MONTEREY BAY AREA'S AMAH MUTSUN SEEK RETURN TO LOST WAY OF LIFE

Descendants of the Native Americans who lived on the Central Coast before the establishment of the missions have an ambitious plan. The Amah Mutsun Tribal Band wants to restore ecosystems that once flourished here: from the deer herds that roamed the land to the medicinal plants that sustained the tribe. It's a plan that will take generations to realize, and the tribe is taking small, but real steps to get there.

Desperate for Transportation Funds, Monterey County and Others Turn to Ballot Box

California's counties are desperate for transportation funds as state and federal dollars dry up. Eleven have put tax measures on the November ballot, including Monterey County. Transportation officials there are asking voters to raise the sales tax to fund an array of improvements. Measure X would approve an increase of three-eighths of a percent over a 30-year period. The revenue would go to the county's Transportation Safety and Investment Plan to maintain local roads, reduce traffic, make walking and biking safer, and improve mobility for seniors and the disabled.

Growing Potholes and Shrinking Budget, Santa Cruz County Turns to Voters

Faced with growing potholes and shrinking government budgets, transportation officials in Santa Cruz County are turning to voters. They're asking people to open up their pocketbooks to help pay for road and transit projects. Measure D on the November ballot would raise the sales tax by a half-cent over the next 30 years. A previous sales tax measure to fund transportation failed in 2004. This year's Measure D needs a two-thirds vote to pass.

TOUGH TERRAIN AND DROUGHT TESTS FIREFIGHTERS IN LOMA FIRE

Firefighters continue to make progress on the Loma Fire burning in the Santa Cruz Mountains. As of Thursday evening, firefighters had reached 22% containment and the fire had burned more than 3,800 acres. It's a fraction of the more than 550,000 acres of land that wildfires have burned this year in California. Cal Fire says that's largely been fueled by the drought.
