E-Cigarettes Debate – aired February 16, 2015 on Channel 3 News at 6 PM

LYNDONVILLE, VT

"I was smoking about a pack and a half a day," said Vinny Peluso.

Peluso knew he needed to quit. He's a licensed nursing assistant.

"I have tried all different methods, the patch, gum, I tried quitting cold turkey," said Peluso.

But nothing worked for the 23-year-old, until he tried e-cigarettes.

"If I didn't have this, I'd definitely still be smoking cigarettes," said Peluso.

It's a nicotine inhaler, or electronic cigarette.

"The only thing that's worked is this," said Peluso.

He puffs it like a cigarette. The battery-powered device heats a liquid solution that includes nicotine creating what looks like vapor. It's inhaled. Peluso gets his fix and a rush of flavor too. He's now smoke free, doesn't crave his old cigarettes and says he's breathing better.

"I don't have that sensation anymore when I wake up," said Peluso.

"This industry has exploded," said Rhonda Williams, Vermont Health Department.

Peluso is part of a growing trend. People vaping instead of smoking. The Vt. Health Department says e-cigarette sales will surpass tobacco sales within 10 years.

"There should be a lot of caution among consumers," said Williams.

Nearly 1 in 10 Vermonters ages 18 to 24 used e-cigarettes in 2012. New data are due this spring and the numbers are expected to triple or even quadruple.

"E-cigarettes are not what they appear to be," said Williams.

And health officials are worried and say safety claims have gone up in smoke.

"E-cigarettes are not safe and e-cigarettes are not proven to help people quit," said Williams.

The health department points to recent studies showing the vapor from e-cigarettes, is actually an aerosol and can contain cancer causing carcinogens and heavy metals.

"It could be nickel, it could be cadmium, it could be lead," said Williams.

Williams says the trouble is that we just don't know and the health department says the amount of nicotine in each device varies.

"Consumers really don't know what really is going into their lungs," said Williams.

E-cigarettes are not regulated by the Food and Drug Administration yet. Without regulation, electronic cigarette manufacturers can keep ingredients secret. A lengthy process began last summer with the FDA taking comments and evaluating scientific research about the product. Long-term effects remain unknown. E-cigarettes are relatively new.

"They hit the U.S. market seven years ago," said Lee Loyer, Northeastern Vermont Regional Hospital tobacco grant coordinator

State health officials and hospitals aren't waiting to find out. At the urging of the Centers for Disease Control anti-vaping campaigns have begun.

Loyer says e-cigarettes should be treated just like tobacco.

Reporter Darren Perron: Are these safer than cigarettes?

Loyer: There's no proof that they are safer. Look at years back when cigarettes first came out, they all thought they were safe, now look at what we know about them today.

She spends her time trying to convince people e-cigarettes are not safe alternatives to smoking, and instead dangerous ones.

"There are some students here who do use e-cigarettes," said Loyer.

This day she's teaching Resident Assistants at Lyndon State College about e-cigarettes as part of the school's training for student leaders.

Lyndon wants to learn as much as it can to draft campus policy regarding electronic cigarettes and whether they should be banned.

"What we are looking at is the health risk to people, whether it be the user or the bystander next to them," said Erin Rossetti, Lyndon State College director of student life.

Some public places have already banned electronic cigarettes, like Burlington's Church Street Marketplace. Loyer wants others to follow suit.

"Some people are saying they are safer than smoking but there's not a lot of evidence out there to say they are safer for the person smoking them or for the person sitting next to them when they are releasing the vapors," said Loyer.

"Because it's not a tobacco product, it's a safer alternative," said Andrew MacLean, Reynolds American Lobbyist.

Reynolds American, a big tobacco company and manufacturer of e-cigs, put lobbyists in Vermont's Statehouse where debate over the devices is heating up.

The company claims it's seeing people quit smoking and says that's what lawmakers should be focused on.

"They don't contain tobacco. They're not combustible. They're a healthier, not saying they are healthy, but they are a healthier alternative to tobacco cigarettes," said MacLean.

Reynolds American says they're a better alternative to tobacco, because e-cigarettes are not combustible and don't produce secondhand smoke.

"This is 100 percent keeping me from smoking cigarettes," said Peluso.

Peluso says they're helping him. He's even reduced his nicotine intake gradually weaning himself just down to flavor vapors.

"But eventually I will be down to zero nicotine and eventually just doing it for the flavor," said Peluso.

But flavor is another major concern for health officials and some lawmakers.

WCAX reached out to two other big tobacco companies which also manufacture e-cigs. Lorillard never responded and Altria Group suggested we talk to the Vermont Retail and Grocers Association. That organization says Vermont should wait to see what happens with the FDA so not to be out of step with the federal government.

Channel 3 News at 6 PM – February 17, 2015

LYNDONVILLE, Vt. -

Some Vermont lawmakers worry about a spike in e-cigarette use in Vermont and they're pushing for more regulation. But will new rules and higher taxes get people back on tobacco?

"I was a smoker since I was 21-years-old," Tim Rumbinas said.

Rumbinas remembers all too well the night he got hooked on smokes.

"One night I was cramming for exams, somebody gave me a cigarette in college and I was never able to break the habit," said Rumbinas.

He tried desperately to quit for 30 years.

"I was sitting there smoking like a diesel and I said I've got to stop this," said Rumbinas.

Nicotine patches, gum, even prescription medications: Nothing worked, until he started using electronic cigarettes.

"It's the only thing that's been effective for me. I do not feel any desire to smoke cigarettes or burning tobacco," said Rumbinas.

He says it works because it has a similar feel to smoking.

He buys his e-cigarette supplies at NEK Vapor. They are battery-operated and rechargeable nicotine inhalers and liquid nicotine solutions and flavors that are heated and turned into vapor.

Dennis Steele opened the Lyndonville business a year ago.

"People smoking 40-50 years are looking for ways to get off the combustible cigarettes and they are coming here to do that," said Steele.

He's seen a steady increase in customers.

"If you are going to smoke, you might as well vape. You probably shouldn't do either one, but if you are going to smoke, you might as well be vaping," said Steele.

"If you are trying to quit smoking, if that's the reason you are using e-cigarettes, there are much more effective ways to do it," said Rhonda Williams of the Vermont Department of Health.

The Health Department says e-cigarettes are not safe alternatives to tobacco and points to studies showing e-cigarettes can contain cancer-causing chemicals, heavy metals and varying concentrations of nicotine. Right now, they're not regulated by the Food and Drug Administration.

"They are not safe for inhaling," said Williams.

The FDA may not be regulating e-cigarettes yet, so some Vermont lawmakers here in Montpelier say they will. Several bills are being proposed this legislative session.

"I think it should be a huge public health concern," said Rep. Patti Komline, R-Dorset.

Komline has become the banner carrier for the anti-e-cigarettes movement at the Vermont Statehouse. She and other lawmakers want them banned in public spaces and state buildings, want restrictions on advertising and store displays, and want to reduce the number of flavors sold in Vermont to just plain and menthol. Right now there are more than 7,000 e-cigarette flavors from maple to gin and tonic.

"There are toxins in the vapor as well and we are just learning about this, so it needs to be regulated," said Komline.

And taxed, she says. Right now, since they are not tobacco products, e-cigarettes are only subject to a 6 percent sales tax.

Reporter Darren Perron: Will we see a tax on e-cigarettes this year?

Komline: I wouldn't be surprised.

Taxing e-cigarettes, like regular cigarettes, at 92 percent instead could raise $500,000 a year in Vermont. But others argue 40 percent of that revenue would be lost to online sales. For health officials, it's more about preventing people from using period.

"What is important is to make it comparable to other tobacco products. Right now e-cigarettes are much cheaper than what else is out there," said Williams.

In 2012, Vermont led the way in limiting who can buy e-cigarettes making the minimum age 18.

Perron: That's not going far enough?

Komline: I don't think it is. I think when you look at the popularity is outstripping the harmful effects we don't even know about yet or are just learning about, frankly.

The state also required child-proof packaging. There have been 15 cases of liquid nicotine poisonings since 2010 in Vermont, either by swallowing it or getting it on their skin. Seven of those cases involved children under five. None were serious here. But in northern New York, a 2-year-old died from a nicotine overdose.

Perron: is the state concerned these devices are being targeted toward children?

Williams: Yes. Certainly.

She points to fun flavors like bubble gum and cupcake. The health department says use among young people is expected to triple or quadruple. And it's the flavorings, says health officials that can be the most toxic.

"When flavorings like cinnamon are heated to a high temperature, they emit particles that aren't safe and could be cancerous," said Williams.

Perron: You think these are safer than cigarettes?

Andrew MacLean: Yes, I do. Yes, I do.

MacLean is a lobbyist for Reynolds American, a big tobacco company and e-cigarettes manufacturer.

"The idea is certainly not to market this to children so we are not looking to do that," said MacLean.

The company tells WCAX it supports FDA regulations on flavors it calls child-oriented, but opposes legislation that might discourage people from making the switch to e-cigarettes, like a tax bill.

"If they weren't smoking these they'd be smoking regular traditional cigarettes with all the other accompanying issues of second-hand smoke, tar, the combustion aspect of it, yes," said MacLean.

Perron: If e-cigarettes are taxed like a traditional cigarette or tobacco, are you folks concerned that that could just drive people back to smoking cigarettes?

MacLean: We haven't had a lot of conversation about that. We are looking to see if people are going to the e-cigarettes now because of the tax on cigarettes. So that will give us an idea if they will go back.

Rumbinas says he won't go back. He isn't worried about taxes. He's just glad he found a product that helped him kick his old habit.

"They don't do it because it's hip, they don't do it because it's cool, they do it because they want to get off cigarettes," said Rumbinas.

Last spring, Gov. Peter Shumlin, D-Vermont, said lawmakers should be cautious about taxing e-cigarettes if they're getting people off tobacco. His spokesperson says the governor still does not believe that smoking cessation tools should be taxed like tobacco and says he's waiting to see if e-cigarettes fit that category.

Channel 3 News at 6 PM – February 18, 2015

The safety of e-cigarettes is debatable. The health department says they're bad for you. Proponents of the devices argue they're better than tobacco. There are studies supporting both claims. Why retailers and manufacturers of e-cigarettes say the state is playing a dangerous game.

"It's anecdotal evidence but I'm on the front lines," said Dennis Steele of NEK Vapor.

Steele says he's seen countless customers quit smoking thanks to e-cigarettes and other nicotine inhalers he sells at his Lyndonville shop, NEK Vapor.

"Adults like flavoring. It doesn't make sense doing that," said Steele.

He worries proposed flavor bans and higher taxes will hurt business and increase smoking rates in Vermont.

"In my opinion it would be a big mistake. In my opinion they should subsidize what we are doing or just leave us alone and let us help people get off the analog or combustible cigarettes," said Steele.

"It says carry it like you're comfortable. You wouldn't think this to be an e-cigarette advertisement," said Lee Loyer of Northeastern Vermont Regional Hospital.

E-cigarette sales nationwide are expected to top $10 billion this year. Three of the largest manufacturers are also big tobacco companies.

"Tobacco companies had to come out with some new great idea on how to make their millions," said Loyer.

Loyer is in charge of smoking cessation programs at the hospital in St. Johnsbury. She's pushing for changes in how big tobacco market's its new tobacco-free products. She wants to keep them out of the hands of kids.

Loyer: You will see e-cigarettes by the candy. You will see e-cigarettes at eye level. They come in pipes and pens and cigars and all different shapes and sizes. If kids use these because they are cool, eventually they'll smoke cigarettes as well.

Reporter Darren Perron: Is that the fear?

Loyer: Yeah.

The health department fears that, too.

"Especially for the developing brain before age 25, to keep it away from substances including those in e-cigarettes is critical," said Rhonda Williams of the Vermont Health Department.

Williams says chemicals in e-cigarettes and flavors could be dangerous. There's now a push to limit marketing and store displays.

"We are working hard to reduce access to e-cigarettes in convenience stores, in other retailers," said Williams.

But proponents of e-cigarettes argue they are smoking cessation tools and say those efforts to restrict them will drive people back to smokes. Vape shops point to studies that show e-cigarettes are not as bad as traditional cigarettes.

"But if you're comparing it to a cigarette, what's inside of a cigarette? It's 5,000 to 10,000 chemicals," said Steele.

The American Vaping Association sent a statement to WCAX that said: "With real world studies showing that vapor products help adult smokers quit, adding sin taxes on the sale of these products will cost lives."

There's also a proposal in Montpelier to make it illegal for anyone under 21 to buy e-cigarettes in Vermont. Opponents say that will drive 18- to 20-year-olds back to tobacco. And argue if they're old enough to vote and serve in the military, they should be allowed to use e-cigarettes.

"We believe that tax and regulatory policy should recognize the difference between tobacco and e-cigarettes," said Andrew MacLean, Reynolds American lobbyist.

Right now, e-cigarettes are not federally regulated.

Big tobacco lobbyists like MacLean are trying to convince lawmakers, like Rep. Patti Komline, R-Dorset, that state regulations will do more harm than good. She's not buying it.

"We've come so far and to have the tobacco companies beating us at this point, I am not satisfied with that," said Komline.

E-cigarette users also argue they are more productive at work because they're no longer taking breaks outside to smoke butts. A quick puff of vapor and they get back to work.

"High Hopes" series – aired February 3, 2015 on Channel 3 News at 6 PM

MONTPELIER, Vt. - A bill to legalize marijuana in Vermont is going nowhere this session according to top Democrats.

The bill was introduced in the Senate last week by Sen. David Zuckerman, P-Chittenden County. Governor Peter Shumlin and other Democrats have indicated they want more time to study the impacts on Vermont and to learn from states that have recently legalized the drug. States like Colorado, where retail sales of pot began a year ago. So far all of the state's moving to legalization have done so through voter referendums. Vermont doesn't have that option, but supporters believe they can win passage through the legislative process.

"I think Vermont is in a position as a deliberative legislative body to do this right and really create a model for other states rather than have further experimentation by states with referendum situations," Sen. Zuckerman said.

Zuckerman concedes the complexity of the legalization issue will require a two year process for potential passage of a bill, and part of that will be to study what is happening in Colorado and Washington. Those states had "high hopes" for their marijuana laws. So how well is it working? Channel 3's Kyle Midura is in Colorado this week. Look for his reports starting Tuesday on the Channel 3 News at 6:00.

Aired February 4, 2015 – Channel 3 News at 6 PM

DENVER -

Marijuana is not a new topic for lawmakers in Vermont. But, momentum and support for legalizing it is growing and that has many looking west for inspiration, specifically to Colorado. Sales of recreational marijuana became legal in Colorado in January 2014 for those old enough to drink alcohol, the first state in the U.S. to take that step. Now other states, including Vermont, are considering following suit and have high hopes to learn as much as possible from Colorado's lead.

"This is going to be one of the great experiments of the first half of the 21st century," said Gov. John Hickenlooper, D-Colorado.

The sun set on the first year of recreational marijuana in Colorado when the calendar turned from 2014 to 2015. Voters, not the Legislature, set the state on a path toward legalization when they went to the polls in 2012 in an effort to cut into the black market and cash in on what Hickenlooper calls a potential billion-dollar industry. He voiced significant skepticism at the time and ahead of implementation.

"We had a year to build regulations and pass laws, now we've had a year seeing how they work. And while not perfect, I think we are beginning to think that we can do this, that we can have a regulatory system that's really going to work," Hickenlooper said.

A recreational marijuana framework is underway in Washington, while Oregon and Alaska are preparing pot programs as well, though the drug remains illegal under federal law.

Vermont Gov. Peter Shumlin says it's only a matter of time before green thumbs grow legally in the Green Mountains, but he wants to survey the landscape in states like Colorado first.

"Really I think we can learn a lot from those states. My bias is toward legalization. I'm in no great hurry; I want to make sure Vermont gets this right," said Shumlin, D-Vermont. "I think we should really be asking both Colorado and Washington State, and Oregon is about to come on, what's working for you, and what's not."

"Colorado has two systems right now. We have the medical system and we have the rec. system, which are very similar, some slight differences," Andy Williams said.

Williams is president and CEO of Medicine Man, a 40,000-square-foot dispensary and growing operation in Denver.

"Since it's become recreational, my sales have doubled," Williams said. "We produce somewhere between 6,500 and 7,000 pounds of marijuana a year."

As required by state law, each plant wears a radio frequency ID. There's no difference in the potency or preparation between those tagged for recreational and medical use, but they're tracked separately.

"We have to know where every gram of product is and have to be able to prove it," Williams explained.

Those in the industry spend heavily to meet tough regulations and to keep their customers, staff and facilities secure.

"There's not a square inch in here that isn't under camera," Williams said. "We have guards here all the time, armed guards. We take our security very seriously; we spend a lot of money on it."

About 115,000 of Colorado's approximately 5.4 million residents hold medical marijuana cards, allowing them to purchase marijuana for a qualifying condition at a facility like this. They enjoy a lower tax rate than recreational users, who only need to present an ID indicating they're older than 21 to purchase pot products. Colorado residents can purchase up to 1 ounce of marijuana at a time, while out-of-staters are allowed to purchase half that amount, and cannot bring the product home with them when they leave the state.

Even by sin tax standards their tax rate is high-- 36 percent. The state initially projected pulling in $184 million taxes in 2014, but revenues appear likely to fall short, with an updated estimate of about $67 million. Forty-million dollars is set aside for school construction, and taxpayers may receive a credit on their taxes this year while Colorado determines what to do with the rest.

"Higher ed wants to get it, the education community wants to get it, health care wants to get it," Hickenlooper said. "We said hold on, we're going to save all this tax money to make sure that we don't have any unintended consequences from our legalization of recreational marijuana."

The governor says issues like packaging and dosages for marijuana-infused products have cropped up, given the state essentially had to rewrite the rules as it went. But he says many of his fears like diversion to children and a potential spike in crime never came to fruition.

"The biggest fear was that no one had ever done this before," Hickenlooper said. "Most of what we've seen, we've addressed, so I don't see anything front and center that we're worried about."

That's not the perspective of everyone though. Parents, educators and health officials worry about the consequences of drug use on the roadways and especially on the developing brains of those in school.

The marijuana experiment is only 1-year-old here and data remains raw enough that both proponents and opponents contend it supports their arguments. But almost everyone involved in the debate says a few more years, and millions of additional data points and experiences should uncloud the benefits and consequences of legal weed, establishing whether high hopes will be realized.

Colorado operates a for-profit regulatory system that is similar in many respects to how the state handles alcohol. That's an option on the table in Vermont's debate, but one of only about 12 along the spectrum between the extremes of blanket prohibition to repealing all state laws regarding marijuana.

DENVER -

Lawmakers in Vermont who support legalizing marijuana believe one of the state's biggest beneficiaries would be the state's economy, especially the tourism sector. But is that what's happening in Colorado?

Construction projects dot the Denver skyline. Hotels are full with soaring rates, mountain resorts experienced record visitation last season and the airport welcomed more visitors than ever before. Now does any of this have to do with marijuana?

"It might, it might not," Ricardo Baca said.

Just before Colorado legalized the sale of recreational marijuana, Baca took on a new role at the Denver Post, becoming the paper's first-ever marijuana editor. The former entertainment writer says he's not the only person finding budding employment opportunity thanks to marijuana.

"It's certainly bringing moneys into economies all over the area and that's a money source that never existed a year and a half ago. What we can't really quantify yet because we're so recent, since we're so close to this, is the overall impact," said Baca.

Not everyone is happy with new development. Antique dealers on South Broadway complain that marijuana businesses are forcing them out. With efforts underway to rebrand the so-called Antique Row to the Green Mile.

Most officials don't deny marijuana's impact on the development boom. But Gov. John Hickenlooper, D-Colorado, says pot-tourism is not why people are flocking here.

"We've had record tourism years for the last four years, so we've tried some new marketing approaches, we put more money into marketing that's well before marijuana was legalized," said Hickenlooper.

He and others do acknowledge while travel may be booked for other purposes, a pot-shop stop can represent an interesting side-trip. Dispensaries in Denver report that half of recreational sales are to out-of-staters, and in the mountains that figure exceeds 90 percent. But though Colorado law allows non-residents to have up to half an ounce of marijuana in many communities, including Denver, there's no place to legally light up.

"Is this ridiculous that we let tourists come here and we don't let them get high anywhere legally," said Baca.

"I was staying in a hotel, it was ridiculous, I had to hide in my bathroom, hide from people and really seemed to be counter-productive," said Joel Schneider, Adagio Bud & Breakfast owner.

Schneider spent 30 years practicing law in New York and says he hated every minute of it.

His experience as a pot-tourist without a place to smoke led him and his wife to purchase a bed-and-breakfast, transforming it into a cannabis-friendly retreat.

"What we're trying to do is create a social environment, cannabis camp if you like," said Joel.

They do that by prohibiting smoking in the rooms, asking guests instead to light up in the living room or in the backyard. Guests flock from all over the world.

"It's about the food, a glass of wine, and smoking together," said Lisa Schneider.

The couple no longer offers samples of cannabis after the city issued them a ticket, but once they've been residents for more than two years, they can bring back the old practice.

The previously oft-vacant B&B now has a 90 percent occupancy rate, Joel says at $300 a night he has tripled what the previous owner charged, and the state is seeing the benefit in a much higher tax bill from the establishment.

"I think the governor is being naive when he thinks this has not had a positive effect on tourism," said Joel.

"I think marijuana's just a small part of what Denver's all about," said Ashley Kilroy, Marijuana Policy City and County of Denver executive director.

Kilroy speaks for the mayor, police, fire and many other municipal services.

She says marijuana amounts to less than 1 percent of gross domestic product, and tax revenue for the area.

Kilroy says she understands all the attention surrounding the drug and Denver's interesting, novel experience with it.

"But the real story in Denver is we are one of the major cities leading the way out of the recession right now. Our city is booming, people are loving moving here, people are continuing to move here to build a home and raise a family and start a career," said Kilroy.

One such recent transplant is former Vermonter Ryan Cayia who says the city's art scene and outdoor culture drew him to the area... that, and legal marijuana.

"It was a deciding factor in where to go to, it was definitely a push towards there to find a lot of like-minded people," said Cayia.

Within a couple of months after moving to the area, he found employment at a dispensary, quickly rising up the ranks.

"And now I'm a budtender there which is a bartender but with cannabis," said Cayia.

Cayia says he enjoys his work and his parents are just happy he's happy.

He thinks his home state would benefit from following Colorado's lead on legal weed and points to a pin-map of all the visitors to his shop alone to back up that claim.

Reporter Kyle Midura: Would you move back if Vermont went forward with this model?

Cayia: Possibly, given the opportunity to start something on my own.

Other transplanted Vermonters worry that the benefits, even if they can't be tabulated can be seen while costs cannot.

Baca says there is at least one business that's been hurt by legal weed, the traditional black market. But he says, unfortunately, another form has grown in its place; with illegal grow operators masking their scent by setting up near legal operations.

"And their main intent is to grow there in Colorado, under the eye of the law, and then get the weed out of state as soon as it's harvested," said Baca.

Those grows and individuals who purchase weed just to traffic it back to their home states for sale has led neighboring Oklahoma and Nebraska to sue Colorado.

When the federal government allowed states to pursue their own marijuana policies, the green light came with the caveat that the products must not cross state lines which may soon become the toughest challenge for Colorado now that it has addressed many of the initial problems with its programs.

“The Waiting Game” – series by Jennifer Costa

February 9, 2015

BERLIN, Vt. - In emergency medicine, expedient care can mean the difference between life and death.

"You have to go from 0 to 60 in the change of a heartbeat," said David DeRosia, an emergency department charge nurse at Central Vermont Medical Center.

DeRosia has been on the front lines for 21 years.

"I love emergency medicine," he said. "This is not what we do."

But he is blowing the whistle on a trend he calls unacceptable.

"I spent more time with one patient that was here than I think I did my wife in a month period," he said.

Vermont's most mentally ill patients stuck in small emergency rooms waiting for placement in a level-one psychiatric facility. These are sick, often violent people, who require hospitalization, but Vermont has no where to put them.

"I think most people in the state don't know what's going on because I think they feel, 'oh, good news, the hospital is all set. We're good to go.' It's far from all set," he said.

In 2011, Tropical Storm Irene permanently closed the 54-bed Vermont State Hospital in Waterbury. Since then, the state added 45 new psychiatric beds: six at Rutland Regional Medical Center; 14 at the Brattleboro Retreat; and a new 25-bed facility, the Vermont Psychiatric Care Hospital in Berlin. It's part of the state's plan to decentralize care for the acutely mentally ill. The idea-- putting patients closer to family and community supports.

"We're still in the development process. It's still relatively new. It will take some time to see how all of the pieces come together," said Frank Reed, deputy commissioner of the Vt. Department of Mental Health.

But four years after Irene, emergency personnel like DeRosia say the waiting game is not working.

"It's awful. We have patients who are waiting and just being basically warehoused," he said.

"For 12 hours, 24 hours, two-days, three-days, a week, 10 days, two-weeks -- and they're literally camping out," said Dr. Mark Depman, the emergency department medical director at Central Vermont Medical Center.

Depman says the emergency department has traditionally evaluated one to three patients in psychiatric crisis a day. But before Irene those patients were either discharged, connected with community services, or admitted to a more appropriate facility.

"Not one of those patients would be here four or five hours later," he said.

Now, Depman says the patients and problems are piling up.

"We've had staff assaulted in the hallway on the way to the bathroom in full view of other patients," he said.

"I've been punched. I've been kicked. I've been spit at in my face," DeRosia said.

One attack put DeRosia in a cast for six weeks. He says emergency departments cannot handle these patients' extended stays. Yet on any given day there are an average of eight individuals in emergency departments across the state that are awaiting placement.

"It's not an excuse for violence, but it is a consequence," DeRosia said.

Besides not having provisions for food service, showers or outdoor access, emergency departments don't staff psychiatrists, so these patients often go untreated. Doctors say the longer they wait, the more aggressive and agitated they become.

"It can't become the new norm. This is really inhumane management of patients," said Dr. Peter Weimersheimer, the clinical director for the University of Vermont Medical Center, the state's busiest emergency department.

The center sees 60,000 emergency patients per year. The department has 45 rooms, but frequently four are taken offline due to what hospital officials call "psychiatric boarders."

"So that increases the waiting times for other patients," Weimersheimer said. "It increases the risk for someone who may have a more sinister problem that needs to get diagnosed more quickly. It's a snowball effect."

An effect, he says, that disrupts the entire flow of the emergency department-- a place full of triggers for the mentally ill. These patients can be loud, destructive, and sexually aggressive, acting out in front of trauma patients and children.

"I find myself walking into rooms apologizing for the noise level at the other end of the hall, which, that's the way it is, but it's not really the environment I'd like to have," Weimersheimer said.

"We've actually had to replace walls and doors in the psychiatric rooms from the effects of violence," Depman said.

Doctors say the price tag doesn't stop with damage. These patients require extra nurses, sitters and sheriffs around the clock to ensure everyone's safety.

"All this takes money, and where to find the money and who's going to spend it? The default is the hospitals are spending the money on substandard patient care essentially," Weimersheimer said.

Central Vermont Medical Center's security costs have more than doubled since the state hospital closed, from $285,398 to $640,000. UVM Medical Center's use of observers for mental health patients has increased four times above its pre-Irene use, costing the hospital almost $600,000 last year alone. And no matter how many days a patient is held in a room, emergency departments can only bill for a single visit. Another big blow for their bottom lines.

Dr. Mark Depman: We lose a lot of money. Absolutely.

Reporter Jennifer Costa: Is that sustainable?

Dr. Mark Depman: It's not sustainable, and we're really hopeful it's going to change soon.

"Our care managers are working with the emergency departments everyday," Reed said.

DeRosia says hospitals need a solution now, because standing by while these patients suffer is taking an emotional and physical toll on everyone involved.

"I don't have an answer for it, other than what we have is not enough," he said.

Frank Reed: We're trying the best that we can to get them into treatment as quickly as possible.

Reporter Jennifer Costa: Do you think it's quick enough?

Frank Reed: It's not quick enough right now.

BERLIN, Vt. -

Vermont hospitals are struggling to keep up with the state's mentally ill population. Patients are living in emergency departments waiting for psychiatric bed space to open up. Doctors say it's costing more and leading to substandard patient care. They were hoping the new state hospital would bring some relief.

For the last seven months, at least three beds, sometimes more, have sat empty at the new psychiatric care hospital in Berlin. The hospital's CEO is struggling to retain staff and dealing with design issues. While the state irons out the kinks, patients are stuck in a dangerous Waiting Game.

Mark Austin of Berlin knows how it feels to need psychiatric help and not be able to get it.

"Of course it messes with you," said Austin.

He's part of a growing number of acutely mentally ill Vermonters who have been stuck in emergency rooms due to a lack of psychiatric bed space.

"You think that maybe they're not taking it seriously enough. And you took it seriously enough to not want to be dead. Boy the longer you're allowed to stew in it, the worse it gets," said Austin.

Austin is bipolar, suffers from post-traumatic stress disorder and anxiety disorder. A suicide attempt and a nervous breakdown each landed him in the emergency department. He waited hours for a psych bed to open up. But many Vermonters endure days, even weeks of this dangerous waiting game.

"We had one woman who was in her 80s, I believe, who was in our emergency department for over two weeks just sitting in this room. It was very demoralizing," said Dr. Peter Weimersheimer, UVM Medical Center clinical director.

Emergency personnel say warehousing these patients in small rooms meant for short-term stays is inhumane and bad medicine.

"If people were dying of heart attacks and were sitting in rooms, in ERs, that would be a no-brainer. We'd fix it right away," said Weimersheimer.

Medical professionals were hoping the situation would improve once Vermont built a new mental health hospital to replace the one Tropical Storm Irene washed away four years ago. Vermont Psychiatric Care Hospital in Berlin opened in July. Yet, in seven months doctors and patients have yet to see the backlog clear. On any given day an average of eight psychiatric patients are still waiting for inpatient placement. We wanted to know why.

"The plan was to create a decentralized system of care for Vermont that was also complemented by a number of additional community resources," said Frank Reed, deputy commissioner of the Vt. Department of Mental Health.

Reed says switching from a centralized care model which Vermont had used for more than a century to regionalized treatment is still a work in progress.

Before Irene, Vermont had 54 level one psychiatric beds under one roof at the Vermont State Hospital in Waterbury.

Gov. Peter Shumlin's post-storm decentralized plan called for 45 beds spread between three facilities.

- 25 at the new Vermont Psychiatric Care Hospital
- 14 at the Brattleboro Retreat
- 6 at Rutland Regional Medical Center

"This is not the way that I would have designed a system," said Dr. Robert Pierattini, UVM Medical Center psychology chair.

Pierattini oversees psychiatry staff at VPCH. He criticizes the new hospital for being too small and too extravagant, and says Vermont's decentralized system is failing its most mentally ill.

"You have more people who need access at the front end than we have front end beds available to give them," said Pierattini.

Mental health experts estimate 18 percent of Vermont's adult population, 72,000 people, struggle with some form of mental illness and 4 percent, 16,000 people, have been diagnosed with serious mental illness like schizophrenia or bipolar disorder.

"It's a crisis," said Pierattini.

Reporter Jennifer Costa: Do you think that the state of Vermont has enough beds?

Reed: Based on the trend that we've been following for about a year and a half, the 45 level one bed capacity along with other involuntary and voluntary capacity appears to be the right number.

It's a stance that frustrates those on the front lines of emergency medicine who say they're the ones left dealing with the fallout of nine fewer beds.

"The default of having them in an emergency department room sitting there with a sitter and a guard is not medical care. The new psychiatric hospital is a very expensive endeavor and was half the size, probably, that it should be," said Weimersheimer.

VPCH came with a $28 million price tag with insurance to pay $3.5 million, $12.5 million paid by Federal Emergency Management Agency and $12.4 million paid by the state of Vermont.

It has an annual operating budget of $19.9 million. Add in the two other facilities, Brattleboro Retreat at $6.6 million and Rutland Regional Medical Center at $3 million, and the total cost of Vermont's decentralized system is $29.5 million, about $8 million more than the centralized model at $22 million a year.

"What I think the Legislature didn't think through, and is beginning to realize now, is that when you decentralize care, if you're going to maintain the same overhead components, it will cost a great deal more," said Rep. Anne Donahue, R-Northfield.

Vermont shells out $1,272 per patient per day for beds at Rutland Regional and $1,375 at the Brattleboro Retreat.

Neither have 24-7 psychiatry staff on-site. The new state hospital does, but the daily bed cost is significantly higher at $2,277.

Under the centralized system the state spent $1,390 per patient per day for care at the troubled Vermont State Hospital, a facility that was no longer federally funded due to multiple decertifications for inadequate patient care.

"It was overly optimistic for anyone who thought this was going to suddenly solve things and I think that we're seeing some of those issues now," said Donahue.

Not only is it expensive, but many critics say the new state hospital is not living up to expectations. WCAX obtained records revealing problems.

VPCH has treated 37 patients, but it has never been full. Patient counts range from a low of seven in July to a high of 22 in November, leaving three beds empty despite patients like Austin waiting in emergency rooms. One reason may be the hospital's layout.

"We're looking at our use of space. This was a new facility," said Jeff Rothenberg, VPCH CEO.

VPCH is divided into four units, each with multiple beds. But one dangerous patient can shut down an entire unit, leaving beds empty as other patients are shuffled to safer quarters.

Then there's the issue of staffing shortages. VPCH requires one registered nurse for every four patients. But Rothenberg says 20 percent of direct care staff did not make it through the initial six-month probationary period.

"The biggest frustration would be the hiring of registered nurses," said Rothenberg.

He admits nursing salaries there do not compete with other area hospitals. VPCH offers an hourly base salary of $24.78 for a Step 1 nurse. That's about 5 percent less than similar positions at UVM Medical Center, which offer $26.27.

Since July, there have been 79 assaults on staff members, 47 required first aid and five sent VPCH employees to the emergency room.

"If we don't make some changes to fix the problems, including the violence against staff, I worry that there's going to be an erosion to attract good people and keep our hospitals operating," said Pierattini.

Lawmakers are cautiously optimistic these are simply growing pains that can be ironed out. Donahue opposed the decentralized care model from the start, but eventually worked with the Shumlin administration on the new hospital's design.

"We don't want to jump the gun on that and start adding hospital beds, if it's just going to take the system a little bit more time, but we can't give it a lot of time," said Donahue.

That's little consolation to patients like Austin who are fighting to survive.

"You're at the lowest point you're going to get. Treatment should be happening right then, and you're simply waiting for the system to kick in. And that's the worst," said Austin.

Reed says the state has no immediate plans to add acute bed space. But, the department of Mental Health and Buildings and General Services are exploring what it would take to make the seven-bed temporary facility in Middlesex a permanent secure residential treatment center. Currently the state's agreement with the town only extends through 2018. Reed says the state would likely face water and septic barriers in its permanent proposal.

01/03/15

48 HOURS: LIVE TO TELL: "Soul Survivor" - a report about Robin Doan, who as a young girl in 2005, played dead to live through the murders of her entire family as they slept in their beds. Before that night, the now 20-year-old Doan was a typical 10-year-old girl in a hardworking family of farmers in Pampa, Texas. They became the targets of an intruder who enjoyed killing just for the thrill of it. The immediate investigation yielded few clues. Doan, however, had a remarkable ability to recall the details of that traumatic night. Investigators would later learn that the gunman who killed Doan's family had killed before, hundreds of miles away in Missouri. A day before the Pampa shootings, Orlie McCool and his daughter-in-law Dawn were killed and the family pickup stolen. Levi King was later found behind the wheel of the stolen vehicle in El Paso, Texas. He also told law enforcement that there were four more bodies in Texas. King told law enforcement officers that the feeling he got from killing the McCools was better than any drug he had ever done. This was the lead needed to solve the Pampa murders. Robin Doan was willing to help by testifying about the night her family was gunned down while they slept. King took a plea deal in Missouri -- to avoid execution he agreed to two consecutive life sentences without the possibility of parole. In Texas, he also took a guilty plea, but the DA refused to take the death penalty off the table. Robin testified at the trial. There was one holdout for the death penalty; King received a life sentence. He will serve his time in Missouri. Robin Doan is satisfied. On-screen text graphic: Robin has decided to leave Pampa. She plans to visit often. Interviewed: Robin Doan; Chad Brooks (former deputy sheriff); Gary Henderson (former Sheriff, Hemphill County); Lynn Switzer (former District Attorney); Lynn Hancock (Pastor, Briarwood Church); Jay Foster (Texas Ranger); Matthew McCool (McCool family member); Michael Hall (sheriff); Don Ruby (former deputy sheriff); Joe Marr Wilson (defense attorney); Denise Mackie (Robin's friend) (C: Erin Moriarty - P: Ruth Chenetz)

48 HOURS: "The Ultimatum" - a report on the investigation into the murder of Vanessa Mintz, who was gunned down at the family-owned Saluda Mountain Lodge, in Saluda, North Carolina on Saturday, February 19, 2011. Mintz, whose family had long-standing ties to the area, had married early in life, divorced and raised two daughters, Jessica Freeman and Andrea Little Gray, as well as becoming a respected businesswoman, realtor and mentor to young girls. Police investigation at the lodge found a crucial piece of evidence only the killer could have left, but questions remained: did Mintz know her killer or was it a random robbery that went bad? The investigation took the case in another direction when police found out that her husband, Travis McGraw, was secretly dating Mary Beth Fisher. His cell phone records revealed he was sending intimate text messages to Fisher. Fisher claims McGraw had told her he wasn't married, and the relationship, though intimate, was not sexual. Fisher found out the truth and gave him an ultimatum -- make up your mind by Sunday. Mintz was shot dead on Saturday. Travis McGraw willingly turned over his cache of guns to police. One of his guns matched the cartridge found at the scene and he was arrested for murder. Mintz's daughters emerged as powerful advocates for their mother, and prosecutors, after consulting with them, offered a plea deal to McGraw: second-degree murder with a sentence of 16-20 years. He accepted, but at the last moment changed his mind about pleading guilty. Three years after the murder the trial began. McGraw was found guilty of first-degree murder. On-screen text graphic: Mary Beth Fisher and Vanessa's daughter Andrea work at the same hospital. They occasionally cross each other's paths. Andrea and Jessica are creating a local family justice center and a trauma intervention program in honor of their mother. Interviewed: Carl Mintz (father); Jessica Freeman and Andrea Little Gray (Mintz's daughters); Willie McGraw (father of Travis McGraw); Marcia Blythe Cunningham (Mintz's friend); Heather Waldbart (mentoring student); Steve Modlin (Chief Investigator); Alex Bass (Prosecutor); Mary Beth Fisher (McGraw's girlfriend); Shane Greene (State Bureau of Investigation) (C: Peter Van Sant - P: Alec Sirken, Elena DiFiore, Michelle Feuer)

01/17/15 48 HOURS: "Death in the Parsonage" (8:00-9:00p) - an updated rebroadcast on the suicide of Joseph Musante; the eventual discovery of his wife, Cindy's secret affair with A.B. Schirmer, the pastor of the Readers United Methodist Church in Readers, Pennsylvania; and the eventual investigation to determine if the deaths of the pastor's previous wives were really accidental. Musante's sister, Rose Cobb, knew something wasn't right and pressed authorities to keep looking. Musante's daughter, Samantha, told police that she had discovered the affair between her mother and Schirmer and had told her father. Further investigation revealed Musante's death was truly a suicide. This led to questions regarding the death of the pastor's second wife, Betty Schirmer, just three months earlier in an auto accident. Her death was determined to be suspicious and police suspected Schirmer. Questions then arose about the death of Schirmer's first wife, Jewel. The cause of her death, from a fall, was initially classified as undetermined, but was now ruled a homicide. A.B. Schirmer was arrested and charged with the murder of his second wife, Betty. At trial, A.B. Schirmer was found guilty of murder. Cindy Musante continues to stand by him. Original on-screen text graphic: Schirmer is awaiting trial for the murder of his first wife, Jewel. Sam's mother, Cindy told the court she believes "one hundred per cent" in Schirmer's innocence. Epilogue (for the 01/17/15 rebroadcast): a year and a half after his conviction for the murder of his second wife, Betty, A.B. Schirmer struck an unexpected deal with prosecutors. He pled no contest to the charge that he murdered his first wife, Jewel, saying he only took the plea to spare his family the trauma of going through another murder trial. Schirmer was sentenced to twenty to forty years in prison, the maximum allowed, on top of his life sentence. New on-screen comments by Jon Behney, (Jewel Schirmer's brother), James Fully, Julie Campbell (Schirmer's daughter), Tina Fultz (Betty Schirmer's sister). On-screen text graphic for this 01/17/15 rebroadcast: A.B. Schirmer lost an appeal of his conviction for murdering his second wife. Sam's mother Cindy told 48 HOURS she still believes "one hundred percent" in Schirmer's innocence. Interviewed: Rose Cobb, Musante's sister; Samantha, Musante's daughter; Detectives Jim Wagner and Wendy Serfass; Julie Campbell and Amy Wolfgang, Schirmer's daughters by his first wife Jewel; Betty Schirmer's sisters Sandy Weikel and Tina Fultz; Good Samaritan Stan Dickerson; Dr. Wayne Ross, medical examiner; Schirmer's attorney Brandon Reish; and Prosecutor Mike Mancuso. 01/17/15 48 HOURS: "Murder in Pinyon Pines" (10:00-11:00p) - a report on the investigation into the triple murders and the long quest for justice for Vicki Friedli, her boyfriend Jon Hayward, and Vicki's daughter Becky Friedli. In 2006, in Pinyon Pines, California, Friedli and her boyfriend were shot dead and their house set on fire. Outside the home, investigators found the charred remains of Becky Friedli, in a wheelbarrow. She was burned so badly, they could not determine how she died. Retired policeman Ron Friedli, Vicki's ex-husband and Becky's father, had a theory about what happened: Becky was deathly afraid of fire and he suspected she knew her killer. Police searched for clues but the case went cold. Years later, Luis Bolanos, a private investigator and a former colleague of Ron's, asked if he could get involved; he said he could get the case back in the news. He did just that. Seven years after the murders, police arrested Becky's ex-boyfriend Robert Pape and his best friend Christian Smith and charged them with murder. Their families say they are innocent. But an unexpected courtroom twist turned the case upside down. The District Attorney said there was an "issue" in the grand jury proceedings against Pape, and dropped the charges against them both. However, it may not be completely over; the investigation continues. On-screen text graphic: A new DA was sworn in last week. He says he will review the case "with an open mind". Christian Smith has been honorably discharged from the Army. Interviewed: Tanya Friedli, Drew Friedli, Ron Friedli (Becky's sisters and father); Katie Hayward (Hayward's daughter); Daniela Zermeno (Becky's cousin); Luis Bolanos (private investigator); Kathleen Pape and Christy Pape (mother and sister of Robert Pape); John Conrad Smith (Smith's father); Brandon Kugler-Harrison (friend of Pape and Smith); Richard Blumenfeld (Pape attorney); Eduardo Roy (attorney for Becky's friend Javier Garcia Junior) (C: Troy Roberts - P: Lourdes Aguiar, Peter Shaw)

- 01/24/15 48 HOURS: “Kiss of Death and the Google Exec” - an investigation into the 2013 drug-related death of Google executive Forrest Hayes and an investigation of Alix Tichelman, the woman charged with killing him, whose ex-boyfriend also died of a lethal overdose. Hayes, a successful, wealthy, married Santa Cruz, California technology genius was found dead from a heroin overdose aboard his 46-foot yacht. The yacht had been outfitted with a sophisticated security system, which eventually led investigators to Alix Tichelman, a young woman with whom he had a secret liaison aboard the yacht. Hayes and Tichelman met on an online dating service known for connecting wealthy men with women looking to be spoiled. The video footage recorded Tichelman injecting Hayes, cleaning up the scene and stepping over him to leave. At issue is whether Tichelman knew Hayes was in distress when she left, as police maintain, or if his death was accidental, as public defenders representing Tichelman claim. Tichelman led a troubled life which included eating disorders, drugs, and specialized schools. Investigators learned that just months before Hayes' death, Tichelman's then-boyfriend, Dean Riopelle, an Atlanta night club owner, also died from a heroin overdose. After an elaborate sting, Tichelman was arrested for the death of Forrest Hayes. Riopelle's death, originally classified as accidental, is being given a second look by Georgia authorities. On-screen text graphic: Alix Tichelman pleaded not guilty to manslaughter in the death of Forrest Hayes, and pleaded not guilty to prostitution and drug charges. Tichelman's next court appearance is on February 23, 2015. If convicted of manslaughter, Tichelman could face a maximum of fifteen years in prison. Interviewed: Stephen Baxter (Santa Cruz Sentinel/48 HOURS Consultant); Michael Daly (Daily Beast investigative reporter/48 HOURS Consultant); Steve Clark (Santa Cruz Deputy Police Chief); Brandon Wade (“Seeking Arrangement” dating website owner); Chad Cornell (Tichelman's boyfriend); Ashley Kent (dorm mate at the Hyde School); Khristina Bocker (Dean Riopelle's former assistant); Jerry Christense and Larry Biggam (Tichelman's public defenders); Alex (no last name/schoolmate); Todd (no last name/friend of Riopelle's) (C: Maureen Maher - P: Allen Alter, Patti Aronofsky, Elena DiFiore)
- 01/31/15 48 HOURS: “The Millionaire, The Model & The Hit-Man” - an investigation into the relationship between Dino Guglielmelli, a millionaire health supplement distributor/ wannabe rock star, his model wife, Monica Olsen, his business partner/presumed hitman Richard Fuhrmann, and the $80,000 “hit” Guglielmelli ordered on his wife. In 2008, Olsen, a model-turned-housewife, wanted to re-start her career, Guglielmelli was not happy. He became very controlling, dating other women and eventually filing for divorce. He tried various schemes to discredit his wife. In 2012, when he couldn't get his way in the divorce, he confided his problems to business associate/friend Richard Fuhrmann, asking him to “take care” of his wife; Fuhrmann told Guglielmelli that he would take the job. Instead of murdering Olsen, he went to the authorities in Los Angeles, California, and agreed to wear a wire. In October 2013, Fuhrmann got Guglielmelli to repeat that he would pay $80,000 to have Olsen killed. To the authorities, it was a clear-cut case of murder for hire; Guglielmelli was arrested. Guglielmelli, in a telephone interview from jail, claims he is the victim; he was conned by Richard Fuhrmann. Authorities agree that Fuhrmann is a con man, but the conspiracy to kill Olsen was very real. In a surprise move, they offered Guglielmelli a plea deal: plead guilty to attempted murder in the second degree and serve only nine years in jail. He accepted. In a telephone interview from prison, Guglielmelli discusses his decision. Olsen is proceeding with the divorce and worries about the future. Fuhrmann fears what will happen when Guglielmelli is released from prison. On-screen text graphic: Because Dino took a plea deal he cannot appeal his conviction. Interviewed: Dino Guglielmelli; Monica Olsen; Rick Fuhrmann; Emilio Guglielmelli (brother), Gino Guglielmelli (brother); Letitia Devine (Dino's ex-wife); Olya Banar (Monica's friend); Emily Cole (Deputy District Attorney) (C: Troy Roberts - P: Judy Rybak, Greg Fisher)

There are no approved vaccines or drugs available to fight the disease and although researchers believe ZMapp is the cure, randomized trials have not yet been conducted to confirm this. It takes six weeks to produce enough ZMapp to cure only dozens. The process consists of dousing the main ingredient, tobacco plants, with three different antibodies and giving the plants time to harvest and duplicate antibodies repeatedly. This new type of terrorism is described as a hybrid between jihad and petty criminals. The Kouachi brothers grew up in Epinay, a poor French suburb, which is feared to have become a recruiting ground for radical Islamists seeking foot soldiers. Cherif and Amedy met while they were incarcerated for non-terrorist crimes at the Fleury-Merogis Prison, and came under the influence of al Qaeda operative Djamel Beghal. Although the Kouachi brothers declared allegiance to al Qaeda and Coulibaly to ISIS (ISIL), it is believed to be more of a psychiatric problem with the men, than terrorist notions. 48 HOURS: "Gone" - a report about Mark Castellano, a man who claimed to be so desperate to find Michelle Warner, the mother of his three-year-old son, that he agreed to talk to Dr. Phil McGraw on McGraw's daytime talk show regarding her 2012 disappearance. Within forty-eight hours, Castellano then told police a much different version of events. Warner had been living in Houston, Texas with Castellano, her on-again/off-again boyfriend. Castellano claimed Warner stormed out of the house after a fight and vanished without a trace, leaving her child behind. Warner's family did not believe it and filed a missing persons report. Houston homicide detectives later received the case. Castellano agreed to appear on "The Dr. Phil Show". Dr. Phil interviewed Castellano at his parents' home in West Texas; he wasn't buying Castellano's version of events and had serious doubts about his story. The police investigation continued, but there were few if any clues. Two days after the interview with Dr. Phil, Castellano voluntarily went in for an interview with the police. During the interrogation, Castellano finally cracked and admitted that he had killed Warner, put her body in his car, and buried it in a shallow grave outside of Midland, Texas. Local police and the FBI tried to locate her body but were unsuccessful. Eventually, using Apple's Face Time app and an iPhone, and with help from Castellano, police were able to scan the area and locate Warner's body. Castellano was arrested and charged with murder. Eight days later, "The Dr. Phil Show" aired its episode about the case. Also includes: Tracy Smith's interview with Mark Castellano in which he reveals deep-seated anger and resentment towards women and claims it was all an accident. At his trial, attorneys presented a new version of what he now says is the truth. After more than a week of testimony, Castellano was found guilty in the strangling death of Michelle Warner. On-screen text graphic: Mark Castellano will be eligible for parole in thirteen and a half years. He will be fifty-three years old. Interviewed: Mark Castellano; Dr. Phil McGraw (television personality / psychologist); Donna Malone (Michelle Warner's mother); David Chaffin (Michelle Warner's brother); Fil Waters (Houston homicide detective); Sergeant Brian Harris (Houston homicide detective). (C: Tracy Smith - P: Chuck Stevenson)

48 HOURS: "Dangerous Games" - a report on the events that led to the 2012 death of Lizzi Marriott, a 19-year-old New Hampshire woman lured into the dark world of BDSM (bondage, discipline, and sadomasochism) and who twice refused to take part in bondage and S&M sex with her co-worker Kat McDonough and her boyfriend Seth Mazzaglia. Marriott accepted an invitation from McDonough to hang out with her and her boyfriend and watch a movie -- and she never returned home. Mazzaglia used McDonough to bring other women into their relationship for his pleasure -- and that, for him, involved ropes and bondage gear, a fantasy brought into the mainstream by the book series and current motion picture, "Fifty Shades of Grey". Police investigation led to Mazzaglia and McDonough. During interrogation, Mazzaglia said Marriott died accidentally during a BDSM encounter. McDonough told police Marriott was never there, but later, in a plea deal, changed her story. She said Mazzaglia killed Marriott when, after playing strip poker, she twice turned down his requests to initiate sex. After Marriott's death, they disposed of her body in the ocean. At Mazzaglia's 2014 trial, McDonough's testimony was critical. Ultimately, Mazzaglia was found guilty of first degree murder and sentenced to life without parole. On-screen text graphic: Lizzi's family has set up a scholarship in her memory, The Lizzi Marriott Intrepid Ocean Explorer Fund. Kat McDonough will be released from prison in July, 2016. Interviewed: Bob and Melissa Marriott (parents); Becki and Tony Hanna (Marriott's aunt and uncle); Nate McNeal (Marriott's friend); Catherine (no last name given, ex-girlfriend of Mazzaglia); Rod Doherty (former Foster Daily Democrat Executive Editor); Richard DiMario (McDonough friend); Andrew Cotrupi (McDonough attorney). 02/21/15

48 HOURS: "Fall From Grace" - an investigation into the October 2012 death of Bethany Deaton -- whether her death was a suicide, the fundamentalist Christian religious group to which she belonged, her marriage to the group's leader, and the quest by her family for answers. Bethany Deaton was a young wife and nurse, whose lifeless body was found in the backseat of a minivan, in Grandview, Missouri -- a plastic bag over her head, a suicide note, and an empty pill bottle nearby. Deaton's mother believed it was not a suicide and that someone else had a hand in her daughter's death; possibly someone involved in the fundamentalist Christian religious group to which she belonged, and which some people likened to a cult. While in college, and devoted to religion, Bethany was drawn to Tyler Deaton, the leader of the group called "The Community", which was associated with the International House of Prayer (IHOP). Deaton told members what to wear, when to eat and even controlled their romantic relationships. One member says the group had become a full-blown cult. Bethany eventually married Tyler, but the marriage wasn't perfect. There were questions about Tyler's own sexuality; Bethany fell into a deep depression. Police did not believe Bethany killed herself. After the Medical Examiner ruled it a suicide, Micah Moore, another member of "The Community", told police that he had killed Bethany, and was subsequently charged with murder. The case was upended when he recanted his confession. Investigators were unable to substantiate his confession and just weeks before the trial was to begin, charges were dropped against Micah. Questions remained. Was Micah manipulated? Did Tyler have something to do with it? Tyler is ready to admit he played a role in her death, but to what end? Did Bethany really commit suicide, or was it murder, as her mother believes? On-screen text graphic: Tyler has filed a claim to Bethany's forty thousand dollar life insurance policy. He plans to pay back the Leidleins for the wedding. Interviewed: Carol Leidlein (Bethany's mother); Tyler Deaton (her husband); Boze Herrington (friend of Tyler and Bethany); Teryn O'Brien (lifelong friend of Bethany's); Penny Cole and Ben Kenney (Jackson County Sheriff's Detectives); Melanie Morgan (Micah Moore's attorney); Eric Leidlein (Bethany's father). 48 HOURS: "End of the Trail" (9:00-10:00p) - a report on the investigation into the 2008 murder of educator/artist Carol Kennedy, who was brutally beaten in her home outside Prescott, Arizona. Kennedy's ex-husband, stockbroker Steven DeMocker, became the chief suspect. Police investigation revealed a man who was a serial philanderer, who was struggling with a heavy financial burden, and had a toxic relationship with his ex-wife. Police arrested DeMocker saying they had a strong circumstantial case, but legal maneuvers, court delays and the death of a judge would prolong the case for five years. DeMocker's girlfriend, Renee Girard, then revealed critical information about DeMocker's activities after Kennedy's death: he lived in fear of being arrested for a crime and revealed information about an insurance policy. His large family, including his two daughters Charlotte and Katherine, believe he is innocent. Prosecutors believe he killed Kennedy to avoid paying alimony and to gain access to an estimated $750,000 life insurance payout. After five years, and nearly $2 million in taxpayer money, the trial commences. Steven DeMocker is found guilty of first-degree murder; he is sentenced to life in prison without parole. On-screen text graphic: Charlotte graduated from college this month with a degree in finance. Katherine will finish law school next year. She hopes to pursue a career as a federal prosecutor. On-screen text graphic for the 02/28/15 rebroadcast: Charlotte graduated from college in 2014 with a degree in finance. 48 HOURS: "Blaming Melissa" (10:00-11:00p) - an investigation into the 2009 case of Melissa Calusinski, a young woman who claims she did not murder 16-month-old Ben Kingan while working at a day care center in Lake County, Illinois, despite having confessed to the crime. Also examined are police interrogations, what happens after a confession, and what can happen when a key player in the investigation admits he made a life-altering mistake. Two days after Ben Kingan's death, Calusinski was brought in for questioning; police told her Ben died from a blunt-force trauma to the head and that she was the last adult to have seen him alive. She was interrogated for nine hours, never asked for a lawyer, and eventually confessed to dropping the child in a way that may have led to a head injury. She was convicted of murder, largely on the fact that she had confessed and that the Medical Examiner's report said that the child suffered from fresh injuries to his head. Her family persuaded a newly-elected coroner, Dr. Thomas Rudd, to re-examine the evidence. His findings revealed an older head injury -- a significant discovery. Eventually, state pathologist Dr. Eupil Choi, admitted to missing the old injury in his report. With this information, attorney Kathleen Zellner, who specializes in cases pertaining to false confessions, says that Melissa Calusinski did not receive a fair trial. Advocates say that, under extreme conditions, 60% of people confess to crimes they did not commit. The police say they played by the rules. Two courts have allowed the conviction to stand. Attorney Zellner believes the medical evidence needs to be re-examined, but the State Attorney will not pass it on. Family and friends vow not to give up. On-screen text graphic: Melissa lost her first appeal. She plant to try again based on the new medical evidence. Interviewed: Melissa Calusinski; Paul and Cheryl Calusinski (parents); Crystal Calusinski (sister); Ruth Fuller (journalist); Dr. Thomas Rudd (Lake County coroner); Kathleen Zellner (attorney); Deborah Teurkheimer (law professor); Michael Nerheim (States Attorney). Some theories about Nisman’s death are: suicide; government aided murder; revenge murder by former Argentine government spy Jaime Stuisso; or murder by Nisman’s coworker, Diego Lagomarsino, who says he gave Nisman the gun for self-defense. Includes interviews with: Diego Lagomarsino, (through translator), Nisman’s coworker; Gustavo Perednik, author; and Hector Timerman, Argentine Foreign Minister. “Dead or Alive” – a report on the errors of the Social Security Administration’s Death Master File. Those who are alive and mistakenly put onto the list, can be cut out of existence by banks, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), Medicare, credit agencies and the like. On the other hand, there have been continued payments to deceased citizens whose names were never put on the list. To combat these errors, the Social Security Administration has started cross-checking with a Medicare list to see who is using Medicare, and if a citizen has been off the list for three years, they gather more information to see if they are dead or alive. Includes interviews with: living Americans declared dead by the Social Security Administration: Don Pilger, Kristina Pace, Betty Denault, and Judy Rivers; Patrick O’Carroll, Social Security Administration’s inspector general; and Sandra Kimbro, who pleaded guilty to accepting her mother’s Social Security benefits, but says it was done so unknowingly. (C: Scott Pelley – P: Patricia Shevlin, Gabrielle Schonder)

After attempting this experiment for a year, and just one month after placing the gorillas into the wild, they discovered five females and one child gorilla died, proving Aspinall’s critics correct: the wild is a not necessarily a place where it is safe for domesticated animals to roam. Includes interviews with: Damian Aspinall and Tara Stoinski, president of the Dian Fossey Gorilla Fund. (C: Lesley Stahl – P: Shachar Bar-On, Alexandra Poolos)

“Iraq’s Christians” – a report from Northern Iraq, where up to 125,000 Christians have been forced to flee from ISIS (ISIL) terrorist violence. Christian homes in Iraq’s second largest city, Mosul, have been marked by ISIS with the Arabic letter ‘N’ for Nasara, an Islamic term for Christians, forcing its residents to either convert to Islam, pay an extortion tax, or be killed. Inhabitants of surrounding villages and towns across the region, known as the Nineveh Plains, have fled the area and are living as refugees in Erbil. Includes interviews with: Father Joseph Ibrahim, monk at Monastery of St. Matthew; Archbishop Nicodemus Sharaf, Archbishop of the Syriac Orthodox Church in Mosul; Issah Al Qurain (through translator), resident who had his house marked; and Archbishop Bashar Warda, Archbishop of Erbil. (C: Lara Logan – P: Max McClellan, Jeff Newton, Richard Butler)

“Rare Earth Elements” – a report on how China has become the world leader of rare earth metals, essential ingredients used in everything from smart phones and computers, to cars and missiles. The U.S. began the cultivation of these materials at Molycorp, Inc.’s mine in Mountain Pass, California after geologists identified rare earth elements in the Mojave Desert, but it was shut down in 1998 due to environmental concerns. Meanwhile, China took over the industry since they have less environmental constraints around mining and lower labor costs, which translates into lower pricing. Molycorp Inc.’s Mountain Pass mine reopened in 2010. Includes interviews with: Constantine Karayannopoulos, chairman of Molycorp, Inc.; Daniel McGroarty, principal of Carmot Strategic Group; and Ed Richardson, president of the U.S. Magnetic Materials Association. “Bashar al-Assad” – an interview with the President of Syria, Bashar al-Assad, who sat down with Charlie Rose in Damascus last week to discuss how the Syrian government has lost control over significant amounts of its territory to terrorist groups like ISIS (ISIL), al Qaeda or Syrian rebel groups during the three-year-old civil war. The dictator is questioned about: attacks on civilians with chemical and “barrel bomb” weapons, the future of his relationship with the United States, and his characterization of surrounding countries in the Middle East. (C: Charlie Rose)

“Killing Cancer” – a report on a Duke University clinical trial of an immunotherapy that uses a re-engineered polio virus to kill cancer cells in brain cancer patients, specifically those diagnosed with glioblastoma, a deadly type of brain tumor. So far, 11 of 22 patients treated have died, but the remaining 11 have seen their tumors shrink, and two people introduced in this report have been declared cancer free: Stephanie Lipscomb, the first patient in the trial and Dr. Fritz Andersen, the second. A third patient Donna Clegg died, most likely due to too much of the polio virus injected into her tumor, creating too large an immune response. However this helped guide doctors to lower the dosage for another featured patient, Nancy Justice, who appears to be on the same track to remission as Lipscomb and Andersen, as her tumor continues to shrink with each MRI. Includes interviews with: Dr. Annick Desjardins, neuro-oncologist at Duke; Dr. Henry Friedman, deputy director of Duke’s Brain Tumor Center; Dr. John Sampson, chief of neurosurgery at Duke; Dr. Matthias Gromeier, molecular biologist at Duke and creator of the modified polio virus used in the trial; Dr. Peter Marks, deputy director for the FDA; Dr. Darell Bigner, director of Duke’s Brain Tumor Center; and trial patients: Stephanie Lipscomb, Dr. Fritz Andersen, Nancy Justice, and Donna Clegg. Also includes comments by: Greg Justice, Nancy’s husband and Wayne Clegg, Donna’s husband. 48 HOURS: "Murder in Aspen" – a report on the 2013 murder of Nancy Pfister, an Aspen, Colorado socialite/ski resort heiress, and the investigation to find her killer. Pfister came from a family of high achievers, but was also known for a demanding demeanor; even her friends were treated with disrespect, as friend Kathy Carpenter had personally experienced. Nancy Pfister was found dead from blunt force trauma, in the bedroom closet of her home by Kathy Carpenter. She had been alerted that something was amiss by Nancy Styler, who had recently rented the place with her husband Trey Styler, and was in the process of moving out. Police focused on the Stylers because they were involved in a public dispute with Pfister involving the rental home. Pfister came back three months earlier than expected, saying the couple had owed her a large amount of money. Police believed Nancy Styler harbored anger over the way Pfister treated the couple. They also believed Trey Styler, who suffered from a neurological disorder, was incapable of killing anyone. Days after the murder, both were arrested and charged with murder. Soon after, Kathy Carpenter was also arrested, and charged with murder. Police believed the women had bonded over Pfister's seeming indifference to them. Three months later, a bombshell: Trey Styler confessed and said that he and he alone had killed Nancy Pfister. He agreed to tell the details of the crime in exchange for a 20-year sentence and his wife's unconditional freedom. The charges were dropped against both women, but they claim that the prosecution's continued insistence that they were somehow involved in the murder has convicted them in the court of public opinion. Kathy Carpenter still faces the threat of prosecution should more evidence be found. Nancy Styler can never be charged. On-screen text graphic: Nancy Styler has filed for divorce, gone back to take her maiden name and moved to another state. Interviewed: Nancy Styler; Kathy Carpenter; Mark Seal (writer/48 HOURS consultant); Tim Mooney, David Koffend, Michael Cleverly (Pfister friends); Juliana Pfister (daughter); Andrea Bryan (Assistant District Attorney); Lisa Miller (DA Chief Investigator); Sherry Caloia (District Attorney); Greg Greer (Carpenter defense attorney); Garth McCarthy (Styler defense attorney). 48 HOURS: "Bruce Beresford-Redman: The Verdict" (9:08 - 10:08p) – an updated followup to "Prison Diaries" (OAD: 11/15/14), itself an update of "Fatal Episode: The Producer's Story" (OAD: 02/25/12; Rebroadcast: 09/22/12), a report on former reality show producer Bruce Beresford-Redman, who was accused of murdering his wife Monica Burgos, while on a 2010 vacation in Cancun, Mexico. This broadcast includes the verdict: Beresford-Redman has been found guilty of homicide and sentenced to twelve years in prison. Included are new interviews with his mother Juanita Beresford-Redmond, his wife's sister Carla Burgos and her attorney, Allison Treesle. The 09/22/12 rebroadcast included a phone interview with Beresford-Redman, who maintained his innocence, from the Mexican prison where he was being detained while awaiting trial. Today, until the Mexican court system decides his guilt or innocence, Beresford-Redman remains incarcerated. Recently, over a period of four months, with a camera provided by 48 HOURS, he recorded diary entries in his cell and elsewhere around the prison compound and took viewers inside his life behind bars. Unlike many of his cellmates, Beresford-Redman has been able to pay for food to be brought in, but he describes the Mexican prison system as a dirty, rat-infested village with razor wire around it. There are about 1,800 men, women, and children living in a prison originally built for 700 people. Also included is the first sit-down interview with Beresford-Redman, as well as interviews with his parents, and his wife's sisters. 11/15/14: On-screen text graphic: The judge can take as long as he wants to make a decision. 03/14/15: No On-screen text graphic for this broadcast. Interviewed: Bruce Beresford-Redman, Jeanne and Carla Burgos (Monica's sisters); Juanita and David Beresford-Redmond (Bruce's parents); Sonya Tsiros (U.S. Consul General for the Cancun area); Jen Heger (Radar Online reporter); Pat Fanning (criminal defense lawyer); Jaime Cancino (one of Bruce's attorneys); and Emily Hamilton (tourist who was assaulted) (C: Troy Roberts - P: Josh Yager, Ana Real, Paul LaRosa)

- 03/14/15 48 HOURS: COLD CASE: “Who Killed Amy Gellert?” (10:08 - 11:08p) - the first in a new short-run series focusing on long-unsolved murders. Each broadcast will go in-depth into a hard-to-close case and present new reporting along with the existing evidence. This report focuses on a 1994 home invasion in Cocoa Beach, Florida, which led to the murder of 21-year-old Amy Gellert. Gellert had interrupted an intruder holding her parents hostage. Startled, the masked man stabbed her mother Charlotte (Bunny) Lehton and her stepfather, Robert Lehton. He fled, where he encountered Gellert in the driveway. Her killer was never caught. Multiple suspects have emerged since that fateful night. The cold case team of Major Todd Goodyear, Lt. Carlos Reyes, Marlon Buggs and Wayne Simock discuss their theories about the case: the unusual weapons used (a dagger and a prop gun), the intruder (characteristics, accent, etc.), and the possibility of a targeted attack. Ultimately, two main suspects have emerged: Scott Manley (someone who Gellert had met in drug rehab) and Dominic Kanuika (who admits to driving by the crime scene) and a possible connection between the two men. On-Screen Text Graphic: If you have information about Amy Gellert’s murder contact: The Brevard County Homicide Unit. Email: majorcrime@bcso.us. Call: Central Florida Crimeline: 1-800-423-TIPS. Interviewed: Charlotte and Robert Lehton; Mark Gellert, Ryan Gellert (brothers); Andrea O’Dell (Amy’s best friend); Major Todd Goodyear, Marlon Buggs, Wayne Simock, Lt. Carlos Reyes. (C: Erin Moriarty - P: Lisa Freed)
- 03/21/15 48 HOURS PRESENTS: “The Bizarre Saga of Robert Durst” - a report on new details in the case of millionaire Robert Durst (and a followup to 48 HOURS MYSTERY: “The Mystery of Robert Durst” (OAD: 03/17/04, Rebroadcast 09/09/04). Durst was recently arrested in New Orleans for the 2000 murder of his friend Susan Berman, following the broadcast of the six-part HBO documentary “The Jinx”. He still remains a suspect in the disappearance of his first wife, Kathie Durst. Also included is an exclusive interview with his attorney Dick DeGuerin, who tells 48 HOURS Correspondent Erin Moriarty that he’s eager to go to court and that the prosecution has a “weak circumstantial evidence case” against Robert Durst. Durst, the son of a prominent New York City real estate family, is no stranger to controversy. He remains a suspect in the 1982 disappearance of his first wife, Kathie Durst. At the time of Berman’s death, Durst was hiding out in Galveston, Texas, masquerading as a woman and trying to avoid authorities who wanted to talk to him about his wife’s disappearance. Berman, the daughter of a well-known Las Vegas mobster, was shot dead in her Los Angeles home; police suspected a mob hit. Durst was not considered a suspect until he became involved with the death of Morris Black in Galveston, claiming he accidentally killed Black in self-defense, then cut up his body. A jury eventually acquitted him of murder. Now, the HBO documentary has raised questions regarding Berman’s death, and police now believe that a destitute Berman was possibly blackmailing Durst because she knew details about Durst’s disappearance, and that comments made by Durst during the program will lead to a conviction. Durst’s attorney Dick DeGuerin comments on the current publicity, the evidence, and how Durst is eager to get to California to prove his innocence. Included interviews with: Dick DeGuerin (attorney); Paul Coulter (Los Angeles Detective); Jim McCormack (Kathie Durst’s brother); Jack Leonard (Los Angeles Times writer); Dr. Alexander Sasha Bardey (Forensic Psychiatrist); Lisa DePaulo (New York Magazine writer); Steven Silverman (Berman friend) (C: Erin Moriarty - P: Chuck Stevenson, Judy Rybak, Liza Finley, Greg Fisher, Lisa Freed, Linda Martin)

48 HOURS: "The Pretender" - an updated rebroadcast of "The Pretender" (OAD: 05/31/05), a report on the case that has inspired the 2015 theatrical film "True Story", which recounts how Christian Longo posed as discredited New York Times journalist Michael Finkel, while on the run in Mexico -- after murdering his wife and children in Oregon in 2001. At the time, Finkel, who admitted to fabricating a portion of a story on child slavery in Africa, was fired by the newspaper and had retreated to Montana in disgrace. Christian Longo, a married father of three, was living in Oregon where he moved for a fresh start, after committing a series of crimes in Michigan. In reality, Longo was a pathological liar and con man. Soon after, Longo was on the run, charged with killing his wife MaryJane and his three children. It was then that Finkel and the police learned that Longo had assumed Finkel's identity. Finkel, curious to learn why someone would want to steal his identity, met with Longo and, based on conversations, a series of letters and phone calls, put together an account of events leading up to the murders and Longo's apprehension, which he used as a way to resurrect his ruined writing career. Christian Longo was tried, found guilty of the murders and sentenced to death. He has since changed his story and is working on an appeal. Finkel authored a book, "True Story: Murder, Memoir, Mea Culpa", which is the basis for the theatrical release starring Jonah Hill and James Franco. On-screen text graphic: Prosecutors say Christian Longo's appeals are likely to last five to ten years. Oregon now has a moratorium on the death penalty. Michael Finkel took Longo's advice and married his girlfriend, Jill. The couple now has three children. Interviewed: Michael Finkel; Christian Longo; Jill Barker (Finkel's girlfriend); Trish Miller, Fred Farkas (detectives); Penny Dupuie, Sally Clark (MaryJane Longo's sisters); Denise Thompson (Longo babysitter); Tom Taff, Janina Franke (met Longo on the run); Dick Hoch (truck driver); Josh Marquis (Oregon District Attorney).
