DESCRIPTION: ENCEPHALITIS VIRUS

St. Louis Encephalitis in Mosquitoes Confirmed in Fresno County

The Fresno County Department of Public Health (FCDPH) has been notified by state authorities that St. Louis Encephalitis Virus (SLEV) has been detected in a Culex quinquefasciatus mosquito sample within Fresno County. This is the first detection of SLEV activity in Fresno County this year. Last year, the first such detection was on August 31. Fresno County is seeing a higher number of mosquito populations due to the excessive moisture in the region following last winter's storms, and vector-borne diseases are a well-described consequence of climate hazards such as storms and floods. The local Fresno County Mosquito Control Districts are partnering with FCDPH to respond with increased surveillance, public education, and chemical applications to control the population of mosquitoes in selected communities with higher levels of Infestation. SLE is a mosquito-borne disease caused by SLEV and can cause inflammation of the brain. Most people infected with SLEV will have few to no symptoms, but a small number of victims can become severely ill with symptoms of meningitis/encephalitis (brain infection). The most common symptoms are mild, flu-like symptoms, including fever and headache, from 5 to 15 days after being infected. People get SLE from the bite of an infected mosquito and it is not transmitted from person to person. The mosquito becomes infected with the virus after biting a bird infected with SLEV.
