

Federal communications commission quarterly public issues file for July, August, September 2021

July 13, John Ward, Woonsocket city council vice president, talking about Woonsocket city issues

July 14, mayor lisa baldelli-hunt, talking about Woonsocket city issues

July 21, superintendent of schools Dr. Patrick McGee and school committee chairman Paul Bourget talking about education issues

July 28, governor Daniel McKee talking about issues concerning the state of Rhode Island especially COVID-19 and vaccinations

August 10, state representative Robert Phillips district 49, talking about issues concerning the Rhode Island general assembly and legislation before it.

August 17, councilmember Valerie Gonzalez, woonsocket city council , talking about issues facing the city and the use of American federal rescue funds for cities and towns.

August 18, mayor lisa baldelli-hunt talking about city issues like vaccination rate , new budget for the city and tax collections.

August 30, Katherine Taylor, executive Director of AARP Rhode Island talking about the issues of senior citizens.

September 14, city Council president Dan Gendron talking about

Woonsocket city Council issues including road repair, trash collection, orders from waste water treatment plant, construction of Woonsocket water plant.

September 15, city public works director Steve D'Agostino talking about sidewalk and road repair, and the need for workers in the highway in public works department.

September 29, chairman of the Autumnfest steering committee Garrett Mancieri and Autumnfest grand marshal Jennifer Jolicouer talking about Woonsocket's annual community event called Autumnfest.