Program Name: The Point

Issue: Pollution, Environmentalism

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Much environmentalism today assumes that humans are always the problem, and our activity is always harmful. But the more we study, the more we realize how resilient living things are.

Recently, USA Today and the BBC reported that the infamous Pacific Ocean garbage patch—an area of more than 610,000 square miles littered with manmade trash—has become a thriving habitat for small marine animals.

Scientists have found arthropods, crabs, and mollusks on more than 90% of debris—some of the species that would never live so far out to sea. Of course, litter is very bad for the ocean and the environment, but these reports remind us how resilient life is... it's almost as if it wasn't an accident that shouldn't be here, but a carefully designed part of how God made the world.

Date: 1/7/2022

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Pro Life, Rape

Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Many compassionate Christians feel that abortion should be allowed if the baby was conceived by rape. Well-intended people have accepted the myth that most women want an abortion when pregnant from sexual assault. But a study showed about three-quarters of these victims actually choose life for their babies. Of those who chose abortion, nearly 90% regretted their decisions. Nearly all of them would not recommend abortion to women in a similar circumstance. And nearly half felt pressured by others to abort. Of those who chose life for their babies, not one regretted her decision. Many women feel an abortion would be a second violent assault on their bodies and double the mental anguish. Let's pray for these women and encourage them to choose life for their babies.

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Pro Life, Prenatal testing, abortion

Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: This week we're talking about pressure on parents by the medical community to abort at the first sign of a pregnancy challenge. Doctors commonly push for prenatal testing so parents can abort babies with medical conditions. The New York Times, an ardent supporter of abortion, just released shocking information that these medical tests are "usually wrong." Tests for missing pieces of chromosomes called microdeletions have a shocking average failure rate of eighty-five percent. We're talking about targeting and aborting huge numbers of preborn children. One large test maker is Natera that in 2020 tested about 10% of America's pregnant women. Imagine the enormous loss of life of healthy babies. But regardless of their medical condition, unborn babies should be protected and loved.

Issue: Human Rights, Abortion

Time Aired: 12:30 PM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: It was a heartbreaking video to watch. Eighteen-year-old Alexis Avila callously tossed her newborn baby boy – in a black trash bag – into a dumpster behind a store in New Mexico. Her actions went unnoticed until others heard the baby crying. A store security camera caught the crime. Rescuers pulled the infant from the trash, rushed him to the hospital and he survived. Alexis confessed and was charged with attempted murder and child abuse. All fifty states have safe haven laws allowing a mother to surrender her newborn, no questions asked. But in New Mexico a woman can get an abortion for any reason throughout pregnancy. So, we shouldn't be surprised when mothers treat their infants like garbage when unborn babies can be legally treated like human trash.

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Pro-Life, Voting

Time Aired: 12:30 PM

Duration: :60

Description: This shows the importance of voting pro-life on every level of the political spectrum – regardless of whether you think the candidate will vote on abortion. The city council of Mason, Ohio – a suburb of Cincinnati – voted in October to support an ordinance making it a Sanctuary City for the Unborn. But the next month, all the newly elected council members voted to repeal the ordinance. They said it was nothing more than a political ploy to get votes. Well, if it was so meaningless, why did they feel the need to repeal it? If Roe v Wade is reversed or seriously impacted this year by the Supreme Court, votes like these can make a real impact in the number of lives we save from abortion. I wouldn't vote a dogcatcher into office unless he or she was pro-life. It's always important to vote pro-life.

Date: 2/1/2022

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Human Extinction, NASA

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

In a recent essay, Oxford Professor Roger Crisp toyed with the idea that human extinction may not be a bad thing after all. With so much suffering on Earth, he argues, if NASA were to locate a massive asteroid hurtling towards our planet, we would be justified in letting it obliterate us.

“I am not claiming that extinction would be good;” Crisp clarified, “only that, since it might be, we should devote a lot more attention to thinking about the value of extinction than we have to date.”

This is an Oxford philosopher of ethics, but he’s wrestling with an idea that long ago left the ivory tower.

Wesley Smith of the Discovery Institute put it this way: “With our supposedly best minds suggesting that human extinction could be desirable, is it any wonder that so many of our young people seem to be despairing?”

When God is taken out of the moral picture, reason evaporates, as does the rest of our moral logic. Someone tell Bruce Willis and the rest of his team from Armageddon, the mission is off.

Date: 2/4/2022

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Abortion

Time Aired: 12:30 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Abortionists and their supporters constantly complain that those who take the lives of innocent unborn children are shunned in polite society. As well they should be. They also claim abortion is healthcare, but oppose any commonsense protections for women who enter their facilities. Any outpatient surgical facility is subject to a variety of safety regulations like requiring working elevators and hallways that can accommodate gurneys. Women have died in abortion mills because they don't have adequate facilities. In one case, EMTs had to carry a collapsible wheelchair up three flights of stairs and carry the patient back down, which took precious time during a critical emergency. The abortion industry will never be legitimate healthcare. Their goal is killing, not healing.

The course explains how institutions are important and how we can rebuild trust that is informed and has significance for culture shaping.

Maria then asks John to explain a recent commentary on technology that paints a picture to how and why Christians should be involved with technology as it guides and impacts society. Berry acknowledges that a wife should not try to nag her husband into Heaven. If she allows her Christian witness to do the "talking," God can use her faithfulness to convert her husband.

Youngkin named Angela Sailor to the role and elevated it to a cabinet-level position. But instead of advancing extreme social issues, the Director will "promote ideas, policies and practices to eliminate disparities in prenatal, care and be an ambassador for unborn children." Now that's true inclusion! Sailor will also promote "free speech and civil discourse, including viewpoint diversity" at universities where pro-life and other biblical values are routinely censored. The Director will also "be responsive to the rights of parents in education." This is diversity we can all get behind.

For Hannah’s mother, 17-year-old Ellie Patton and her partner Brandon, Hannah became a living miracle. Hannah’s survival—and the natural joy so many feel at her fight for life—are just another moral paradox for those who maintain that the unborn aren’t fully human. It’s a fiction that is getting harder to maintain.

Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Pro-Life, Abortion, Media

Time Aired: 12:30 PM. 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Earlier I told you about Calum Miller, an Oxford University researcher and medical doctor. He exposed “outright falsehoods” touted by pro-abortion media, the World Bank, UNICEF and the United Nations, among others. They claimed 12,000 women die each year in Malawi from illegal, back-alley abortions. This, they say, requires pro-life nations to legalize abortion to protect women – another false conclusion. Dr. Miller showed the real number to be around 1100, less than ten percent of the falsely touted number. To its credit, a major British news outlet, The Telegraph has come clean and published a correction, a big pro-life victory. Dr. Miller says the Royal College of OB/GYNs should follow suit, but so far, they’re sticking to the well-worn lie.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Assisted Suicide, Ethics, Human Dignity

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

Instead of having a doctor or nurse on hand, Nova Scotia's new "oral protocol" puts the ability to take lethal medicine in the hands of "patients" themselves. Incredibly, that could decrease the total number of assisted deaths in Canada.

When using the oral method, up to 40% of California residents chose not to go through with the procedure. By contrast, asks ethicist Daryl Pullmann, why do only 2% of Canadians choose the same?

Perhaps the presence of medical personnel creates a kind of "unintentional coercion," a troubling thought, given that over 7,000 Canadians died from assisted suicide in 2020.

But the bigger problem, like the law taking effect in 2023 in Canada which allows for death on the basis of "mental health" issues alone, is that "We seem to be rushing headlong for a precipice here," as Pullman said in an interview. "We're medicalizing suicide effectively so that people who, for whatever reason, judge their life to be unacceptable [can] get medical assistance in ending their life." Human dignity is too important a thing to squander in our haste.

A student opinion piece appeared in the school magazine promoting abortion, which is clearly contrary to the church's teaching. Their response was refreshingly swift. They redacted the entire issue and fired the two faculty advisors who let the pro-abortion piece be published. I congratulate their response and encourage leadership at all faith-based schools to follow their lead. Their reaction was important to combat evil and stand for truth. Students were watching these school officials. Would they stand firm on the biblical truth of abortion, or let it slide? By firing the teachers, students, staff and parents received a lesson that standing on biblical principles and standing on biblical truth matters.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Censorship, Education, Free Speech

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

Free speech is very much at risk on college campuses.

According to one study, some 66% of students say that "it is acceptable to shout down a speaker to prevent them from speaking on campus." And, over 80% of students report self-censoring their own viewpoints out of fear of saying the wrong thing.

But as the Atlantic's Jennifer Miller reports, a new, grassroots movement of civil-dialogue clubs is offering a strong response in support of free speech. One such organization is Bridge USA.

As one of their student leaders put it, "Not being able to speak openly [is] I think, one of the main problems. I just wanted to create this community where anyone could feel like they could express their ideas and actually be heard."

This is a particularly worthy aim for a student, and for Christians, who should never be afraid to bring their best ideas to the table. Christianity, after all, is the best explanation for reality there is. Thus, we don't need other people to "self-censor" their opinions around us. We extend an invitation to all to join us in exploring truth in love, an invite God extends to us.

And, when we do, it can be a tremendous witness in an age of stifled public discourse.

It's difficult to achieve world communist domination when you don't have enough workers. Men can't find wives due to the abortion of millions of girl babies. Unmarried women are now discouraged from aborting. The China Family Planning Association announced, "We will rebuild the culture of raising up multiple children in a family and build a new positive culture of marriage and parenting." Their previous law allowing women to have two children failed, so they've expanded it to three. They now promote parental leave, increased rights for working women, and improving childcare infrastructure." But they still carry out genocide of the Uyghur population.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Abortion, The Pill

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

In 2020, America reached a grim milestone. According to the pro-abortion Guttmacher Institute, 2020 was the first year that more than half of all abortions performed in the U.S.—54%—were done with drugs instead of instruments. That's up from 39% in 2017.

Abortion pills are only approved for use before a baby reaches 10 weeks' gestation. Due to COVID-19, prescriptions became available via "telehealth." But how can a doctor verify gestational age without seeing a woman in person? In fact, how is a doctor supposed to monitor women for life-threatening complications after they take the drugs—which do happen—if they never even come into the office?

Privatizing abortion for hurting women will increase profits for drug companies and doctors, who can collect their dues without seeing patients, let alone treating them. However, sending abortion home also increases the danger, shame, and isolation of women in need of care. And, of course, adding this bad idea to an already bad idea makes more babies the victims. A grim milestone, indeed.

These killing centers that failed inspections perform the vast majority of abortions in the state. Since pro-abortion governor Tom Wolf has been in office, Planned Parenthood raked in over 19-million tax dollars, while being the majority of abortion facilities that failed their inspections. Program Name: Life Issues

Issue: Infacide

Time Aired: 12:30 AM, 5:25 PM

Duration: :60

Description: A so-called bioethicist, Walter Veit is defending infanticide. He authored an article in the Journal of Medical Ethics titled, Does Birth Matter? His reasoning is since it's legal to abort babies up to the point of birth, there's no moral difference to kill a baby right after she's born. Years ago, my colleague Dr. Jack Willke and I warned euthanasia would follow abortion surely as night follows day. Even some of our pro-life colleagues thought we were overstating the possibilities. But time and again some claiming to advocate medical ethics try to justify such a morally bankrupt philosophy. In the past, they justified abortion so women can control their own bodies. But now the baby is clearly separate from the mother. What we're witnessing is a slippery slope of death.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Ukraine, War

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description:

During World War II, Jewish teenager Fania Rosenfield lost nearly her entire family to the Nazis. She somehow managed to escape the slaughter happening in her town and find refuge for two years with a Ukrainian family before settling in Israel to begin a new life.

Fania repeatedly told the story of the brave Ukrainian family who saved her to her children and grandchildren. And, a few weeks ago when the Russian invasion of Ukraine was imminent, Fania's granddaughter made a choice to reach out to the family who had saved her grandmother. Now, two young cousins from that Ukrainian family have fled to Israel and are safe with Fania's family.

In the utter darkness of wartime, such as we're now witnessing in Ukraine, we wonder why a good God would allow such evil. Stories like this, of families transcending national, political, ethnic, and generational lines to sacrificially love others, remind us to thank God for allowing such beauty in the world.

He finds that prayer is the difference between the best we can do, and the best God can do. Most importantly, prayer is not about outlining our agenda to the Lord—it's about getting into His presence and letting Him outline His agenda to us.

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Supreme Court, Monogomy, Religious Freedom

Time Aired: 12 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description:

Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson sat before the Senate this week and boldly stated that she does not know what a woman is because she's not a biologist. Her statement says a lot, not necessarily about the judge, as John points out, but more about how we view the judiciary in this cultural moment.

John and Maria also explain that the so-called trend of "radical monogamy" and society's need for more than consent are actually best housed inside Christianity. As John describes, these moments are a revisiting of history. He reveals how the power of sexuality is a physical reality, similar to gravity. Society highlights cultural moments like these as turning points when in reality these principles have been grounded inside God's design.

Maria then shares the story of a high school football coach, Joe Kennedy, who simply prayed for his players privately on the field after football games. His school fired him, and his subsequent religious freedom court case is set to see the Supreme Court next month. John and Maria discuss the court case and project how the case will be received and why we can have encouragement and hope as we consider this situation.

To close, John revisits a few BreakPoint commentaries from the week. Specifically, John reviews a BreakPoint on how we should pray for the people in Russia, praying through all of the Psalms including the imprecatory Psalms that call for justice on specific people in a specific moment.

Description: It's often the little things that change the heart of an abortion-minded woman. Many know abortion isn't the answer and are desperately looking for a sign from God to save this baby. The pro-life Forty Days for Life group that prays and engages mothers going into abortion facilities shared examples. The rudeness of abortion center staff caused a mother to leave. Another woman saw a sign that touched her heart. It read "take my hand, not my life." This particular message was developed at our office. Several mothers have said the simple presence of peaceful, prayerful pro-lifers in front of an abortion center changed their minds. Please always be mindful that God may use a kind or engaging word or simple offer of help from you to save a baby's life.

According to Pew Research, a growing number of Americans are realizing the importance of the nuclear family.

Just three years ago, 40% of Americans agreed with the statement “single women raising children on their own is bad for society.” That number has now jumped to 47%. The same is true of cohabitation, which nearly a quarter of U.S. adults say is “generally bad for society.” That’s up 5% from three years ago.

It’s an encouraging swing for public opinion, especially with both trends still on the rise. Kids do best with both a mom and a dad in the picture. They do better still when mom and dad stay married to each other.

Of course, there are a plenty of heroic single parents raising kids on their own, who will do everything they can to help their kids succeed. Data isn’t destiny for all individuals, but it is destiny for a society. The loss of marriage is unsustainable. As the world leader in single-parent households, Americans will either have to reckon with that basic truth, or the next generations will continue to pay the price.
