

COMMUNITY NEEDS AND ISSUES

Based upon WPBF's involvement in its community and input from community leaders and various organizations, WPBF has determined that the following issues are the concerns of the community:

➤ Politics

All political issues, races and governmental concerns on local, state wide and national levels.

➤ Crime / Court

Street crimes, gangs, and the use/sale of illegal drugs are issues of serious concern. Issues and actions that take place every day in our courts affect the daily lives of our viewers.

➤ Community

Events, concerns and the day to day issues that affect the local community.

➤ Health/ Safety

Issues facing the health of viewers in our area. Medical breakthroughs. All issues dealing with safety are important to the viewing audience.

➤ Terror/War

All matters related to terrorism home and abroad. War is a very important issue that faces everyone everyday

➤ Education / School

The primary and secondary school education of area children, the high cost of attending college, children's safety in schools, and quality of education offered are issues of public concern.

➤ Economy

How the overall economy of the nation, state, county, and city affects individuals' ability to manage on their current incomes is an overwhelming concern. How local/state and national leaders will lead on the economic front is also a concern.

➤ Sports

News and information relating to the sports world local, national and international.

➤ Environment/Weather

Concerns and issues that involve the environment, weather and what is being done to address these issues.

Community	Matter of Fact	N	7/1	130-200	30	This week on Matter of Fact with Soledad O'Brien, right now U.S. Custom and Border Protection is holding an estimated 2,000 unaccompanied migrant children in detention centers around the country. Including the Ursula detention center in McAllen, Texas. Two weeks ago a local pediatrician visited the center to perform medical evaluations on the children. Afterwards she wrote the conditions "could be compared to torture facilities". That doctor, Dolly Sevier, joins us from Brownsville, Texas to share her experiences with Soledad. Plus, more immigrants are arrested at the Falfurrias checkpoint than any other border crossing in the country. Falfurrias is in Brooks County, Texas, about 70 north of the US-Mexico border. In addition to the high number of arrests, it's also ground zero for migrant deaths. Soledad talks to residents and finds out why this county exemplifies the complexity of the immigration debate. And it isn't just the government struggling to provide housing and services for thousands of immigrants crossing the border into Texas. Charities and non-profits are also struggling to help. We hear from Sister Norma Pimentel, the Executive Director of the Rio Grande Valley Catholic Charities on how she copes with the influx.

						In our weekly feature, we're paying attention even if you're too busy, the crackdown on e-cigarettes took a huge step forward this week. San Francisco became the first major U.S. city to ban electronic cigarettes. County supervisors say e-cigarettes play an unhealthy role in encouraging more teens to start to smoking. The mayor is expected to sign the ban. And finally, NASA needs your help. It's launched a new contest inviting people to help name its newest Mars rover. The rover will launch next summer and is expected to touch down on Mars in 2021. NASA is asking kids, K-12, to come up with a name. And adults can get involved too. They're asking for volunteers to help judge the entries.

Politics	Matter of Fact	N	7/7	1000-1030	30	Last week on Matter of Fact with Soledad O'Brien, what matters most in the 2020 Presidential election? In a word, it's the economy. That's according to conservative strategist Bruce Mehlman. He produces a quarterly report that tracks the political climate in the country. He tells Soledad, from healthcare to tax cuts, voters will choose the candidate who they feel is most likely to fight for their financial future. Plus the Federal government has finally declared a disaster on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota. Back to back storms earlier this year decimated the sprawling reservation which is still struggling to recover. Politics	Matter of Fact	N	7/14	1000-1030	30	This week on Matter of Fact with Soledad O’Brien, one area of bipartisan support in Congress is anger over the unregulated use of facial recognition technology by federal law enforcement agencies. Republican and Democratic lawmakers grilled the FBI and other federal officials for scanning millions of state driver’s license photos without the public’s consent. Clare Garvie, with the Georgetown Center on Privacy and Technology, testified before the House on this issue. She joins Soledad to explain how the technology works and the constitutional challenges it poses. And California is the first state in the country to ban racial discrimination based on a person’s hair. It’s called the Crown Act, and it’s meant to protect mainly people of color, who are often banned from wearing their in styles like afros, braids, cornrows, and locs. New York City is also cracking down on this discrimination and we speak from women who say they’ve been targeted for their natural hair styles. Plus, July 20th marks the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11th mission to the moon. A new bill in the House that would raise the federal minimum wage to $15/hr by 2024 is headed to a vote later this month. The debate will likely intensify after a new report from Congressional Budget Office estimated that a $15/hr minimum wage would cost the U.S. about 1.3 million jobs. Finally, one of the most famous paintings in the world is getting a major makeover. More than 20 artists, curators, and scientists are using high tech tools to restore Rembrandt's 1642 masterpiece, "The Night Watch", at Amsterdam's Rijksmuseum. The restoration could take years to complete and it's being done with millions of onlookers. The museum built a glass box so visitors could still see the painting even while it's being restored. They're also livestreaming the work on their website.

She joins Soledad to explain how the technology works and the constitutional challenges it poses. And California is the first state in the country to ban racial discrimination based on a person's hair. It's called the Crown Act, and it's meant to protect mainly people of color, who are often banned from wearing their in styles like afros, braids, cornrows, and locs. New York City is also cracking down on this discrimination and we speak from women who say they've been targeted for their natural hair styles. Plus, July 20th marks the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11th mission to the moon. Soledad sits down with NASA's chief scientist, Dr. James Green, to discuss why understanding the moon is so important to the earth's past, present, and it's future. NASA is set to return to the moon in 2024, and Dr. Green says it's part of NASA's long term mission to ultimately see

A new bill in the House that would raise the federal minimum wage to $15/hr by 2024 is headed to a vote later this month. The debate will likely intensify after a new report from Congressional Budget Office estimated that a $15/hr minimum wage would cost the U.S. about 1.3 million jobs. Finally, one of the most famous paintings in the world is getting a major makeover. More than 20 artists, curators, and scientists are using high tech tools to restore Rembrandt’s 1642 masterpiece, “The Night Watch”, at Amsterdam’s Rijksmuseum. The restoration could take years to complete and it’s being done with millions of onlookers. The museum built a glass box so visitors could still see the painting even while it’s being restored. They’re also livestreaming the work on their website.

Community	Matter of Fact	N	9/01	1000-1030	30	This week on Matter of Fact with Soledad O'Brien, it's a shocking

					statistic: 22 veterans commit suicide each day in America. The military says financial instability and lack of support transitioning off of active duty play a big role in the epidemic. Soledad is joined by Mike Haynie, founder and Executive Director of the Institute for Veterans and Military Families at Syracuse University which works to empower veterans. Among those who say the IVMF program is a life changing experience is veteran David Sharpe who says the support from IVMF helped pull him back from the brink and prepare him for life as a successful small business owner. He joins the conversation with Darby his service dog! Plus one in eight Americans, mostly women, say they've been the victim of online sexual abuse. This includes stalking, revenge porn, and in some cases violent attacks. Unfortunately, laws aimed to protect victims were created before the social media boom and they don't hold tech companies accountable. Carrie Goldberg is a Brooklyn based attorney who is trying to change that. She joins Soledad to talk about her advocacy, her own story of survival, and her new book Nobody's Victim: Fighting Psychos, Stalkers, Pervs, and Trolls. And we return to Broadway for Soledad's interview with one of the stars of To Kill A Mockingbird. Gbnega Akinngabe plays Tom Robinson, the black handyman falsely accused of raping a white woman. Akinngabe tells Soledad how this latest version of the story differs from the past and is made even more relevant for today.

						In our weekly segment, “we’re paying attention even if you’re too busy”, Illinois recently became the second state to protect the housing rights of undocumented immigrants. The new law is called the Immigrant Tenant Protection Act. It means that tenants, regardless of their legal status, can sue landlords who try to blackmail them into silence over housing violations. California was the first state to pass similar legislation. Finally, there’s a new app showcasing Washington, DC’s history from a Native American perspective. The app is called the Guide to Indigenous DC. It was created by the Assistant Director at the AT&amp;T Center for Indigenous Politics and Policy at George Washington University. She says Native American stories are too often erased from Washington’s history.
