Mentoring Children and the Children of Incarcerated

Host Mark Daniels is joined by the distinguished Philadelphia mayor Dr. Wilson Goode Sr. Discussions are on the topic of at risk children, and the highest at risk group among children is those children whose parents are incarcerated. Research is discussed showing the children who have a poor education, live in poverty, live in a single parent family and have a parent incarcerated are extremely likely to lead to the child becoming incarcerated. This group is identified and countless volunteers offer services of weekly mentoring for a year is offered as a step to help the children.
