

Public Interest File January 10, 2015
The Faith Middleton Show

Monday, October 20

Faith hosted a call-in show with Veterinarian Dr. Todd Friedland. On this show they discussed animal behavior as well as pet insurance, animal rescue, illnesses and other related topics. Issues discussed: Consumer services, Environment, Public safety, health and welfare, etc.

Wednesday, October 22

Faith hosts a weekly food show called The Food Schmooze. The show celebrates food and offers interesting information about the flavors of other cultures, cooking techniques and new products. Each week the show features different cookbook authors as well as featured recipes. Issues discussed: Agriculture, Culture, Education, etc.

Monday, November 3

Travel + Leisure magazine's Trip Doctor, Amy Farley, joined Faith for a call-in on travel tips. Farley is always prepared to recommend the latest apps and websites for saving time and money. They also talked about hidden fees and surcharges on airlines and at hotels as well as responsible eco-conscious travel ideas and destinations. Issues discussed: Consumer services, Government, Recreation, etc.

Thursday, November 20

Faith hosts a regular book show where she features a panel of guests that include literature professors, authors and book lovers. The purpose is to discuss their current favorites as well as the classics. Listeners are encouraged to call-in with their recommendations as well. Issues discussed: Education, Culture, Recreation, etc.

Monday, December 8

Faith talked with Dr. Raphael Kellman, a specialist in functional medicine and intestinal health, about his book The Microbiome Diet. The microbiome is said to be a whole inner world that lives within our intestines and helps extract the nutrients from food, balance mood, and sharpen clarity and focus. Dr. Kellman developed the first diet based upon scientific breakthroughs in his field.

Issues discussed: Consumer services, Education, Environment, etc.

Monday, December 22

Faith talked with members of an organization using psychics around the world to help law enforcement find those who are missing or long presumed dead. She talked to one of the psychics used in cases, and to the retired federal agent who founded the organization Find Me. They discussed one case in particular that involved investigators, police, handwriting analysts, facial recognition experts, and artificial intelligence.

Issues discussed: Civic, neighborhood and fraternal organizations, Professions, Public safety, health and welfare.