Prepared Date: March 19, 2015

Adams Radio Group is heavily involved in the community and deeply dedicated to the growth and success of the city.

Fort Wayne has been making headlines for all the right reasons. Affordability, downtown and riverfront development, job opportunities, decreasing crime, and a growing art and music scene are some of the reasons this city continues to be the jewel of the Hoosier State. However, the real reason this city continues to grow and thrive are the residents...those individuals and groups in the community working hard to make a difference.

'Focus on Fort Wayne' strives to serve the community by giving a platform to those individuals and groups making a difference. 'Focus on Fort Wayne' can be heard on 7 of the 8 Adams Radio Group stations (Hot 107.9 FM, 96.3 WXKE FM, Soft Rock 103.9 FM, B 96.9 FM, Great Country 103.3 FM, Fox Sports 1250 AM, and 1450 AM The Patriot), each Sunday in the 6 am hour.

Information on guests can be obtained at any station website via AdamsRadioGroup.com.

Air Date: March 22nd, 2015

Guest: Bill Stanczykiewicz, President and CEO, Indiana Youth Institute

Recap: Bill addressed the work that IYI does for children in Indiana. Citing the immense amount of research and development that goes into publishing data to find the areas where our children are lacking and thriving.

The initial interview (taping) spanned 20 minutes approximately (broken into segments for air) on the mission, programs, and goals for IYI. We also covered a number of troubling areas for Indiana's youth including suicide prevention, dating violence, child poverty, and identity theft. (outline from previous segment on file). Bill also covered an upcoming training event for Fort Wayne (information attached).

This particular installment addressed their mission, childhood poverty, identity theft, and upcoming training in Fort Wayne.

Guest: Stephanie Dawn, Concordia Lutheran Church Military Outreach Director

Recap: I received a fax from Concordia Lutheran Church asking us to put their Military Appreciation Dinner on our Community Calendar. Once I looked into it, I was really surprised to find that Concordia has an actual 'Military Outreach' Program as a way to be there for both veterans and active duty servicemen and women, but for their families. Stephanie brought with her a lovely woman named Laurie, who is part of the church but was specifically impacted by this outreach, with her husband retired Air Force and having two sons (one who is currently deployed) in the service. Sometimes, I think we look over what military families go through on a day to day basis. Stephanie pointed out that something as simple as snow removal for a wife whose husband was deployed, as one of the ways they try to be there to appreciate and serve our military and their families.

Stephanie also mentioned that while men and women come home from fighting for this country, they can usually find emotional, financial, and medical support. While those are obviously things we need for our servicemen and women, we often forget the spiritual strain a deployment can do to our military. I found it particularly amazing that Concordia offers 'spiritual care', so to speak. Even through ways just as simple as letting them know they have people who care and will be there for them.

The church also actively sends care packages and cards to our active military.

Concordia Lutheran's Military Outreach program is such a shining example of how Fort Wayne takes care of each other.

We also spoke about the Appreciation Dinner and how others can get involved (See attached).

Dear Adams Radio Group:

Thank you for helping make ChocolateFest 2015 a success. We really appreciate your Radio Promotions gift(s). Our Foundation is dedicated to supporting kids, "One Child and One Community at a Time", our motto.

Your participation with your gift has helped raise over $2000 for Riley hospital and kids in Northeast Indiana. Many people do not know that Riley Hospital was established in part by the Downtown Indianapolis Kiwanis chapter, spearheading the founding monies from throughout Kiwanis international clubs in the 1920's. Riley is now a renowned comprehensive hospital for children all over the state. Kiwanis volunteers can often be seen volunteering their time to help kids smile while they are there.

Lastly, Kiwanis is looking for great volunteers as club members. The Kiwanis Club of John Chapman meets Wednesday mornings at 7am at the Sun Rise Café. We would love to have you as a guest and we will even buy you breakfast! Come by anytime.

Thanks again and see you at ChocolateFest 2016!

Indiana ranks high in student suicide, child poverty

INDIANAPOLIS –Teens in Indiana are more likely to think about taking their own lives than students in any other state in the nation. Hoosier children also are still struggling to live outside of poverty, despite the current economic recovery.

Those facts are just some of many found inside the 2015 KIDS COUNT® in Indiana Data Book compiled by the Indiana Youth Institute. The annual book provides data from hundreds of national and statewide sources to paint a picture of the state of Hoosier children and families.

The top three topics for this year's book are:

Suicide:

- Indiana has the highest rate in the nation of teens who have considered suicide in the past 12 months (19%).
- Indiana has the second-highest rate in the nation of teens who have attempted suicide (11%).

“Every Hoosier needs to be aware of these high rankings,” says Indiana Youth Institute President and CEO Bill Stanczykiewicz. “The mental and emotional challenges Hoosier students face are very real. Youth, parents and other caring adults need to be aware of the warning signs so they can intervene now and make sure these kids don't reach a state of desperation where they feel taking their own life is the only solution.”

Poverty and the Economy:

- Single-mother families are not experiencing the same economic recovery seen in single-father or married couple families.
- While Indiana incomes are rebounding from the recession, child poverty is not improving at the same rate—22 percent of Hoosier children still live in poverty.

Stanczykiewicz goes on to say, “Even though the economy is getting better, poverty and child poverty are usually the last indicators to improve. Many times, that is due to issues related to family structure and economic structures. We need to redouble our efforts to meet these kids' needs and help them achieve academic and future success so they can break the cycle of poverty.”

Education:

- Indiana ranks ninth-worst in the nation for student-to-school counselor ratio. Indiana has one counselor for every 535 students. Additionally, counselors say most of their time is not spent on getting kids ready for college or the workforce.

“Today's economy requires education beyond high school,” Stanczykiewicz adds. “Counselors are usually the first line of defense in helping our teens decide what their future could look like. But many of those counselors are overwhelmed by the high number of students for which they are responsible, as well as other duties and issues they deal with every day. We need parents, community organizations and mentors to help fill the gaps and set these young people on a path to success in a 21st century economy.”

Other important issues included in the book are:

Family Life:

- Indiana children are more likely to be abused or neglected by their own parents than any other group of perpetrators.
- 19 percent of Hoosier children living in poverty have witnessed domestic violence.

Infant Mortality:

- Indiana infants are 25 percent more likely to die within their first year of life than the national average.
- One of the leading risk factors for infant mortality is mothers who smoke or use illegal drugs while pregnant. One in six Hoosier mothers admit to smoking while pregnant.

Drug Usage:

- For the first time on record, the percentage of 12th graders who tried marijuana outpaced the number who tried cigarettes in 2014.
- Abuse of prescription drugs among teens has increased by more than 95 percent from 2003 to 2014. A dangerous trend contributing to the problem is known as “pharming parties” during which teens trade and share different prescriptions.

School Violence:

- One in twenty (5.2%) Indiana parents of school-aged children feel their child is never or only sometimes safe at school.
- In Indiana, 28.2 percent of high school girls and 21.8 percent of boys reported being bullied on school property in 2011.
- More than a quarter of Indiana’s high school girls (25.5%) and about 1 in 8 boys (12.1%) were electronically bullied in the past year.

The data book is funded by the Annie E. Casey Foundation (AECF), as part of its national effort to inform program and policy decisions based on real-world data. Some data from this book also will be included in AECF’s national KIDS COUNT Data Book, which provides state by state comparisons of child well-being and will be released this summer. The 2014 national KIDS COUNT Data Book is available online here. Indiana’s updated statewide data can be found here,

The Indiana Youth Institute promotes the healthy development of Indiana children and youth by serving the people, institutions and communities that impact their well-being.

State of the County: Local Youth Trends

FORT WAYNE, Ind. – From teen drug use to education, poverty and health information, they're the numbers that paint a picture of what life is really like for children and teens in Allen County. But sorting through piles of papers and hundreds of government sources is a time-consuming and tedious process. That is why the Indiana Youth Institute (IYI) is hosting a seminar to help educators, counselors, youth ministers, youth workers, parents and others learn more about what's going on with young people in Allen County.

IYI Data Program Associate Aimee Wilkinson will walk attendees through the numbers in the 2015 KIDS COUNT® in Indiana Data Book that was released on Feb. 16. Wilkinson will also provide the most up-to-date information specifically for Allen County. Attendees will learn not only how they can use all the data compiled by IYI but also how to find the most reliable numbers to learn what is truly going on in their local communities. This information can be used to write grant proposals, understand trends among youth and plan programs to address potential issues in Allen County.

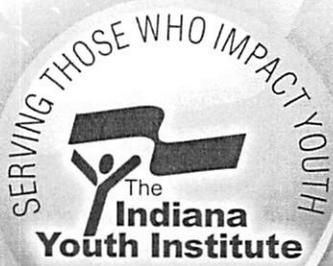

The forum will run from 8:30 to 10 a.m. on Thursday, March 12 at Parkview Field, 1301 Ewing Street, Fort Wayne, 46802. Attendees will meet in the Lincoln Financial Event Center. Free parking is available in the Tincaps "Silver" lot at Brackenridge and Ewing Streets. This forum is made possible by the collaborative efforts of the Early Childhood Alliance, Bowen Center, Benchmark Family Services and IYI.

As part of IYI's Youth Worker Café program, the seminar and meal are free, but reservations are required. RSVP by Monday, March 9 by clicking this link. If you have trouble with the link, please contact IYI Statewide Outreach Manager Debbie Jones at djones@iyi.org.

Youth Worker Cafés are designed to bring together local youth workers to build relationships and inspire collaborations that will benefit children. For more information on the Youth Worker Café, contact IYI Northeast Indiana Outreach Manager Juanita Goodwell at jgoodwell@iyi.org.

Flipping the Resilience Switch

Christian Moore, L.C.S.W., Founder of WhyTry, Provo, UT

Resilience is something we're all born with: from the homeless person on the street to the Harvard business grad. Most of us just haven't learned how to tap into what's already inside of us. Christian draws on his experiences of growing up on the streets near Washington, DC, with severe learning disabilities to help explain why some people are able to thrive under any circumstances while others crumble when faced with small challenges. Learn how anyone can "flip the resilience switch" by tapping into the four sources of resilience – street, relational, resource and rock bottom.

Keeping Kids SAFE: Screening Mentor Applicants to Ensure Child Safety

Jen Lindwall, Consultant

We would all agree that the safety of children and youth is one of our top priorities as youth serving organizations. At the same time, it seems that there is a new youth-serving story in the news every day disclosing a young person who was a victim of sexual abuse. As mentoring professionals, it is our responsibility to create a thoughtful and thorough screening process to keep the kids we work safe from this type of harm.

How can we best screen volunteers to ensure safety? Are background checks really enough to keep kids safe, or is there more we should be doing? What do we need in place to make sure that people who might harm kids don't get through our process without excluding caring volunteers?

The Screening Applicants for Effectiveness (SAFE) training was developed by Friends for Youth and includes the latest in child molestation research, wisdom from decades of experience with screening volunteers, and recommendations from leading experts on child exploitation based on the book SAFE: Guidelines to Prevent Child Molestation in Mentoring and Youth-Serving Organizations.

This workshop will focus on characteristics of child predators, the grooming process, and red flags that will cue you to take a closer look at potential mentors and ensure they are the right fit for your program. Participants will come away with tools and approaches for the screening process that range from first contact with a potential mentor until long after the match is made.

This content is adaptable to both those new to the field and those who are more experienced. Join us and learn how to use both subjective and objective observations during the screening process to make the best decisions you can, and make sure that all the youth you serve stay SAFE!

Graduation and Beyond! How to Help More Students Achieve College and Career Success

Kate Coffman, Director of College & Career Counseling, Indiana Youth Institute, and Tracy Butler, Tracy Butler Consulting LLC

"There has to be a more effective way for our program to help students achieve their dreams!" We hear it all the time, and we know that schools can't do it alone. Learn how your youth organization can be part of the success sequence for your students. This hands-on session will walk you through a process to identify concrete actions your staff can take to immediately strengthen your program. Gain a better understanding of what your program has to offer, what your results are telling you and how you can use your results to provide more effective student support. Drawn from the new College and Career Mentoring Toolkit, we will share practical skills and activities to either develop a new college and career success program or take your existing program to a higher level.

About Christian Moore, L.C.S.W.

Christian is the founder of the WhyTry program which is used in more than 16,000 youth organizations worldwide. It teaches social and emotional skills using a unique, multisensory learning approach in addition to resiliency-building techniques, and it provides youth with the motivation and confidence to reach their positive goals and succeed in life. Christian consults with thousands of school districts across the U.S. on how to lower dropout rates, improve school climate, prevent bullying and close the achievement gap by teaching social and emotional education to all students.

About Jen Lindwall

Jen Lindwall was formerly the Director of Training and Quality Assurance at the Mentoring Partnership of MN which provides training and support for several hundred mentoring programs in the Midwestern region. Jen was certified to deliver the Screening Applicants for Effectiveness (SAFE) training in April 2013 and is one of six certified SAFE trainers in the country. Prior to her time at MPM, Jen worked in a faith community overseeing the Service Learning Department where she collaborated with a team to create and implement a mentoring program for more than 200 youth in the community.

About Melissa Brown

Melissa Brown advises nonprofit organizations, offering services for data analysis, nonprofit sector research, program evaluation, and project management. She worked for nearly 20 years at the Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University (now the Lilly Family School of Philanthropy). For 10 of those years, she served as managing editor of Giving USA. Ms. Brown is a member of Association of Fundraising Professionals, serves on its national Research Council and is on the Advisory Council for Foundation Search. She is an IYI consultant, with an emphasis on program evaluation.

About Kathryn Coffman, M.S.

For the past four years, Kate has overseen all of IYI's college and career counseling initiatives including the Postsecondary Counseling Institute, Trip to College and Drive of Your Life. Most recently, Kate has helped launch Trip to College Alerts, a free texting service that provides student and parents with timely advice and necessary deadlines to stay on track for education after high school. Prior to joining IYI, Kate worked in college admissions and financial aid for more than 10 years at Indiana University, Franklin College and the State Student Assistance Commission of Indiana.

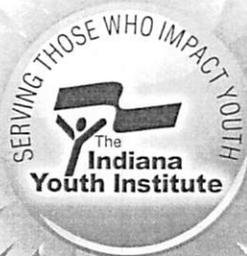

About Tracy Butler

As a consultant, Tracy Butler has worked with IYI since 2002. She has worked with the Indiana Mentoring Partnership (IMP), an IYI initiative, since its inception in 2008, and she currently provides support to the Indiana College Success Mentoring initiative. Her areas of focus are postsecondary success, quality youth mentoring and education reform. Her IYI portfolio includes nonprofit strategic planning, community mobilization, facilitation and training. Tracy is active in the community and volunteers with numerous nonprofits supporting educational success for under-resourced children and families.
