CELEBRATE TRUTH AND STORIES AT THE SOUTH DAKOTA FESTIVAL OF BOOKS

Join SDPB and the South Dakota Humanities Council for the 2018 Festival of Books, Sept. 21-23 in Brookings.

The theme, "What's True, What's False & What's Important," examines the essential role a free press plays in a democracy. Join SDPB for these exciting programs at the always-engaging festival.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18

Special Free Screening: The Lovely Bones followed by discussion with Jay Fishback, local filmmaker.

1pm, Brookings Cinema 8, Theater #5.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

The Great American Read Film Screenings hosted by Jay Fishback, local filmmaker.

Fishback Studio Theater, Performing Arts Center, SDSU campus, Brookings

What is lost and gained when books we love are adapted for the screen? An engaging exploration around a mix of iconic books made into films with titles from PBS's The Great American Read.

The Grapes of Wrath* – 9am

Follow the Joads as they lose their Oklahoma farm in the Great Depression and become migrant workers in California to survive.

The Outsiders* – 11:30am

This coming-of-age film takes on the timeless themes of teenage isolation and the desire for a sense of belonging.

The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy* – 1:30pm

A wild cosmic adventure adapted from Douglas Adams.

The Great Gatsby* – 3:30pm

The New York Times called the film, "a lavishly theatrical celebration of the emotional and material extravagance that Fitzgerald surveyed with fascinated ambivalence."

In the Moment Live from the Festival of Books

SDPB's In the Moment broadcasts live from the festival. Join Lori Walsh at Larson Memorial Concert Hall in the Performing Arts Center on the SDSU campus, at 11am CT, Friday, Sept. 21.

Special live broadcast from the Festival of Books includes:

Julie Buntin – Author of Marlena. Named a best book by NPR, Publishers Weekly, Kirkus Reviews and more, Marlena is the story of two teenage girls, addiction, love and loss in rural Michigan.

Gabe Habash – Author of Stephen Florida. NPR called

Stephen Florida, "one of the most fascinating characters to come along in quite a while." The debut novel follows a North Dakota college wrestler obsessed with his sport.

Angelica Shirley Carpenter – Author of Born Criminal: Matilda Joslyn Gage, Radical Suffragist.

A colleague of Elizabeth Cady Stanton's, Gage was a leader in the early women's movement in her own right.

Thomas E. Patterson – Author of Informing the News: The Need for Knowledge-Based Journalism.

Patterson calls for nothing less than a major overhaul of journalism practice and education.

An Evening with Alice Sebold: The Great American Read Special Event in Conversation with Lori Walsh

Larson Memorial Concert Hall, Performing Arts Center, SDSU Campus, Friday, Sept. 21, 7pm. Walsh and Sebold discuss writing and the power fiction plays in telling the truth.

This Place, These Words

South Dakota Books

by Katy Beem

As SDPB engages with folks throughout the state around PBS's series The Great American Read, we've learned South Dakotans are no less literarily inclined than our compatriots. Be it fiction or history, paper, electronic and audio – we read ourselves to sleep with novels, recite Sues to our kiddos, and pass our ample I-90 drive times consuming Audible chapters.

In essence, we're passionate about the written word. Reports of its death are greatly exaggerated.

And while we enjoy bestsellers, South Dakotans value local stories: The Children's Blizzard, Buffalo for the Broken Heart, Little House books and other regional reads are routinely proffered as favorites.

In celebration of the enduring power of books and our devotion to South Dakota's stories, this month's Dakota Life provides intimate portraits of three of our state's distinct literary heritages, including poet laureate Lee Ann Roripaugh, Nicholas Black Elk's great-great grandson Myron Pourier, and Charles Berdahl, a descendant of Ole Rolvaag, author of Giants in the Earth. Tune in and tip a few titles from South Dakota's collective bookshelf.

Word Betrayals

South Dakota State Poet Laureate

Lee Ann Roripaugh

As a poet, Lee Ann Roripaugh plucks and arranges words – English, Japanese, and hybrid – like fruit brimming in a bowl. Her resplendent lines chime with musicality while articulating Roripaugh's observations of the coarse beauty of Midwestern landscapes, Japanese fables, and her own contrastive identities.

Growing up in Wyoming, Roripaugh was raised by a Japanese mother who dressed her daughter in kimonos and fretted over her femininity. Roripaugh's father, a writing professor who ranched and rodeoed, taught her to hunt sage grouse and field dress antelope. The full spectrum of her experiences flourishes in her poetry. "As a child you don't know what the outside world is like," says Roripaugh. "The way your household is, is the way it is. That shifting seemed normal. It wasn't until I was more of an adult that I began to process the ways in which those were some radical cultural elements I had going on at the same time. I think it played out in my art in the sense that I'm writing about an Asian American experience that is maybe somewhat more atypical."

A classically trained pianist and violinist, Roripaugh has a master's in musicology and an MFA in poetry. Currently, she teaches writing, poetry and literature at the University of South Dakota, is editor-in-chief of South Dakota Review, and serves as South Dakota's state poet laureate. Roripaugh's classes and readings are popular, as her lyrical explorations of intersecting identities and the natural world resonate with readers and writers. "I've really been genuinely moved by how attentive, welcoming, and engaged all the communities have been," says Roripaugh. "Poetry seems to be something that people do want to turn to, or it speaks to them in a more personal or intimate way than a political speech, a Facebook post, or a news article."

Roripaugh knows familiarly the solace and pain words can carry. Versed as a young child from her immigrant mother in what she terms "JapEnglish," Roripaugh's foray into school was marked by a "thorniness with language." Words, simply, were not always what they seemed. She deems the phenomenon "word betrayals," and evokes them extensively in her work, including her fourth book, titled Dandarians. "Dandarians" was my mother's way of pronouncing dandelions. It was a shock to discover it was dandelions, not 'dandarians,' which I actually prefer. The idea that one's relationship to language as an immigrant is always already complicated is something that I explore."

Twice "dandarians" has piqued conflict between daughter and mother, eventually leading to a three-year estrangement, a topic she discusses on Dakota Life. "So, there's also this tension, or danger around the word or the language in this liminal, hybrid space."

She's turning to essays to explore the fissure and healing of the relationship, her keen eye still trained on landscape, self, and belonging. "I think I'm very much a poet of place, even though it might not be readily apparent to certain kinds of readers," says Roripaugh. "When you live in the Midwest or Great Plains, certain kinds of iconic images, characters, and vistas say, 'this is what it means to be a regional writer.' They're iconic for a good reason. But as a poet, for me it's important to be able to see things in new ways. Every single katydid, every cricket song on the horizon, or discarded cicada shell that's filled with rain that I've seen in Vermillion or elsewhere, that's what poet Ted Kooser would call 'local wonders.'"

Giants in the Earth

In 1896, Ole Edvart Rolvaag emigrated from Norway to work his uncle's farm north of Elk Point. He graduated from Canton's Augustana Academy in 1901 and began writing seriously as an undergraduate at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota, where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees and taught Norwegian language and literature.

Rolvaag's best-known novel, Giants in the Earth, concerns an 1870s Norwegian immigrant family homesteading in southeastern Dakota Territory. Set in a fictitious Norwegian settlement between Flandreau and Sioux Falls, Rolvaag's vivid descriptions of the unbroken prairie and realistic portrayals of people in conflict with one another and with a harsh environment were based on his own experiences and on stories from those who had lived the pioneer life in South Dakota. On a deeper level, Rolvaag's main characters personify the paradox of the immigrant experience: the desire to embrace a new life and become successful vs. intense language and culture loss. Although some critics at the time thought Rolvaag focused too narrowly on the Norwegian-American experience, others defended it as an accurate description of the universal immigrant dilemma.

The Rolvaag Writing Cabin, where Rolvaag penned Giants in the Earth, now sits on the Augustana University campus, near the Berdahl-Rolvaag House. This month's Dakota Life features a conversation with Charles Berdahl, of Sioux Falls, a descendant of Rolvaag and his wife, Jennie Berdahl.

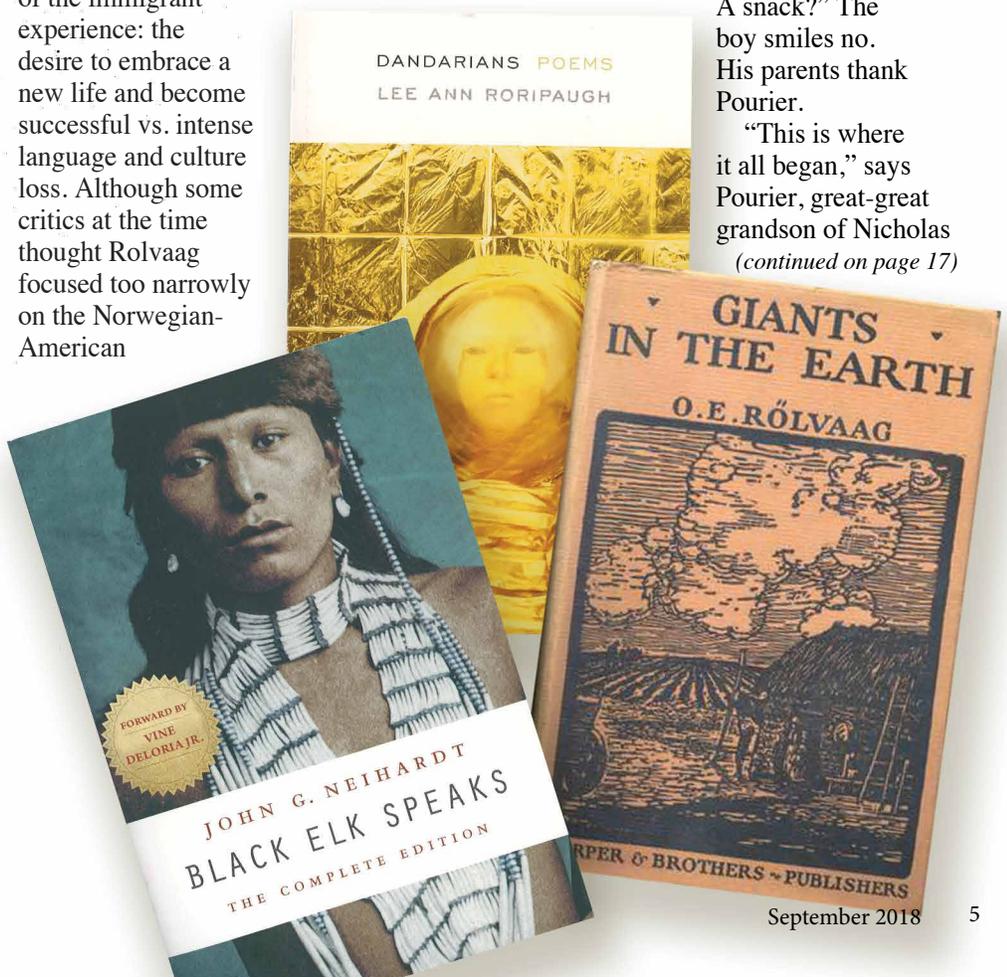

Black Elk Speaks: Carrying on the Vision

For many, Black Elk Peak is a powerful place of prayer. But remaining mindful of heritage and history as one wends the incline of Trail #9 from Sylvan Lake requires discipline. Not only does the mind wander, diversions amidst the granite outcroppings and harebell patches are dogged: tourist helicopters chop overhead, packs of chatty tween campers – phones aloft, often mid-selfie – hustle the path. Of course, one's own thirst and breathlessness also distract.

It helps to walk the trail with Myron Pourier, whose magnanimousness rubs off. "Hey, buddy, you're doing great," he encourages a nearby hiker of kindergarten age. "You need water?

A snack?" The boy smiles no. His parents thank Pourier.

"This is where it all began," says Pourier, great-great grandson of Nicholas

For most, a trip to France includes fine food, local wines, beautiful cities and celebrated culture of all kinds. On Nature: Wild France, this is a trip of a different sort altogether, featuring the unexpected flora and fauna of the country, both great and small. Journeying from the Pyrenees to the Alps, all around the mainland and farther on to Corsica, it is the story of the wild side of France.

The Mayo Clinic: Faith, Hope, Science

South Dakota's Karl Schenk is featured in Ken Burns-produced documentary about

“The Miracle in the Cornfield.”

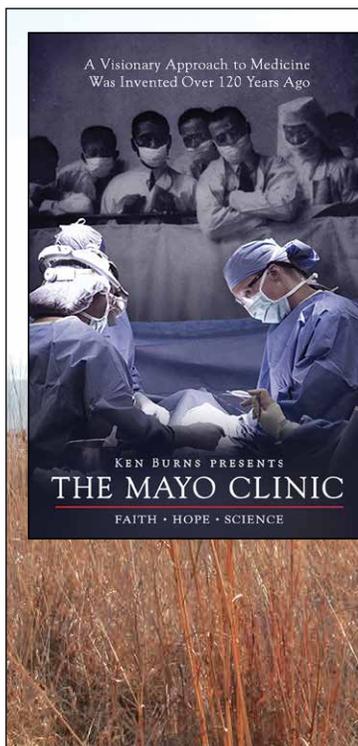

by Katy Beem

It was combine season, late October 2014, when a terrible pain in Karl Schenk's back forced him from the field at his Mission Hill farm near Yankton. “I told my crew, ‘Guys, I'm going home, I don't feel good,’” says Schenk. “Farmers live for harvest and to walk away is difficult no matter how tired or sick you might be.”

When the pain and flu-like symptoms did not abate, Schenk and his wife, a family practice physician, made an appointment. Convinced a stone was blocking Schenk's duct, the doctors attempted removal. Next, Schenk was sent to a gastrointestinal specialist in Omaha, who also attempted removal. Symptoms persisted. An additional CT scan revealed a tumor. An immediate biopsy proved malignancy. “Your stomach migrates to your ankles very quickly when they give you that kind of news,” says Schenk. “We all know somebody who's had pancreatic cancer and we know their laps around the sun are very limited.”

Neither were Schenk's doctors hopeful. “They walk out of the room and that's pretty much the end of it. There's not a lot of optimism in the medical community regarding pancreatic cancer.” Schenk was told foregoing treatment could mean six more weeks of life, chemo might win six months. Doctors declared he was not a candidate for surgery, as his tumor was wrapped around the celiac vessel. “That is an area where surgeons will not go,” says Schenk. “It's too complicated and the risks are too high. They told me to get my affairs in order.”

Then, luck struck. Schenk's wife has a brother with a PhD in research at Mayo Clinic who insisted they go to Rochester for a second opinion. An appointment was open the next day. More luck: the original surgeon was not available and instead Schenk saw Dr. Mark Truty. “He wasn't overly optimistic, but he was positive.” As long as Schenk responded to Karl, now cancer-free, walks with his son.

FOLFIRONOX, a chemotherapy drug, Truty proposed surgery as an option.

Surgical removal, called the Whipple procedure, prior to chemo is often the first order of business with pancreatic cancer, but at Mayo, Dr. Truty and his team have been pioneering a new protocol of new chemo drugs, radiation and surgeries.

Schenk remains cancer-free and says he stays in near-weekly touch with Dr. Truty. Schenk and his wife have become advocates for pancreatic cancer patients, establishing a Facebook page, “Fighting Pancreatic Cancer Together,” and returning to Mayo to share their story with journalists and the medical community. “For lack of a better word, I'm his poster child for his procedure,” says Schenk. Schenk texts photos of his active lifestyle: horseback riding in the Black Hills and eating steak dinners at Hartford Steak House. “I've been asked to talk to other physicians [at Mayo], who say, ‘we didn't expect the patients to do this well afterwards.’ Because we lose our stomachs, our spleens. I lost my duodenum and pancreas. It's difficult to adjust, but it's all well worth it compared to the alternative.”

Watch for Karl Schenk's story as well as other Mayo Clinic patients on Mayo Clinic: Faith, Hope, Science, premiering Tuesday, Sept. 25 at 8pm (7 MT) on SDPB1.

SDPB Brings You the Power of Live Music

Best of JazzFest 2018

Each July, international and local jazz and blues musicians and fans flock to JazzFest, the fundraiser of the Sioux Falls Jazz & Blues Society, held at Yankton Trail Park. And each summer, SDPB is on-site for the 2-day, 2-stage festival to bring you the best of the best performances.

SDPB1: Saturday, Sept. 1, 8pm (7 MT)

Live acts from the Main Stage include:

Taj Mahal – Born Henry Saint Clair Fredericks in 1942 Harlem, Taj Mahal is a self-taught, Grammy Award-winning blues/world music guitarist, vocalist and instrumentalist.

Jimmie Vaughan – The Texan-born blues guitarist and bandleader has been called “a living legend” by Guitar Magazine.

Heather Gillis Band – A guitarist, lap steel player, songwriter and vocalist, Heather Gillis delivers high-energy blues.

Jazzed w/ Bobby Gripp – Drummer Gripp is joined by guitarist Chris Champion, bassist Eddie Dunn, and trumpeter Justin Kisor for a mix from Cole Porter, Miles Davis, Herbie Hancock, Bobby Timmons and more.

Nikki Hill – The fiery singer and her band have been deemed “equal parts Staple Singers and AC/DC.”

Mike Zito – The St. Louis-based guitarist and songwriter shares the love of his hometown blues.

Zero Ted Band – Prog rock band formed in 1970 features members from Vermillion, SD and Lawrence, KS.

JazzFest Jazz Camp 2018 w/Chris Vadala – Students perform with woodwind artist and educator Vadala.

Jami Lynn – South Dakota’s beloved folk, Americana and jazz artist.

Nick Moss Band w/Dennis Gruenling – Guitarist Moss and electric blues harmonicist Gruenling deliver Chicago blues.

Josh Hoyer & Soul Colossal – Soul and funk from the vocalist Rolling Stone says, “sings with fire and exudes a natural joy.”

No Cover, No Minimum

The Builders and The Butchers – Take in energetic folk rock from The Builders and The Butchers. SDPB’s No Cover, No Minimum crew recorded the Portland-based band live at Hill City’s Miner Brewing Company.

SDPB1: Saturday, Sept. 29, 10pm (9 MT)

Black Elk, the Oglala Lakota holy man whose story and vision make up Black Elk Speaks, written with John Neihardt. “This is the beginning, the heart of all that is sacred. As a 9-year-old man my great-great grandfather Black Elk had a vision that occurred on top of this peak – a vision of cultural diversity and understanding for all walks of life. Coming together under a sacred tree, a flowering tree of unity, as one nation, as one race of people.”

Pourier hikes the peak weekly, often with his teenage son, Myron Jr. “I pray as I walk. This walk represents the struggle in life. The hike isn’t easy, it never is for me. It’s like for me as being a sun dancer to dance for four days without food and water. It’s like when Jesus carried the cross.”

Pourier says he is compelled to retread his grandfather’s literal and spiritual steps. “It’s very significant to me, the way he lived his life. I’m no saint, I don’t claim to be, but I want to continue to follow his vision, his dream, to help people live today better than yesterday.”

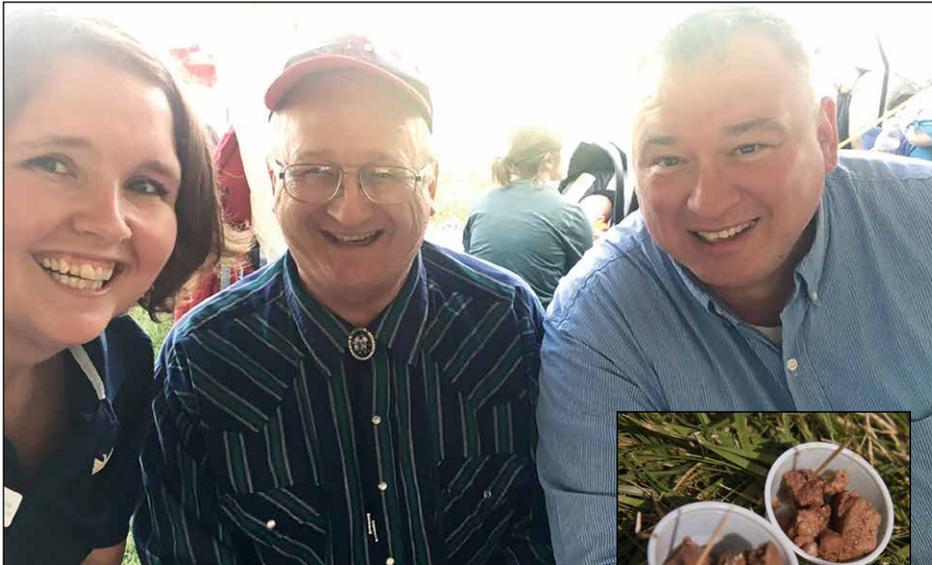

Pourier writes down the stories of the people he meets along the trail: a woman battling cancer who prays to Black Elk each day, another 76-year old celebrating her birthday with a walk to the top. Last July 4 on the fire tower terrace, a man claimed loudly that the mountain would always be Harney Peak to him and his family. Myron Jr. urged his dad to go live from the summit on Facebook. “I talked about cultural diversity, coming together as one nation as a family — the blacks, the whites, the Hispanics, the Caucasians, the Orientals, two-legged, four-legged, winged, and grass roots coming together under the flowering tree.” Pourier was met by handshakes and applause, save for the man who prefers the previous name. Hours later back at the trailhead, when a severe thunderstorm broke out, Pourier and his son invited drenched hikers to shelter under their tarp. “That guy, he didn’t realize it was us at first. Then he shook my hand. Things were meant to be.”

See Lee Ann Roripaugh, Charles Berdahl, and Myron Pourier on Dakota Life, premiering Thursday, Sept. 6, at 8pm (7 MT) with a rebroadcast Sunday, Sept. 9, at 1pm (noon MT).

Savor Dakota

Digital shorts celebrate South Dakota cuisine.

Check out SDPB.org and SDPB's Facebook pages for tantalizing videos on local grub.

Heather Benson, Frank Kloucek & Stace Nelson judge our official state nosh.

Land of Infinite Chislic

In July, Freeman launched the state's first Chislic Festival, inaugurated after the state legislature designated the cubed meat South Dakota's "official nosh."

SDPB's Social Media Manager and resident chislic expert Heather Benson had the honor of officiating as a chislic judge at the festival, where estimates say almost 8,000 folks flocked to Freeman (population 1,306) to sample the salty, deep-fried goodness.

Stalking Rhubarb

If the popularity of local rhubarb wine and spirits are any indication, South Dakotans are embracing our humble, herbaceous perennial on a grander scale. While toning down rhubarb's tart flavor with alcohol is a fun option, traditional crisps, pies, muffins and cake abide. Savor Dakota visits Vermillion, where the W.H. Over Museum hosts "Rhubarb Day."

The Humble Mulberry

Mulberries: coveted by birds and pie bakers, hated by those who disdain the purple stains left on sidewalks and car hoods. We visit Centerville for a simple mulberry jelly recipe.

An Aebleskiver a Day

In the 1860s, Danish immigrants to the region that would become Turner County in southeastern South Dakota brought with them Lutheranism, Baptism and, of course, aebleskiver. Danish for "apple slices," aebleskiver is customarily made with apples and served with pork for breakfast. In Viborg, which hosts the Danish Days festival each summer, the round pancake balls endure as a multi-generational tradition.

Viborgians Roberta Rasmussen and Kayla Neilsen share their time-honored techniques as the two make aebleskiver from scratch using special cast iron pans, an increasingly rare method. "A gentleman from Denmark said they don't even make aebleskiver in a pan over there," says Neilsen. "It's very old fashioned to do that. They just go to the store and it's in the freezer section."

Roberta Rasmussen makes aebleskiver.

Sioux Falls Studio Update

It's official – we've hung our shingle! Special events, In the Moment and Jazz Nightly are up and running at SDPB's new Sioux Falls Studio. We invite you to stop in, take a tour and see the new space located near the entrance to Falls Park at 601 N. Phillips Avenue.

And stay tuned – plans are underway for an October grand opening and ribbon cutting with PBS President & CEO Paula Kerger.

Paula Kerger.

The new SDPB Sioux Falls Studio is located at 601 N. Phillips Avenue in Sioux Falls.

VANISHED SOUTH DAKOTA TOWNS OF YESTERDAY

SDPB's Stephanie Rissler and camera crew members Paul Ebsen and Krystal Schoenbauer have been far afield, shooting SDPB's latest local documentary.

Vanished South Dakota: Towns of Yesterday shares the stories of once-thriving communities that have nearly, and in some cases completely, disappeared from the state map. The doc is expected to premiere in Fall, 2019. Meanwhile, watch SDPB.org and SDPB Facebook posts for digital shorts and discussions on this engaging new project.

SDPB is enlisting local historians and culture keepers to unearth the stories and footprints left by these former societies. Do you have a story, photograph or artifact from a vanished town?

See SDPB.org/Vanished to submit your story and help SDPB make history.

#Julie Feiock The little outdoor theater was on a little bit of land just north of the Moritz general store. We would sit on the ground to watch the good old westerns and the Ma & Pa Kettle movies. At times when the weather was a little moist they would set up the equipment in the back of the very old van dad had which he always called the bomber because it had airplane tires on it. A lot of good memories about Moritz. It was a great community. We all attended church in Gary, SD.

#Carol Madsen I taught school for two years at the Moritz school, which was about a mile north of there. I think that was in 1957-59.

SDPB Premieres Amanpour & Company

Christiane Amanpour.

September 10 brings the launch of Amanpour & Company, a new program from PBS, WNET and CNN. The one-hour, late-night public affairs series feature wide-ranging, in-depth conversations with global thought leaders and cultural influencers on the issues and trends impacting the world each day, from politics, business and technology to arts, science and sports.

“Building on the enthusiastic response to Amanpour on PBS, Amanpour & Company will be a valuable addition to PBS’ nightly public affairs lineup and give viewers a better understanding of our world,” said PBS President and CEO Paula Kerger.

Christiane Amanpour leads the conversation on global and domestic news from London with contributions by prominent journalists Walter Isaacson, Michel Martin, Alicia Menendez and Hari Sreenivasan from New York. The new series, an expansion of CNN’s flagship program Amanpour, will continue to air on CNN International weekdays.

“I’m delighted to expand my role at PBS from interim to permanent along with this remarkable diversity of voices and views. Never has the time for exploring our world and America’s place in it been so urgent. And I am also thrilled to be a female filling this role at this time!” said Amanpour.

Amanpour & Company airs weeknights, 10pm (9MT) on SDPB1.

Ex Libris: The New York Public Library

“Frederick Wiseman’s next instant classic” - IndieWire

Goes behind the scenes of one of the greatest knowledge institutions in the world and reveals it as a place of welcome, cultural exchange and learning. With 92 locations throughout Manhattan, the Bronx and Staten Island, the library is committed to being a resource for all the inhabitants of this multifaceted and cosmopolitan city, and beyond. The New York Public Library exemplifies the deeply rooted American belief in the individual’s right to know and be informed and is one of the most democratic institutions in America – everyone is welcome.

SDPB1: Tuesday, Sept. 4, 9pm (8 MT)

SDPB2: Friday, Sept. 21, 5:30 & 11pm (4:30 & 10 MT)

Host Stephanie Rissler returns this fall to tackle issues impacting South Dakota.

SDPB1: Thursdays, 8pm (7 MT)

Thursday, Sept. 13: Specialty Crops – Farmers and ranchers are branching out in a region known for corn, soybeans and livestock.

Thursday, Sept. 20: Deer Hunting – Wildlife experts discuss changes to hunting licenses.

Thursday, Sept. 27: Multigenerational Workforce
From millennials to boomers postponing retirement, managers scramble to provide training and address communication issues in an increasingly age-diverse South Dakota workforce.

The Miniaturist

SDPB1: Sundays, September 9, 16, & 23, 8pm (7 MT)

In 1686, 18-year-old Nella Oortman (Anya Taylor-Joy, Split, The Witch) arrives in Amsterdam to meet her wealthy merchant husband Johannes Brandt (Alex Hassell, Genius: Picasso). Johannes presents her with a wedding gift: a cabinet that is a miniature replica of their home, to be furnished by an elusive Miniaturist, whose tiny creations mirror what is happening within the house in unexpected ways and seem to be predicting and unraveling the future with unsettling precision.

As Nella begins to uncover the secrets of the Brandt household she realizes the escalating dangers that await them all. Does the Miniaturist hold their fate in her hands? And will she be the key to their salvation or the architect of their downfall?

Tune in for this ravishing new three-part period thriller adapted from Jessie Burton's internationally best-selling novel.

POV

Essential, Emmy-nominated doc series gives you a deep dive into stories that need to be heard. This is real reality TV.

POV, American television's longest-running independent documentary series on SDPB, has received six nominations for the 2018 News & Documentary Emmy Awards (airing September).

POV's My Love, Don't Cross That River was nominated for Best Documentary, and PBS leads with 45 nominations, receiving more than any other network.

Voices of the Sea

SDPB1: Monday, September 3, 9pm (8 MT)
SDPB2: Wednesday, September 5, 7:30 & 11pm (6:30 & 10 MT)

The story of a 30-something mother of four longing for a better life. With unique access and empathy, Voices of the Sea reveals stark realities for the poorest of rural Cubans. The tension between a wife and her aging husband – one desperate to leave, the other content to stay – builds into a high stakes family drama after her brother and the couple's neighbors escape.

93Queen

SDPB1: Monday, September 17, 9pm (8 MT)
SDPB2: Wednesday, September 19, 6:30 & 11pm (5:30 & 10 MT)

In a Hasidic enclave in Brooklyn, there are seemingly endless services tailored for the community – stores in Yiddish, school buses and even a dedicated EMS. Yet the corps is made up entirely of men, and one group of women wants to change that. On a mission to start the city's first all-female volunteer EMS corps, these women are set on shattering the glass ceiling in the unlikely communities.

Thank You for Playing

SDPB2: Thursday, September 6, 6pm

When video game programmer Ryan Green learns his young son Joel has cancer, he and his wife begin documenting their emotional journey with a poetic video game. Thank You for Playing follows Ryan and his family over two years creating "That Dragon, Cancer," which evolves from a cathartic exercise into a critically acclaimed work of art that sets the gaming industry abuzz. Lauded as "unimaginably intimate" by The New Yorker, this film is a testament to the resilience of the human spirit and the unique ways that art and technology can help us share profound experiences.

Survivors

SDPB1: Monday, September 24, 9pm (8 MT)
SDPB2: Wednesday, September 26, 7:30 & 11pm (6:30 & 10 MT)

Through the eyes of Sierra Leonean filmmaker Arthur Pratt, Survivors presents an intimate portrait of his country during the Ebola outbreak, exposing the complexity of the epidemic and the sociopolitical turmoil that lies in its wake. During one of the most acute public health crises of the modern era, Survivors reveals the bureaucratic missteps that took place, as well as remarkable stories of individuals' bravery and the deep humanity of those caught in the middle of this unfolding crisis.

American Masters: Andrew Wyeth

Follow the story of one of America's most popular, but least understood, artists. While his exhibitions routinely broke attendance records, art world critics continually assaulted his work. Uncover the hidden depths and complex inner life of the iconic artist you thought you knew. With his life's work as a background, examine his wide range of influences, including modern artists, war, film and the African American community.

SDPB1: Friday, September 7, 11pm (10 MT)
