Description: A strong online presence is creating 24 hour access between teachers and students, and sometimes things cross the line. A Middle School teacher in Huntington was arrested Monday after sending nude pictures to a student. Situations like this are happening far too often these days due to how connected teachers are with students through social media which opens the door to this type of behavior. Mark Seguin with TBG Solutions says in this day and time, with teachers getting younger and younger, we're seeing an uptick in issues with social media. Local school districts have new policies in place in regards to student teacher communication on social media. The Director of Special Services at Whitehouse ISD says they make it a priority to train teachers, on an annual basis, to make them aware of the perils of social media contact with students.

Description: New details in the re-sentencing trial of Bernie Tiede. On Friday, the jury sentenced Tiede to 99 years to life in prison. Tiede has been back in court since the start of April. This came after it was revealed that Tiede was sexually assaulted as a child. The jury had to decide whether Tiede had served long enough for the murder. According to our newspaper partner The Longview News Journal: The jury which consisted of ten women and two men deliberated about four and a half hours before returning the maximum sentence. One of the main focal points of the state's case against Tiede was to prove he planned to steal money from 81 year-old Marjorie Nugent, both before and after killing her.
