1:46 SEGMENT 1: Solving crimes with new technology _____ 12:10

Synopsis: With new gadgets and programs being invented every day, the technologies used in solving crimes are changing constantly. We reached out to leading experts on the subject, including a programmer, a 3D printing specialist, and best-selling crime author Patricia Cornwell. Through these interviews, we got the inside scoop on how mobile devices, 3D models, and even “smart home” devices like a refrigerator can be used to crunch the data, solve crimes, and present cases in court.

Host: Gary Price. Guests: Lee Reiber, COO for Oxygen Forensics Inc.; Jerry Ropelator, CEO of White Clouds; Patricia Cornwell, bestselling crime author, author of “Chaos.”

15:59 SEGMENT 2: What we love about time travel _____ 9:27

Synopsis: We see it everywhere: time travel. The concept has dominated our books, movies, and television for decades. We even saw a time travel ethics question dominate our primary election coverage. So what is it about these stories that we find so irresistible? We talk to Dr. Travis Langley, a pop culture psychologist, to uncover what lies underneath the fantasy we’ve all indulged from time to time: traveling backwards and forwards through time.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Dr. Travis Langley, author of a series of pop culture psychology books including, “Doctor Who Psychology: A Madman with a Box.”

1:46 SEGMENT 1: Uniquely Jazz: Sheila Jordan _____ 12:00

Synopsis: With “La La Land” tapping into theaters around the country and a strong contender for this year’s Oscars, we wanted to re-visit one of the quintessential American art forms: jazz. And nobody sings jazz better, or more distinctly, than Sheila Jordan. We talk to Jordan and her biographer about Jordan’s rise, the racism that jazz musicians – both black and white – experienced, and the need to preserve from poverty to her career singing with some of the most famous jazz musicians of the 20th century this music for future generations.

Host: Gary Price. Guests: Sheila Jordan, jazz singer, teacher and composer. Ellen Johnson, singer, musician, author of Jazz Child: A portrait of Sheila Jordan

1:47 SEGMENT 1: The Art of Quitting _____ 11:06

Synopsis: Many people remain in bad situations because they are afraid to quit, but they shouldn't. Our guest says that if you take the time to carefully plan just how and when you'll walk out the door, it's easier to deal with the anxiety, fear and depression that can follow such a big decision. We'll hear about steps anyone can take – and those they shouldn't – when it's time to quit and move on.

Host: Gary Price. Guests: Peg Streep writes non-fiction, is a blogger at Psychology Today.com and the author of the book, "Quitting: Why we fear it, and why we shouldn't, in life, love and work," now out in paperback.

14:50 SEGMENT 2: Bob Marley's Legendary Life 10:35

Synopsis: It has been decades since Bob Marley's death, but his music is still played and his face still shows up on tee shirts. From "One Love" and "Jamming" to "Buffalo Soldier" and "Three Little Birds," you've heard his iconic music, but what about his life and career made such an impact? We talk to two Marley experts, James Henke and Vivien Goldman to uncover what made Marley tick and how his message became so prominent.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: James Henke, rock journalist and author of "Marley Legend;" Vivien Goldman, adjunct professor at Rutgers University and author of "Exodus: The Making & Meaning of Bob Marley's Album of the Century"
