Description of program

This week, finally after 11 days of testimony from 45 people, a jury on Tuesday found former police officer Derek Chauvin guilty of murdering George Floyd in Minnesota, whose death sparked protests across the country and the world in favor of equality. racial.

The jury found, unanimously, that Chauvin is guilty of second degree murder, third degree murder and second degree murder.

In many cities they were preparing for the worst and a series of demonstrations that could turn violent. A day later, the nation's attorney general announced that the Department of Justice was launching an investigation to determine whether there is a "pattern or practice of discriminatory policing" at the Minneapolis Police Department. We talked about this and more with criminal defense attorney Carlos Salvado.

When: April 25th. 2021 (Saturday 11:00 pm / Sunday 6:00 pm)

Length: 8' 58"

Description of program

This week the Earth Day was celebrated, the terms global warming and climate change resonated in the media and social networks like every year. Both terms have become politicized and are often used interchangeably, according to experts, "global warming" is the global increase in surface temperatures and "climate change" includes both global warming and its effects on the climate.

We talked about this and more with Vanessa Cárdenas, a Democratic strategist for the Climate Power organization.

And just that we talk about Earth Day, when we think of NASA, we associate the agency with rockets that are launched to other planets and astronauts on the space station. But I tell you that NASA has a variety of missions that study changes in the earth: From sea level rise to hurricanes, To celebrate Earth Day we have from the jet propulsion laboratory in Pasadena, California to the Dr. Erika Podest.

Segment # 1

When: May 2nd. 2021 (Saturday 11:00 pm / Sunday 6:00 pm) Length:
13' 02"

Description of program

This week for the first time as President of the United States, Joe Biden spoke to Congress recapping what he said about his 100-day accomplishments of his administration and plans for the future. Of course, the economy and jobs were part of the main issues, especially after a pandemic that hit the country and its companies and workers for more than a year. A challenge that Marty Walsh received as part of his work as labor secretary when he was sworn in by Vice President Kamala Harris on March 23 and with whom Tsi-tsi-ki Félix spoke exclusively.

One of the main figures inside the capitol last Wednesday night was the leader of the Congressional Hispanic caucus. Dr. Raúl Ruíz, whom as always, we thank for his presence in PoliticaYa and we asked him about the response to the pandemic that is one of the main themes of the 100 days of Biden, as well as helping through economic stimuli, all of this benefiting many Hispanics and the crisis situation at the border, another important issue in the Biden-Harris administration.

Description of program

Both the right and the left across the country closely follow what is happening at the border regarding immigration. President Biden is pressing lawmakers on both sides to re-activate bills that would give Dreamers and farmworkers a path to permanent residency and subsequent citizenship. Almost a year ago, in the middle of the Tsi-tsi-ki Félix campaign, he exclusively interviewed him precisely about immigration and a path to citizenship for millions of people. This is an excerpt from that interview.

Amnesty International Chapter: The United States said it is concerned about some of the immigration policies of the Biden administration. Chief Executive Paul O'Brien said the president is not doing enough to reverse the Trump administration's policies. Amnesty International is also unhappy about the continued use of for-profit immigration detention centers and precisely, someone who has followed this issue very closely is the activist, investor and "senior contributor" of Forbes magazine, Mrs. Morgan Simon who spoke more about it.

This week, a group of 26 Republican lawmakers asked Vice President Harris on Wednesday that the government "use appropriately" the funds allocated by Congress for security on the border with Mexico.

The signatories belong to the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives, where Republicans are a minority. They say they are alarmed by the number of migrants detained while crossing the border illegally. Just days ago, we witnessed a tragedy on the high seas, when a shipwreck occurred where 3 Mexicans lost their lives in their attempt to reach this country by sea. Meanwhile, it was announced that Vice President Kamala Harris will tentatively travel to Mexico on June 8.

Description of program

The verdict in Derek Chauvin's trial for the murder of George Floyd gave the Black Lives Matter movement "hope" for progress in the demand for justice and fairness for minorities across the country. However, empowering a specific race can have consequences such as the one we can see in this viral video captured by the body camera of a Los Angeles, California sheriff's agent of Latino origin who is verbally assaulted by a black woman.

After the video of a woman allegedly self-identified as a teacher against a Los Angeles, California sheriff's deputy went viral, the controversy has been generated and there are different opinions about it, but who better to talk about this situation than Los Angeles Sheriff Alex Villanueva to whom we thank this exclusive to PolíticaYa.

President Biden met with congressional leaders at the White House, said he believes he can reach "some consensus on a compromise" with Republicans and Democrats. That same day, Republicans in the House of Representatives voted to remove Liz Cheney from her leadership position within the party, punishing the conservative Wyoming Republican for refuting Trump that there was fraud in the 2020 elections.

But what is happening inside the conservative party? Can bipartisan agreements be reached? From Miami and for the first time as director of Hispanic communications for the Republican National Committee, we invited Jaime Florez.

Segment # 1

When: June 02nd. 2021 (Saturday 11:00 pm / Sunday 6:00 pm)

Length: 11' 54"

Description of program

Since January 20 of this year, the situation at the border has radically changed. For months, for some even years, the wait in Mexico ended and for others, encouraged by organized crime from their countries of origin, the most dangerous adventure of their lives began.

Thousands of mothers and fathers also began to endanger the lives of their children by sending them "alone" to the border.

Meanwhile, Democratic representatives Adriano Espaillat, Verónica Escobar and Sylvia García presented the bill to improve national security, which seeks a solution to this humanitarian crisis on the border with Mexico.

The law would establish a commission within the Department of Homeland Security composed of representatives from the border states and also proposes to establish the office of the Ombudsman [Ombdusman] for border affairs and migration.

We discussed this with Fernando García who is the Executive Director of the Border Network for Human Rights from El Paso, Texas.

On Monday, June 7, the visit of Vice President Kamala Harris to Guatemala officially began. From very early on, she visited the National Palace of Culture to meet with President Alejandro Giammattei, and later in the evening she traveled to Mexico City to meet with President Lopez Obrador at the National Palace on Tuesday. The government of Mexico said that members of the Mexican national intelligence center (CNI), as well as the Secretariats of National Defense and the Navy, held various coordination meetings this week with the deputy director of the CIA.

Harris returned to the capital of the country with which an agreement is expected to put a stop to the mass migration of thousands of people who risk everything because they leave "nothing" in their countries of origin.

Program: Politica Ya with Tsi-tsi-ki Félix / Show # 146 / Segment # 1

When: June 13th. 2021 (Saturday 11:00 pm / Sunday 6:00 pm)

Length: 13' 03"

Description of program

From October 2020 to April 2021, 749 thousand 713 migrants crossed the border between Mexico and the United States. The desperation for a better life can do more for these people who risk everything to get to the other side. Thousands of people leave their countries throughout the Central American region and are going through an ordeal to achieve "the American dream." Since 2019, around 400,000 Guatemalans have been detained on the border between the United States and Mexico.

The Biden administration has promised 310 million in humanitarian aid for the region and has a plan of 4 billion to boost the development of Central America. However, Vice President Kamala Harris on her trip to Guatemala City and Mexico City was clear: "For the people of this region, what are you thinking of doing that dangerous walk? Don't come! Don't come!" she told them she.

This week, in addition to Vice President Harris' visit to Guatemala and Mexico, another news item that made headlines was the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court that said this Monday that immigrants who entered the United States illegally cannot apply for permanent residence because they enjoy temporary protected status or TPS. The decision is a setback for thousands who are temporarily protected from deportation, some until October. We asked Federal Senator for Virginia Tim Kaine about it.

Meanwhile, one of the most outrageous issues during the Trump era was the separation of families at the border. The White House Family Reunification Task Force gave new numbers, our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz had the report.

This week also finally the long-awaited visit of Harris to Guatemala and Mexico that occurred during 48 hours met with President Alejandro Giammattei and the Nobel Peace Prize in 1992, the indigenous leader Rigoberta Menchú, the vice president arrived in Mexico on Monday, and the next day he met with President López Obrador.

We made contact in Mexico City with Duncan Wood who is vice president of strategy and new initiatives and senior advisor of the Mexico Institute of the Wilson Center.

Description of program

The Supreme Court's decision this week to deny residency to those with TPS but who entered the country illegally leaves thousands in limbo and leaves more questions for other groups such as the Dreamers. We invited attorney Jose Campos to speak about these doubts that have arisen in our communities.

And precisely many of these TPS holders are essential workers, employers have also reacted to this unanimous decision of the supreme court. We also linked up with Jaime Contreras who is vice president of section 32bj of the SEIU union.

Description of program

Earlier this month, President Biden announced this June as the month of national action to mobilize everyone in the United States so that 70% of adults have at least one chance to get the protection they need to be safe. of covid-19 with at least one dose of one of the three available vaccines. This week the number of 600 thousand deaths that the pandemic has claimed in the country was exceeded. To talk about this and more, we appreciate the presence of the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services Xavier Becerra.

In other information the I.R.S. Prior to the distribution of the child tax credit, it announced this week that low-income families could be left without this important help of thousands of dollars per child. So he has activated a tool so that people can register, and thus take advantage of this benefit. Our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz has us the report.

President Joe Biden and his Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin met in Geneva, Switzerland, on Wednesday, the final event of the president's first international tour. Tour that took him from the UK to Belgium and finally to Switzerland.

To discuss this we invited Michael McCarthy, professor of international relations and political science at George Washington University.

When: June 27th. 2021 (Saturday 11:00 pm / Sunday 6:00 pm)

Length: 13' 44"

Description of program

The news of the week was Vice President Kamala Harris visiting the border with Mexico last Friday. She along with Secretary of National Security Alejandro Mayorkas and other officials traveled to El Paso, Texas. This 3 months after the president will commission him to solve the crisis on the southern border. Harris's trip took place 5 days before former President Donald Trump visits the border accompanied by Texas Governor Greg Abbott and a group of Republicans from the House of Representatives, on June 30th.

According to monthly figures from the customs and border protection office, the number of migrants arriving in the United States has risen since Joe Biden took office in May, more than 180,000 migrants were detained at the border, of which, 112,000 were immediately expelled. Furthermore, more than 18,800 unaccompanied migrant children crossed the border in March.

In addition, this week the summer officially began and with it the high temperatures that it's first victims: Migrants. Both in California, Texas and Arizona, women and children are helped by the border patrol who assures that the rescues have increased. Meanwhile, Florida Governor Ron Di Santis authorizes the dispatch of agents to support the Texas Governor in his desire to detain migrants.

We discussed these issues and much more with Senator Marco Rubio, a senior member of the subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, Transnational Crime, Civil Security, Democracy, Human Rights, and Global Women's Issues.

Description of program

Critics of the Biden administration said Democrats are pushing the limits of what can be defined as "infrastructure" as they seek to sell off President Biden's $ 2 trillion spending plan. Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Kentucky, said that "this plan is not about rebuilding the backbone of the United States as less than 6 percent of this massive proposal would go to roads and bridges." Included in the package is the construction and repair of facilities and systems used by the general public, including pipelines, schools, broadband, the Amtrak rail system, and more. We talked about this and more exclusively with Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg Exclusively.

Description of program

This week, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that inflation rose 0.6% in March, causing it to jump to 2.6% in annual terms. The federal reserve targets 2.4% for this year and 2% for the next.

Jerome Powell, president of the Federal Reserve (FED) said that the economic recovery will continue to move forward "faster", as long as the spread of Covid-19 is kept under control.

Meanwhile, the "I.R.S" said that the new child tax credit of $ 3,000, will begin to be delivered from July. Families will thus receive an annual benefit of $ 3,000 per child ages 6 to 17 and $ 3,600 for each child under the age of 6 for fiscal year 2021. The argument was that the agency was overwhelmed with the extension for tax returns, which dragged on to May 17. We talked about this and more with the accountant Adrián Sierra.

The United States State Department highlighted that impunity in crimes against women prevails in Mexico in a report on human rights published this Tuesday. The next day, the president of Mexico, Andrés Manuel López Obrador, questioned said report saying "why does the United States have an opinion on matters that only concern Mexicans?"

Just this week, outrage seized millions over the femicide of a Salvadoran woman at the hands of 4 Mexican police officers. Something that confirms the suffering that thousands of immigrants live in Mexico every day with total impunity.

Victoria Esperanza Salazar lived in Tulum, in the state of Quintana Roo. Little is known about what led to her arrest without resistance. Victoria herself was arbitrarily detained by four municipal agents from Tulum, when she was leaving a food store. One of the agents, according to the video released on social networks, subdued her and put one of her knees on her back and neck, the autopsy concluded that Salazar died of a broken neck. The exam found "a fracture of part of the upper spine caused by the breakage of the first and second vertebrae," as reported by the Washington Post. From Cancun Quintana Roo we interviewed Wendy Galarza, activist and victim of police abuse and member of the victims of November 9 collective.

The British strain of Covid-19 is present in more than 15,000 active cases in the country and is already registered in 50 states, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported today. With 3,191 cases, Florida is the state with the most infected by this new strain.

And a study by the University of Southern California shows that working-age Latino migrants are 11 times more likely to die from coronavirus-related causes than non-Latino US-born immigrants.

As we well know, the only real way against Covid-19 are vaccines, but apparently 273 thousand employees of the Costco chain need training because apparently some of them do not know how to act when a person without social security or identification from this country, is presented to be vaccinated. The above happened to a Hispanic in the state of Colorado and our correspondent Yamile Arango tells us what happened there.

President Biden said he hopes his government can begin to share its inventory of covid-19 vaccines with other countries "before the end of the summer," this while he continues to vaccinate millions of people. Half of the adult population in the country, almost 130 million people over 18 years of age, received so far at least one dose of the vaccine against covid-19; This was announced by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, however the CDC considered that there is still much to do to convince skeptics to get vaccinated. On the other hand, Dr. Anthony Fauci said that vaccination with doses manufactured by Johnson and Johnson was likely to resume soon. This week, the world record for deaths from the coronavirus also surpassed the figure of three million.

And since we are talking about vulnerable populations, it is always essential not to forget our older adults. Days ago, it was announced that the FDA would approve Pfizer's vaccine for adolescents from 12 to 15 years old next week, this authorization will imply an important advance in the vaccination campaign of the Biden administration that also days ago announced that it expects to have 70% of the population vaccinated with at least one dose of the three existing vaccines by July 4.

Pfizer announced that the vaccine is at least as effective in that age group as it is in adults. However there is concern from some parents but Dr. Ilan Shapiro tells us why not be afraid.

Another danger to our children and pets is the heat inside vehicles as the hot season begins across the country. We know that last year there were fewer deaths of children in cars than in other years but this may happen again as José Uclés explains below, who is the spokesman for the National Administration of Highway Safety and Traffic of the Department of Transportation.

This week, the Republican Governor of Texas, Greg Abbott, announced that public schools and government buildings in his state will not be able to require the use of face masks as of June 5. Thus, Texas cities and counties are prohibited from requiring the use of masks. On the other hand, the CDC's decision last week to lift the mandatory use of face masks for those who are vaccinated continued to cause confusion and controversy.

To talk about this we interviewed dr. Bechara Choucair, who is responsible for supervising the national vaccination efforts of the response team to the covid pandemic of the executive office of the presidency of the republic.

This week in all our radio and television stations in the country we talk about a topic that many avoid. Mental health among us Latinos. The covid-19 pandemic has disproportionately affected the mental health of our community, but young people have been particularly affected, particularly young people from low-income families. Data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shows ~ a 24% increase in the proportion of children who go to emergency departments for mental health care.

To talk about this, from Boston Massachusetts we had Dr. Maria Alegría, clinical psychologist, professor in the department of medicine and psychiatry at Harvard University School of Medicine.

More than 150 million Americans are fully vaccinated, representing 45.2% of the population. Almost 56% of adults have completed their treatment against covid-19 according to the CDC, but as Rafael Sánchez-Cruz explains, everything indicates that the White House will not reach its vaccination goal for the 4th. of July holiday.

What does it mean that the goal of vaccinating 70% of the population of the third most populous country in the world after China and India is not achieved? We talked about this and more with Dr. José Mayorgas from the University of California at Irvine.

The issue of the crisis at the border continues to make headlines nationally and internationally. Vice President Kamala Harris had a telephone conversation with Mexican President Andrés Manuel López Obrador on immigration issues, addressing Central America, human trafficking, human rights, and the treatment of migrant children. This, at the same time that a survey by the associated press and The Center for Public Affairs Research also shows that the problem of minors arriving alone at the border with Mexico is one of the highest concerns of 59% of those who responded.

On the other hand, 40% of Americans disapprove of Biden's handling of this situation while there are already more than 11 detention centers for minors in the country and our correspondent in the White House Rafael Sanchez Cruz has all the details.

More than 200 police chiefs from all over the country asked the President to stop the "illegal mass migration" and "to resume the construction of the wall on the border." Also, the announcement of a contract from I.C.E. with a private company for 16,800 million dollars that will provide valuable information to the agency. We discussed this and more with former Obama-era Immigration and Customs Enforcement chief of staff attorney John Amaya.

Description of program

The crisis at the border continues despite the fact that according to the CNN chain it reported a loss of minors in custody by immigration and customs, the Biden government has reached new security agreements with Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras to mobilize soldiers and police in its borders as part of its strategy to curb this crisis.

This in the same week that it was finally announced that Vice President Kamala Harris will travel to Guatemala and Mexico, perhaps including a stop at the border that continues to be visited by congressmen from every state in the country. In fact, one of these congressmen is Adriano Espaillat, a representative of New York, whom Tsi-tsi-ki Félix interviewed exclusively.

It is almost impossible to understand how a mother or father pay criminals to bring minors from Central America or Mexico risking their lives and many times without knowing that they can face criminal charges and that the doors are being closed for life to fix their immigration status for being part of a serious crime known as "Alien smuggling" as our correspondent Claudia Orozco tells us from Tijuana, Baja California Mexico.

This week, it was announced that President Joe Biden will nominate Chris Magnus who is the chief of police in Tucson, Arizona, to head the Customs and Border Protection (CBP) office. Magnus is a member of the group of immigration work. Another member of this select group is Pharr, Texas Police Chief Andy Harvey.

The subject of immigration like every week made headlines. President Biden met for the first time with the leadership of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus in the oval office where the immigration issue took center stage when UNICEF reports that the number of migrant children waiting in Mexico to enter the United States has increased 9 times, from 380 at 3,500. Our correspondent in the White House Rafael Sánchez Cruz has us more.

Also this week, the White House once again denied a migration crisis on the US-Mexico border. At the same time as Arizona Governor Doug Ducey said Tuesday that he will send national guard troops to the border due to an increase in migrant arrivals. Also this week, the nation's supreme court ruled against permanent residency for TPS holders.

We talked about this and more with Andrew Selee President of the Institute for Migration Policy in the country's capital.

This week, it was announced that inflation in the country shot up to 4.2% per year in April, the highest since October 2008, when the mortgage crisis occurred. As if that were not enough, the FBI accuses Russian hackers of the cyber attack on the Colonial pipeline that generated panic purchases and higher prices. All over the east coast. To understand all this in an easy way, we invite one of the pillars of the faculty of economics at Metro State University of Denver in Colorado, Professor Nicolás Cachanosky.

President Biden met with congressional leaders at the White House, said he believes he can reach "some consensus on a compromise" with Republicans and Democrats. That same day, Republicans in the House of Representatives voted to remove Liz Cheney from her leadership position within the party, punishing the conservative Wyoming Republican for refuting Trump that there was fraud in the 2020 elections.

Special: Activists visit the border

How big is the crisis at the border? What has the government of President Biden done to resolve the situation? Tsi-tsi-ki Félix has the answer to these and other questions about the increase of more than 270% of migrants entering the United States from Mexico. From the border area, Félix, together with a group of community leaders and defenders of the most unfortunate in Central America, witness one more page in the history of this country founded by immigrants being written.

Poverty, violence, corrupt governments, narco-governments, ravages by natural disasters, the scourge of a covid-19 pandemic that does not stop there, force thousands of Central Americans to leave their homes and seek a decent life. In a single month the arrival of 178 thousand migrants was registered, almost 18 thousand are minors traveling alone! Children traveling with coyotes thrown by their own parents on a dangerous journey through Mexico to the United States border to request asylum. But what happens when they reach the border? Many of them are literally on the street! And Tsi-tsi-ki Félix visited a park-refuge in Reynosa, Tamaulipas, one of the most dangerous places in the world.

Republican National Committee and the Crisis on the Border

This week the inspector general of I.C.E. He revealed that the Trump administration deported migrants whom he had separated from their children despite the fact that those parents wanted to return to their countries of origin together with their children.

"In fact, I.C.E. deported some migrants without their children despite having evidence that the parents wanted to return with them back to their country of origin," the report says. To talk about the situation of the border from the republican point of view, we have, from the studies of the Republican National Committee in the capital of the country, its spokesman Jaime Florez.

Bipartisan Project for New Family Visas

There is a bipartisan proposal to create a new category of visas called "B" visas that is apparently gaining ground. The "temporary family visits" law will allow relatives of citizens and permanent residents of the country to have faster and easier access to visit. The secretary of national security, Alejandro Mayorkas, traveled to Mexico last Monday and Tuesday to discuss with the country's authorities the possible reopening of the border, which was closed more than a year ago due to the covid-19 pandemic. During his stay in the Aztec country, Mayorkas addressed issues such as migration, terrorism and cybersecurity. At the same time, former President Trump reported on Tuesday that he accepted an invitation from the Governor of Texas, Greg Abbott, to visit the border and everything seems to indicate that it will be the Rio Grande Valley area on June 30.

The plea that a Mexican immigrant made on camera at our sister station in Colorado, to be released from Grupo Geo's private detention center in the city of Aurora after allegedly being a victim of sexual abuse, apparently was heard. Carlos Moreno has the details for us.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing on Tuesday to discuss two bills passed in March by the House of Representatives that include a path to citizenship for Dreamers, TPS holders and farm workers. The lack of a prior bipartisan agreement removes the chances of legalizing millions of undocumented immigrants. We discussed this with attorney Alex Galvez from Los Angeles, California.
