Issue	Time	Date	Duration	Title of Program	Narrative Description
Community	6am	1/04/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	The city of New Haven is passing off its needle exchange services. The city formally stopped the program on December 31st. But now, the Yale School of Medicine's community health care van will assume responsibility. The program is designed to help drug users avoid contracting HIV. Yale's healthcare van also offers its clients drug use treatment and mental health care services.
Community	6am	1/16/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	In an effort to cut down the number of house fire fatalities and injuries. The American Red Cross teaming up with the city of New Haven to hand out free smoke alarms. The Red Cross is also offering free installation to families who want that service. It all starts today at 9-a-m and will run until four tonight at 200 Wintergreen Avenue in New Haven.
Community	6am	1/26/17	60 seconds	Good Morning	A rally set for the state capitol today over the

Quarterly Issues and Program List

				CT	quality of education in the state. Organizers are calling it a day of action and are trying to get lawmakers to commit to investing in public higher education. That rally is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock this morning.
Health	6am	1/03/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	We all know that alcohol can have long-term effects on our health. Now, a brand new study shows it can take its toll on your heart. Research does suggest that drinking "in moderation" can actually "improve" heart health but doctors say if you drink too much alcohol it can increase your risk of heart disease. So again-moderation is apparently the 'key'.
Health	6am	1/13/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Cases of "Mumps" in the U.S. is now the highest it's been in ten years. The centers for disease control says there are more than five thousand cases across the country. Most folks get vaccinated for it as a child. And mumps can cause complications in adults. And since it's caused by a virus it doesn't respond to antibiotics. Doctors recommend over-the-counter pain relievers and bed rest.
Health	6am	1/19/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	A group of doctors in Utah say they could be very close to a breakthrough in the fight against cancer and it comes from an animal. The researchers are studying the manmade version of an elephant protein. Elephants almost never get cancer and scientists think it's because they have extra copies of one specific protein that fights the disease. The researchers recreated the protein in a lab, introduced it to human cancer cells, and it killed them. There's no guarantee that the elephant protein will work in humans. Right now the researchers are trying to raise enough money for animal and human testing. They hope to start that testing it about three years.
Education	6am	1/11/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	A new desk is giving students the opportunity to be comfortable and even burn energy while getting work done. The standing desk was designed back in 2012 by an engineer who wanted to help out his girlfriend. She was suffering from back and neck pain after sitting all day to study for her PHD. A teacher spotted the creation and requested a smaller student sized desk. And now, these desks are in more than 25 schools nationwide.

Education	6am	1/19/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	A bipartisan panel of lawmakers were discussing education in our state. That panel, according to the New Haven Register, got together at Hamden Middle School Wednesday night. They talked about some of the biggest hot button issues facing our children - including how the state distributes money among municipalities. Another topic that received a lot of attention - federal versus state rights when it comes to education.
Education	10pm	1/24/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	There could be good news for community college students looking to transfer credits to a four year state school. A Bill has been filed that would develop a system to transfer all credits seamlessly from Connecticut community colleges to any of the state universities. The bill will be debated in the higher education committee, we'll let you know what happens.
Education	6am	1/27/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Immigrant students are again urging lawmakers to make them eligible for institutional financial assistance at state-run colleges and universities. It marks the fourth year lawmakers will consider legislation making immigrant students eligible for different forms of financial aid funded by tuition payments from all students. Some lawmakers say it's unfair and egregious that immigrant students can't apply for the funds.
Crime	10pm	1/03/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	The Shell Food Mart on Willow Street in New Haven has been robbed again. It is a common occurrence at the business. Monday night a masked man pointed a gun at the clerk and took his wallet and money from the cash register.

Quarterly Issues and Program List

					Because this is a place that is hit up frequently the owner says he has done all he can with security, but it is not a deterrent. No one was hurt during the hold up.
Crime	10pm	1/12/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	New Haven officials are celebrating a big drop in crime over the past five years. Federal and city law enforcement leaders say homicides in the Elm city have dropped by 62 percent since 2011. Other crimes like robberies, burglaries and aggravated assault are also on the decline. The focus was on the fifty-percent drop in the number of "non-fatal" shootings in the city to date a new police chief has not been named, we are waiting for that to occur.
Crime	10pm	1/27/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A Norwich man is being held on bond tonight accused of selling drugs in Groton. Police arrested 30 year old Christopher Cook this morning. They say a task force assigned to fight the heroin epidemic was staked out in a "high crime" area and saw Cook hand drugs to another person. Police say cook ran off once he spotted officers. But was eventually taken into custody.
Consumer Issue	10pm	1/07/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A warning tonight about a dating site phone scam. Plainfield police say people posing as officers are targeting 'plenty of fish' users. They call and tell people they're part of a criminal investigation from someone they contacted. While on the phone they tell the victim they can pay to have the case dropped. If you get a call like this -- call police.
Consumer Issue	6am	1/12/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	If you're pouring yourself a cup of coffee this morning-- you might soon have to pour more money out of your wallet. Big brands like Folgers and Cafe Bustello are looking to raise their prices by about six percent. So if three pounds of coffee typically costs about 15 dollars you will now spend nearly a dollar more. Even a bag of Dunkin Donuts or Starbucks ground coffee will have the same kind of price hike. But there is some good news if you use k-cups, those pods for signature brands like Folgers are not going up-- at least for right now.

Consumer Issue	10pm	1/23/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	Sierra Nevada brewing company is recalling some of its bottled beer in thirty-six states. The company says glass can break off and fall into the bottle. The recall applies to eight brands including Torpedo Extra IPA, Hop Hunter IPA, Pale Ale, and Nooner sold from Maine to Florida and across the mid-west as far west as Texas and South Dakota. Find more information on the company's website and over on our website www.wtnh.com .
Consumer Issue	6am	1/30/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Audi is recalling nearly 600 thousand vehicles. Some 2013 thru 2017 A5 Cabriolets may have an electric coolant pump that can get blocked with debris. If that happens, the pump can overheat and cause a fire. 2011 to 2017 Q5 SUVs are also being recalled because a sunroof drainage system can allow water to soak into the foam surrounding the side air bag inflators. If that happens, the inflator could rupture and spew metal fragments into the SUV. Audi will notify owners and repair the vehicles for free. The recalls are expected to begin next month.
Government	6am	1/04/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	In his annual State of the State Address today, Governor Malloy called for more concessions from state labor unions and a re-calculation of the state's aid to cities and towns. The governor says state government must be more predictable in its tax code and business regulations. Business leaders are praising that message, saying the lack of predictability in Connecticut for the past several years around fiscal policy has been detrimental to growing the state's economy.
Economy	10pm	1/06/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	The final jobs report of the Obama presidency is in. The Obama administration is ending with a four-point-seven percent unemployment rate.

Quarterly Issues and Program List

					156-thousand jobs were added in December -- slightly below average for the year. Wages grew at their best pace since 2009. Since President Obama took office the economy has added more than 11-million jobs.
Government	6am	1/19/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	If you have a student loan you could soon be getting some money back. The largest student loan company in the nation is now being sued by the federal government. The consumer financial protection bureau says Navient misled borrowers on purpose making it harder for people to pay back loans. The suit calls for restitution for borrowers. The company says the whole thing is a politically motivated midnight action a day before Donald Trump takes office.
Community	10pm	2/10/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	Some Waterbury kids took their snow day to help others. Kids from the police activity league were shoveling sidewalks and driveways for senior citizens and they did it all for free. The police activity league is a non-profit that promotes partnerships between youth, law enforcement and the community.
Community	6am	2/14/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	New Haven city officials will be marking Valentine's Day with some special ceremonies. The first ten couples to sign up in the Office of Vital Statistics at City Hall at 165 Church Street will be married today by a justice of the peace at no charge. The couples will also get a small bouquet of flowers and a wedding cake. Anyone looking to say "I do" must still secure a marriage license ahead of time and pay the 50 dollar fee to qualify.
Community	6am	2/21/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	It's tax time and the city of New Haven is offering some help for working families. Mayor Toni Harp and representatives from the Connecticut Association for Human Services will be at city hall later this morning to kick off the program. They will explain how families can learn about the state's earned income tax credit and get advice on how to manage any anticipated income tax refund.

Health	6am	2/02/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	There's nothing like being a kid and playing in the snow and at one time or another all of us have probably eaten snow. Well, it turns out that's not a good idea. Health officials say-in an emergency when there's no source of water around eating a little snow is okay. But, snow contains harmful chemicals before it hits the ground-so there is reason to be concerned. So-the advice from the experts- it so carry clean water with you -- so you don't expose yourself to unknown chemicals
Health	10pm	2/03/17	90 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	February is heart month and heart disease is the number one killer of women as well as men. The data shows more women than men die of heart disease. Experts say that's mostly because a woman is generally too busy taking care of others and not focused on herself. And are older when they have heart attacks. A national survey by Orlando Health found that most women do not know that heart screenings should start in their 20's. The screening includes checking weight, height, BMI and blood pressure. It also includes blood tests for cholesterol and glucose levels. Dr. Swales says by normalizing those numbers early it lowers the risk substantially as well as prevent or delay the onset of cardiovascular disease. About 80 percent can actually be prevented, she says. Screening at 20 is also recommended for men.
Health	10pm	2/23/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A new study in your health news tonight suggests long-term stress might make you fat. English researchers compared stress levels and body weight of more than 25-hundred men and women over the age of 54. The study looked at levels of the stress hormone cortisol in their locks of hair. They examined locks at two points four years apart. Researchers said the results show clear evidence chronic stress is associated with higher levels of obesity.

Health	6am	2/28/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Experts are warning about those fad diets. The concerns are specifically about heart health. Let's first take a look at juicing. Experts warn with juicing- you more often than not get more calories than you think and less fiber. A gluten-free diet also comes with a warning. Experts say in healthy people they can lead to weight gain. And, if you really want to protect your heart skip the anti-oxidant supplements. There's no proof they actually work.
Education	6am	2/01/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	New Haven parents can get an education on the many different public schools today. The city is holding its "school of choice" enrollment exposition. Parents can sit down with principals, teachers and other students from schools across the city. The event will run from 6-until-8 o'clock tonight-at the Floyd Little Athletic Center in New Haven.
Education	10pm	2/02/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A project by local high school students is heading into space. The precision machine class at Milford's Platt Tech is making parts that will end up on the international space station. They'll be used to build a storage locker for experiments currently being developed. Every student in class gets to sign a part that will one day blast off into space students are learning cutting-edge computer-driven machining techniques. Their progress on the project was monitored today by the director of the organization known as "HUNCH" which is "high schools unite with NASA to create hardware."
Education	6am	2/06/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Starting today schools in Derby are kicking off "no one eats alone" week. It's all to make sure no student feels left out. The district is working with the group, Beyond Differences, which is a partner of Sandy Hook Promise. There will be different events throughout the week to help students understand that all children should feel included and valued.
Crime	10pm	2/01/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	We're following new developments tonight on a shooting in Ansonia. Police now telling us the man who was shot is in fair condition. That shooting happened near the YMCA at Union and State Streets around 8:30 last night. Police say the 27 year old victim is recovering at YALE New Haven Hospital with gunshot wounds to his face and torso. They're still on the hunt for the shooter.

Crime	10pm	2/03/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A Hartford public high school student is accused of bringing a gun to school. Police say they got a tip there was a gun at the school. The school was put on lock down. The student who had the gun will likely be charged.
Crime	10pm	2/22/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	We have breaking news involving 2 state troopers tonight. Officials say an internal affairs investigation is underway and those 2 troopers have been assigned to non-police duties, in connection with an incident that happened in Wethersfield. Officials tell us those unidentified troopers work out of Troop C in Tolland, and Troop K in Colchester. Wethersfield Police are investigating but no other information has been released.
Consumer Issue	6am	2/02/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Auto sales in the U.S declined in January, but analysts don't expect the trend to continue. Sales dropped two percent last month to 1-point-1 million. General Motors, Toyota and Ford all reported declines. But analysts say strong consumer confidence and cheap gas prices will help boost sales.
Consumer Issue	6am	2/08/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	A popular dog food is now being recalled after a dog in Washington died. We're talking about Evanger's Hunk of Beef. It's believed it may have been tainted with a drug vets use to put down pets.
Consumer Issue	6am	2/14/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	We have another scam to tell you about and this one is targeting your email. The Better Business Bureau is warning us about an e-mail that looks like it comes from a business executive but don't be fooled - it's not. Criminals

					the time. After she was approached she was able to run to a friend's house and call police. Now police have stepped up patrols until they can figure out exactly what's going on. Is there something going on here or was this a big misunderstanding. This happened on Tuesday morning around 7:30am. Police say that the man in the car tried to engage with the young girl and then asked her to get something out of the vehicle. That's when the girl ran away. Police are now looking for a man who was driving an early 2000 white BMW SUV with dice on the rear view mirror and flames on the rims. If you think you come across the car or see something suspicious call police. This may also be a good time for parents to have that all-important talk about strangers with their kids.
Community	6am	3/06/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Some people are not happy with the plans to build a casino in East Windsor. They're meeting tonight at the town's high school. The Coalition against Casino Expansion in Connecticut is concerned about the social and economic costs of a third gaming center. State lawmakers will hold another hearing about the plan on Thursday. That same day, the East Windsor board of selectmen will hold a casino forum. The state's two Native American tribes want to build a third casino to compete with one being built in Springfield, Massachusetts.
Community	6am	3/19/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Route ten in Granby will close tonight at 8 o'clock while state police escort the second of six power plant turbines through the area to Oxford. Route ten will reopen at 2am Monday morning.
Health	10pm	3/02/17	120 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	A new study predicts a dramatic rise in hearing loss among Americans in the decades to come.

Quarterly Issues and Program List

					Johns Hopkins researchers looked at how many Americans currently experience hearing loss? Comparing this figure to current population growth estimates to try and determine how many in the future would suffer from this condition. What they found? Hearing loss is set to soar in this country? Nearly doubling between 2020 and 2060. Leading to 30 million more Americans with hearing loss. A surge that will outpace population growth. And while older Americans will bear the brunt of this rise? The researchers warn that younger adults should also beware? As regardless of age, the number of Americans experiencing moderate or greater hearing loss is expected to rise as well. Fortunately there are things we can all do today to maintain our hearing for years to come? And they all involve protecting your ears. Use earplugs if you know you're going to be in a noisy environment. Think twice about loud music concerts or dance clubs. And turn that volume down on your mp3 player.
Health	10pm	3/09/17	90 seconds	Good Morning CT	Bread, pasta, pastries. For some of us, these treats are off limits, or so we think. Granted, for those with celiac disease, even a little gluten can be dangerous. But the vast majority of people don't have celiac disease. Now researchers are saying that those who have turned away from gluten for no good reason may be doing themselves more harm than good. Researchers at the American Heart Association presented new data analyzing the diets of nearly 200 thousand people. Those who ate the highest amounts of gluten were actually thirteen percent less likely to develop type two diabetes. And those who try the gluten-free diet to drop a few pounds? The researchers found no significant link between gluten intake and weight. In addition, the researchers think a gluten-free diet could lead to a lack of fiber and whole grains - both important to a healthy diet. A couple reasons to reconsider jumping off the gluten-free bandwagon.

Health	10pm	3/13/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	If you're still recovering from losing that hour of sleep over the weekend you're not alone! Turns out springing forward can do more than leave you tired and grumpy. It can have real health effects. A 2016 study conducted in Finland found the risk for stroke is higher in the two days after daylight saving time begins. The risk is particularly high for cancer patients. Researchers found they're 25 percent more likely to have a stroke just after the daylight saving time switch. People older than 65 were 20 percent more likely to have a stroke. Experts say you can lessen the effects by shifting your sleep schedule gradually over several days.
Education	6am	3/02/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Lawmakers up in the capital have been hearing from educators and local officials about how the governor's budget and proposed cuts will hurt our schools. According to the Hartford Courant, during a public meeting on Wednesday, school officials argued against the governor's proposal to re-distribute funding between towns. The mayor of West Hartford says what's on the table right now would cost her town $8.5 million dollars in aid, putting an undue stress on the school district. They are asking for lawmakers to come up with a different cost sharing formula. Adding that a new cost study on education finance reform to identify proper standards of education is key.
Education	6am	3/15/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	The Archdiocese of Hartford is making what it calls a difficult decision to merge two catholic elementary schools in Hamden. The church says St. Stephen's school will close and its 150 students will be transitioned to St. Rita's school about a mile away. That transition will start next fall.

					years for all Connecticut state university and community college students. The Board of Regents president is recommending a four percent tuition increase for universities each of the next two years. And, a 2.5 percent increase for community colleges. The system is facing a 35 million dollar deficit. A vote on the possible tuition hikes will be held on April 6th.
Crime	10pm	3/01/17	60 seconds	News 8 at 10pm	Governor Malloy says he has a plan to keep Connecticut prisons from becoming crime schools for the young. He's proposing that young people between the ages of 18 and 21, who commit minor crimes, not be sent to prison. Right now there are more than 800 inmates in this state between the ages of 18 and 21. Current law treats them as adults even though some are just months from being juveniles. Under this proposal; Youthful Offender status would not apply to most serious crimes and motor vehicle crimes would remain in adult court.
Crime	6am	3/24/17	60 seconds	Good Morning CT	Police in Milford are looking for a man who tried to rob a bank claiming he had a bomb. Police say he held up the Webster Bank on Merwin Avenue Thursday afternoon. They say he handed the teller a note claiming he had a bomb. It is unclear if he got away with any money but officers say someone in an older green or gray truck picked him up and then took off. If you have a tip-- give Milford police a call.
