Storm Spotter Training Program Scheduled for Monday January 13th

The National Weather Service will be in town for a free severe weather training session. In 2019, North and Central Texas experienced 40 tornadoes and several damaging straight-line wind events. These storms resulted in millions of dollars of damage. The 2020 severe weather season is not too far away, and the National Weather Service and local emergency management officials want you to be ready.

To get ready, you are invited to this year's SKYWARN Storm Spotter Class. The National Weather Service will be offering this free class on Monday, January 13th, from 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM. The program will be held at the Freestone County Fairgrounds in Fairfield and is held in partnership with Freestone County.

This class is for established storm spotters, anyone with an interest in severe weather, and/or anyone who wants to learn more about the severe weather threats in North and Central Texas and how to be prepared. This is part of a regional severe weather preparedness campaign, which will include spotter training sessions in many counties in North and Central Texas. Other classes in the region can be found on the full schedule <http://www.weather.gov/fwd/skywarnsch?sptrsch>. This class is free of charge and no pre-registration is necessary.

This year's program will feature an in-depth review and study of the various threats posed by severe thunderstorms. The program will also review thunderstorm characteristics and features associated with severe and non-severe storms. Additionally, the program highlights severe weather safety and how you can report severe weather information back to the National Weather Service and local public safety officials.

"By coming to this training session, you will gain a better understanding of Texas' severe weather season," says Tom Bradshaw, Meteorologist-in-Charge of the NWS Fort Worth Office. "Waiting until storms are on your doorstep is not the time to start thinking about severe weather preparedness. We hope you attend these free sessions to learn more about the severe storms that impact the region every year."

The Freestone County severe weather program is one of over 35 training sessions that the Fort Worth National Weather Service Office will conduct between January and March 2020. The National Weather Service in Fort Worth provides forecasts, warnings, and weather services for 46 counties in North and Central Texas. For more information on severe weather, visit our website at <http://weather.gov/fortworth>, on Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/NWSDallasFortWorth> and on Twitter: @NWSFortWorth.

Ranchers Leasing Workshop
January 16, 2020

This workshop will focus specifically on legal issues related to grazing, hunting, and livestock leases. This will be a half day seminar. Participants will have the opportunity to ask questions, interact with attorneys and economists, and discuss issues such as payment structures, average lease rates, key terms to include in leases, and methods to protect against liability for injuries.

For the last three years, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension has hosted Ranchers Leasing Workshop events across the state. This program is designed for both agricultural landowners and tenants who are involved in grazing, hunting, and livestock leases. Presenters at the program are Tiffany Dowell Lashmet, J.D., Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Agricultural Law Specialist and Dr. Greg Kaase, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Agricultural Economist.

To date, AgriLife has held 19 Ranchers Leasing Workshop programs and had over 1,200 attendees, 100% of whom would recommend the workshops to a friend. In total, over 1.357 million acres have been represented at these workshops. These programs offer practical, real-world advice that attendees can take home and put into action to help strengthen their lease agreements and protect their operations. Topics covered include why written leases are important, legal considerations regarding lease agreements, structuring lease rates, how much is the lease land worth, economic decision aid tools, key terms to include

Breed type, individual performance data, pedigree and visual appraisal are some of the items to consider when purchasing a bull. For example, it is important to avoid bulls with an unknown background because half of the genetics from your herd comes from the female, and the other half comes from your bull. This presentation will cover much of the topics mentioned above on Bull Selection and much more.

Soil Fertility on Pesticide Performance will also be covered, which are important factors in pasture management. It is important to be mindful of our soil. While animals and plants show obvious signs of stress in the form of physical symptoms, we have to take a closer look at our soil and monitor to achieve good health. Soil provides the support or foundation for plants as well as most of the nutrients. Soil testing is truly important and helps take the guess work out of what is needed for soil to grow forage at a more optimum opportunity. This presentation will cover much of the topics mentioned above as well as much more important information to forage production.

This program is sponsored by Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, Anderson County Farm Bureau, El Dorado Chemical Company, Heritage Land Bank, Colony Ranch Supply and United Country- Staples Property Group.
