to adapt to their state. When your kids get older you need to move from lecturing to discussing; from demanding everything to asking their opinion about everything; move from seeing everything that’s wrong to finding more what’s right; move from nonstop talk to nonstop listening. Yes, express your creativity in raising your kids but be sure to adapt to the changing stages so that you engender their trust and nurture their independence.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Parenting Today’s Teens	Feb 16	8:23a 6:24p	60 sec	FM	Mark Gregston – Parents are wired to rescue their children when the water gets too deep, it is natural. But too much protection can backfire. Unfortunately, our generation focuses more on protection that it does not preparing kids to survive. Which is why so many teens are ill-equipped to meet the world. They do not grow up because we do not let them; even though most teens are capable of intellectual and biological adulthood. Our well-intended actions to shelter them does nothing more than stunt their growth. If your child is drowning the for sure jump in and rescue him but if he is just floundering in the water a little over their head, stand back and let him learn to swim. Parenting teens is not for the faint of heart.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Real Family Life	Jan 21	5:24a 3:24p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Hugs and Kisses. Can you give a child too much affection? As a child develops into a young man or woman some parents wonder if it is appropriate to express physical affection...hugs and kisses are needed more than ever. In fact, studies show that teens who seek early sexual experiences are often emotionally needy. This is especially true of girls who don’t feel close emotionally and physically to their fathers. Children who don’t receive affection from their parents can use sex to meet their identity needs. A parent who lovingly hugs their son or daughter is sending a wonderful message - you are worthy, you are worthy of attention and affection from the person who loves you the most.
FAMILY AND CHILDREN ISSUES	Real Family Life	Feb 7	5:24a 3:24p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – The End. Sometimes thinking about death can give us the right perspective about life. If you knew when you were going to die most people would focus more on their family and let them know grieving is OK. Have deep conversations, laugh, tell people how proud you are of them, tell people how much you love them and prepare them for the death and for the eternal issues that really matter If you only had a year to live would you make some lifestyle changes?
