4. Mentoring program for On-Air personnel Weekly Airchecks- As part of our commitment to Equal Employment Opportunity, we have implemented a mentoring program for our On-Air personnel, our Operations Manager is responsible for conducting evaluations and providing weekly training to our On-air staff. During the aircheck sessions, the air talent has their on-air shows from the previous week critiqued. Freshmen talent are reviewed by senior staff, while senior talent are evaluated by the Operations Manager. Mentors then send follow-up emails detailing the areas that need improvement. In addition to the airchecks, these sessions also provide opportunities for air talent to cross-train in operational duties such as music placement software, website management, and social media practices. Through this mentoring program and weekly airchecks, we aim to improve the skills and performance of our On-Air personnel while promoting a culture of learning and development. This initiative also helps to ensure a diverse and inclusive workplace where everyone has the opportunity to grow and succeed.

5. WQHH PROGRAM DIRECTOR MacDonald Broadcasting Training/Mentoring Initiative WRAPUP:

Starting February 7th, 2022, we started a mentoring program for a staff member to train towards taking over a leadership position at our Lansing property for WQHH. He was a current part-time employee holding a 5day/week air shift on WQHH from 6pm-10pm when he was originally hired as a full-time employee with the title of 'Programming Assistant'. He was bumped up to a 40 hour work week – 10am-2pm in the office, 6pm-10pm on-the-air.

On March 13th, 2023 he was hired to be the Program Director for WQHH. The Operations Manager was in charge of the training.

The goal of the mentorship was to help the staff member learn the tasks and skills he needed in order to eventually be promoted and take over the role of 'Program Director' for WQHH. This goal was achieved.

The various tasks that he was trained on were:

-Music scheduling: Learned the basics of our Music Master Computer scheduling program. How our categories worked, how we chose music, why songs play more than others, etc. Our consultant also assisted in the process. Over the course of the training, they gradually took on more responsibility for choosing songs and offering input on whether songs should play more or less. Learned how to freshen up playlists of older music through station comparison studies. The staff member now handles the daily scheduling of music for WQHH and researches song chart positions for weekly music calls.

-Station imaging: Learned the various imaging categories and how we schedule them. Learned the ins and outs of writing for these categories. They have started to take over the process of handling WQHH imaging on their own, to include the doing the production aspects of this task.

-Staff management: Through weekly meetings and additional mentorship as needed, the staff member learned how to manage the part-time staff for WQHH that consists of roughly 10 people. They began the process of providing them with weekly feedback about their on-air performance (airchecks). This occurs both through email communication as well as follow-up phone calls and in-person meetings as necessary. They were also trained on how to interview new candidates, and has taken over the lead role in hiring new talent. The staff member is also in charge of much of the training for new hires.

-Promotions: While not in charge of promotions, the staff member has learned the ins and outs of how we execute our on and off-air promotions. They now serve in a support role to our current Promotions Director.

6. Career Day at Pottengill Middle School, Lansing, MI 12/22/22

A WQHH On Air personality/Promotions manager was invited to speak about their career as a radio personality and their experiences working in the radio industry.
