There is no particular order of importance regarding this list. On the following pages we identify programming providing the station's most significant treatment of these community issues. This list was determined by contact with community leaders, and with input from viewers in the various communities we serve.

Special Note: In the following report, certain items are listed with indeterminate duration times. These include segments of magazine-type shows. It is not possible to determine exact times in these instances. In the case of public service campaigns, each spot is given strong support during the campaign dates, with numerous on-air exposures.

3. Health/Safety
4. Environment
5. Crime
6. Government

1. Economy

One of the biggest concerns of our viewers is the economy. The collapse of the housing market and the bailout of the financial and automobile industries had people worrying about their 401(k) retirement accounts. But just as stock markets were recovering from these scares, global concerns about the European debt situation and the political stalemate in Washington over the debt ceiling and other issues again had an adverse effect on the stock market. The job drain overseas continues to wipe out well-paid jobs in several different economic sectors. Government cutbacks and business downsizing have contributed to the bleak unemployment situation in this country even though there has been some slight improvement. Jobs are still extremely hard to find, and many people have given up looking for work. The wars in Iraq and Afghanistan continued to contribute to concern over the economy. The tremendous costs involved in military operations and the rebuilding of Iraq are contributing to a large drain on the economic health of the country. The rising costs associated with health care are affecting all Americans, particularly those on limited incomes. Many people are concerned about the costs involved in the new health care reform bill. Large state and local budget deficits are adding to the concern over how to pay for essential services and properly fund new and existing projects without raising taxes. One of the biggest areas of concern in Wisconsin has been Governor Scott Walker's budget repair bill. It was pushed through by Republican majorities in both the Assembly and Senate over strong opposition from Democratic members of the State Legislature. The measure increases pension and health care contributions by state workers, and strips collective bargaining rights from most state employees.

2. Education

Education is a prime concern of many people. On one hand, they want the best possible education for young people, but at the same time are concerned about the costs. Education is one of the highest priced items on the local tax bill, and declining state aid is contributing to worries over how to pay the bill for today's schools. Republican Governor Scott Walker's budget repair bill strips millions of dollars of state aid from schools. The bill was passed by Republican majorities in both the assembly and senate over the strong opposition of Democrats. It requires that workers contribute more toward the costs of their retirement pension plan and health insurance. The bill also strips collective bargaining rights from most state workers, including teachers. Republicans say the measures included in the new law will more than offset cuts in state aid, but many educators are doubtful they will come out ahead. As a result of the bill's passage, many teachers have been taking early retirements in an effort to protect their existing pension benefits. This could result in a massive loss of experienced educators. As a result of the state budget cuts, tuition is likely to rise at state-supported universities and technical colleges. Limits to enrollment are also a possibility as schools struggle to maintain quality programs in the wake of dire budgetary cuts.

3. Health/Safety

Health and safety concerns are an important priority for many people in the communities we serve. Here in the La Crosse area residents have access to two top medical centers, in addition to Mayo Clinic in nearby Rochester, Minnesota. The question is not one of quality of care, but the expense involved in seeking medical treatment. Many people go without health insurance, either because it's not available to them or the cost is prohibitively high. State programs have been instituted in order to make sure children and some low-income people have access to health care. However, severe budget cuts in Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker's budget repair bill threaten many state health programs. Many people in the state could be dropped from programs designed for senior citizens and the poor. The new federal health care reform bill continues to generate controversy, particularly along party lines. Republicans in Congress are attempting to repeal the law, or strip funding that will be needed to institute many of the health care reforms. Court challenges to the constitutionality of the bill could also delay implementation of the insurance reforms and coverage aspects of the health law. One of the major health care costs, particularly for older Americans, is the high cost of prescription drugs. One part of the health care reform law will eventually close the so-called doughnut hole in the Medicare prescription drug plan if it's allowed to stand. Many people are worried about the future of entitlement programs such as Medicare and Social Security. They fear many changes may be in store as federal and state governments struggle with rising deficits and declining revenues.

4. Environment

Environmental concerns are on the minds of many people in our viewing area. Global climate change is one of the most important items that people feel needs to be addressed. There is an increasing awareness of the role nature plays in our lives, and the importance of being good stewards of our natural resources and wildlife. Some of the problems being addressed include air and water pollution, waste disposal, agricultural pollution, destruction of wildlife habitat, and many other environmental matters. More attention is being given to the many different items that affect the quality of our lives. People are beginning to realize that environmental problems must be solved if we are to maintain the lifestyles we enjoy in this country. Energy production is at the forefront of much discussion. A big challenge for the future will be the reduction in greenhouse gases that accompany the burning of fossil fuels for energy production. An increased reliance on solar energy and wind power could help reduce pollution levels and help alleviate the factors involved in climate change. But all proposed changes to our energy emphasis will come with a huge price tag at a time when state and federal budgets are at the breaking point. Energy conservation measures could play a big part in the nation's energy future. The fate of nuclear power in this country is extremely uncertain in the wake of the nuclear disaster in Japan following a huge earthquake and devastating tsunami. Many people and government officials are calling for a moratorium on nuclear development until safety issues are examined and resolved. On the local front, the increasing intrusion of emerald ash borers into our area could mean the loss of thousands of ash trees. Invasive species of carp threaten the viability of fisheries and habitat in area rivers and the Great Lakes.

Viewers consistently indicate a strong concern about crime. Even though some crime statistics are down, many people have the impression that more crime is occurring. Residents of rural areas report they are seeing more drug-related and property crimes. Several high-profile crimes, including murder, have taken place throughout our area. The rapid introduction of methamphetamine and other new drugs into the La Crosse and Western Wisconsin area is causing considerable concern among law enforcement agencies. One of the main issues being considered by law enforcement agencies and government officials is lack of jail space. La Crosse County has completed an addition to its newly constructed law enforcement center because of an increased demand for jail space. Monroe County had put construction of a new law enforcement center on hold because of economic concerns, but now is considering new alternatives to solving jail crowding. Many law enforcement and court officials are investigating the increased use of probation, supervision and electronic monitoring as an alternative to jail and prison for nonviolent offenders.

6. Government

Government is a category that includes many different concerns, ranging from national politics to local government. It encompasses a broad area of interest on the part of local residents as to what their representatives are doing with their tax dollars. Recent interest has focused on the collapse of the housing industry and the government's bailout of the financial and automobile sectors. Congressional infighting over the nation's debt ceiling and spending cuts has focused attention on the inability of our representatives to make the tough decisions necessary for the nation to move forward. The new health care reform law is a top item of interest for most people. Many people are frustrated with the continuing terrorist resistance in Iraq and Afghanistan. Most people's interest is focused on how Barack Obama has handled his role as President of the United States, and on the growing opposition to his programs and big government in general. The quest for the Republican nomination for the 2012 Presidential Election has brought forth many conservative candidates, all of whom are blasting President Obama on everything from jobs to health care. Mid-term elections put Republicans in control of the House of Representatives and many state legislatures and governor's offices. In Wisconsin, Republican Governor Scott Walker's budget repair bill has been under heated debate. The bill increased state worker's contributions to their pension and health care plans. It also stripped collective bargaining rights from many state workers. These measures, along with massive cuts in state aid to local governments and school districts, have brought forth a stream of protests and demonstrations against the governor, who is now facing a recall election. The reliance on property taxes to fund local government comes under constant criticism, with detractors saying high property taxes are harmful to the retired and people on limited incomes.

48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Playing with Fire" (9:00-10:00p) - In the early morning hours of September 2, 2002, two young men were found executed in a burning Mercedes SUV in an upscale North Hollywood, California neighborhood. The victims were Michael Tardio, 35, a part-time model and doorman at The Garden of Eden – at the time Hollywood's hottest nightclub – and his friend, 31-year-old Christopher Monson. What initially looked like a drug or gang-related murder, turned out to be something entirely different, but the crime scene left little forensic evidence to go on. Retired veteran Los Angeles Police Department Detective Bill Cox, who spent four years on the case learned that Tardio's girlfriend was Sandy Bentley, who along with her twin sister, was a former live-in girlfriend of Hugh Hefner at the Playboy Mansion. She was also an ex-girlfriend of Mark Yagalla, a former Wall Street hedge fund manager who was convicted of running a multi-million dollar Ponzi scheme. During her relationship with Yagalla, he gave her more than $6 million worth of expensive gifts. When federal officials came after these gifts, Bentley secretly kept $1 million worth of jewels and furs she was legally required to forfeit. Police believe that Tardio and Monson were murdered when Tardio set up a deal to sell the jewelry to an unidentified buyer. When Bentley was questioned by police, she initially denied the fact that Tardio and Monson were selling the jewelry. When threatened with a possible jail sentence, she told them the truth. The strongest lead police had was a telephone number Tardio gave to Bentley for Michael Jacobs, a convicted felon who was seen with Tardio at the Garden of Eden. Police believe he was the middle man in the jewelry transaction and the only person who knows the identity of the intended buyer, known only as "Mister Big". Jacobs has refused to give any information to the police or 48 HOURS. Authorities are hoping that viewers of this broadcast may provide a new lead that could help them in solving the case. Interviewed: Retired LAPD Detective Bill Cox; Andrew Blankstein of the Los Angeles Times; Izabella St. James, former girlfriend of Hugh Hefner; Mark Yagalla; Brian Bieber, Yagalla's lawyer; Michelle Braun, Internet madam; Mike Degnan, FBI Special Agent; Attorney Eugene Licker; Linda Kim, jewelry collector and international weapons broker; Chris O'Connell, 48 HOURS investigative producer. Onscreen graphics: The Los Angeles City Council has renewed a $75,000 reward for information leading to a conviction in this case. On Monday (10/03), Knox and Sollecito had their convictions overturned and were acquitted. This report details the manipulation and sexual intimidation Amanda endured while behind bars, in her own words, from a letter she wrote. Also included, are exclusive video diaries, collected over the course of ten months, from Madison Paxton, Amanda's best friend, who moved to Italy to support her friend. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Redemption Song" - a report on the 1985 death of Natalie Antonetti, a woman who was part of the Austin, Texas music community. She was found beaten at home by her son, Johnny Goodie, and remained in a coma for two weeks before she died. The police investigation at the time focused on Marty Odem, a restaurant manager and sometime male stripper, who had a track record of violence. Police just did not have enough to go on, and he was never charged. He was later convicted of an unrelated rape and sent to prison; police then considered the case closed. In 2007, Austin Police Detective Tom Walsh reopened the cold case when an anonymous call came in naming Dennis Davis, a well-known name in the Austin music scene as a suspect. Davis had dated Antonetti, and at the time had what seemed like a solid alibi. But now, his wife, Becki Davis, was the one who called the police. Detective Walsh has found several women who have become key players in the investigation: Davis' then-girlfriend Ampour Garcia-Crow is certain he was not with her on the night in question; Linda Bless, who has seen his anger; and an ex-girlfriend Gelinda, who says that Dennis Davis confessed the murder to her. In 2009, 24 years after the murder, Davis was arrested. In April 2011, the case went to trial. Though the prosecution's case was largely circumstantial, they had the phone call that started it all. Dennis Davis was found guilty of the murder. At the sentencing hearing there was another shock: Becki and Dennis Davis had reconciled. He was sentenced to 36 years behind bars. The defense team still insisted they had a solid rebuttal but were unable to present their case. On screen graphic: Dennis Davis will be eligible for parole in 2028. He will be 78. He is appealing the verdict. Included interviews with: Natalie Antonetti's son and musician Johnny Goodie; Mark Pryor, Austin Assistant District Attorney; Mark Hallman, Antonetti's friend; Austin Police Detective Tom Walsh; Dennis Davis, the suspect; Davis' former girlfriends, Amparo Garcia-Crow and Linda Bless; defense attorneys Wade Russell, Efrain De La Fuente. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: "The Killing Fields" - a report about a desolate strip of land between Houston and Galveston where over 30 young women and girls have disappeared or have been murdered, and a followup to "Killer in Friendswood" (OAD: 05/01/97), which detailed the disappearance and death of 12-year-old Laura Smither. With this weekend's release of a film entitled "The Texas Killing Fields", attention has been rekindled about some of the cases, including the story of Krystal Baker. In 1996, Baker, whose great-aunt was movie star Marilyn Monroe, disappeared from Texas City and was found two weeks later near the Louisiana border, beaten to death and sexually assaulted. In 1997, Laura Smither went out to jog and disappeared and her body was found weeks later. When another young woman disappeared, the Smithers joined the search, as did Tim Miller, whose daughter, Laura Miller, was kidnapped and murdered when she was sixteen. Laura was one of four young women murdered and dumped along a remote area that earned the name "the killing fields". Journalist Skip Hollandsworth chronicled the case for Texas Monthly, in which a brilliant scientist, Robert Abel, became a suspect, but police could never find a connection. Police detectives Brian Goetschius and Michael Land are investigating, but as Hollandsworth says, it's clear that it has been various men who have done different things to these women, not one serial killer. As the movie is released, there is the reality that many of these cases remain unsolved. The actors hope that the film will help make a difference. Just after the film wrapped, a big break came up in the Krystal Baker case: DNA was submitted to a nationwide computer data bank, and a Louisiana man, Kevin Edison Smith, arrested on a drug charge, came back as a match. He has been charged with murder and will go on trial in December. The Smithers don't have DNA evidence, but they believe they know who killed their daughter: William Reece, the prime suspect in another case. Motivated by his loss, Tim Miller founded the rescue group Equusearch, which over the years, has helped look for missing people and located scores of bodies. For now, the killings seem to have stopped: no new cases of murder have arisen. Included interviews with: journalist Skip Hollandsworth; screenwriter Don Ferrarone, actor Sam Worthington; investigators Brian Goetschius and Michael Land; Jeanie Baker, mother of victim Krystal Baker; Bob and Gay Smither, parents of victim Laura Smither; Tim Miller, father of victim Laura Miller. (See also: "Killer In Friendswood", OAD: 05/01/97 and "Prime Suspect", OAD: 10/23/97) (C: Erin Moriarty - P: Lourdes Aguiar, Alec Sirken, Jenna Jackson, Chris O'Connell)

48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Murder In The OC" - A report on the 1994 murder of millionaire businessman Bill McLaughlin in his Newport Beach, California home. After his divorce, McLaughlin, a devoted father and family man became involved with the much-younger Nanette Johnston, who it was later discovered, made a habit of seeking out wealthy men to date. Following the murder, police initially considered a business associate, but then focused their investigation closer to home. His ex-wife and daughters had airtight alibis. Nanette Johnston's alibi did not exactly check out: she had been at her son's soccer game with another man, Eric Naposki. McLaughlin's family, when asked, knew nothing about him, but police referred to him as Nanette's boyfriend. In his first on-camera interview regarding the case, Naposki, once a professional football player for the NFL, says that Nanette Johnston was his girlfriend in 1994, and he had his own plans of marrying her. He says that Johnston told him that McLaughlin was once her boss but had become her business partner and that there was no romantic relationship -- she had led him to believe that McLaughlin's money was her own. Though he was a suspect, police never had enough to bring the case to trial. Nanette was charged with theft, pleaded guilty, served some time, and then married and divorced several very wealthy men. Naposki moved on with his life; moving to the East Coast and becoming a personal trainer. In 2009, police called the McLaughlin family and told them they had arrested Nanette Johnson Packard McNeill and Eric Naposki for the murder. According to Naposki, the only person to profit from McLaughlin's murder was Nanette. With no fingerprints or DNA, Orange County Deputy District Attorney Matt Murphy had no problem with Naposki's attorneys blaming Johnston, but still believes Naposki pulled the trigger. After four weeks of trial, the jury convicted Naposki of murder. On screen text graphic: Nanette Johnston sued the McLaughlin family soon after his murder for money she felt she was entitled to. They settled for $220,000. Eric Naposki's lawyers have filed to overturn his conviction. They argue favorable evidence was lost because prosecutors waited so long to file charges. Included interviews with: daughters Jenny McLaughlin and Kim McLaughlin; brother Patrick McLaughlin; Don Kalal, McLaughlin's best friend; lead detective Tom Voth; Eric Naposki; Angela Licata, Naposki's sister; Angelo McDonald, defense attorney. CRIME

48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Pvt. Needham's War" - a report on the case of Pvt. John Needham, a decorated soldier diagnosed with traumatic brain injury (TBI) and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), and who investigators say beat his 19-year-old girlfriend Jacque Villagomez to death with his bare hands in September 2008. Needham took responsibility for the murder, but remembered little of the crime, recognizing only that something inside him had snapped. After serving in Iraq, Needham had returned home, shattered physically and emotionally. He also suffered from combat injuries and was prescribed drugs which he downed with alcohol. He had known Villagomez, who had also struggled on and off with drug addiction, for only a few months when she moved in with him; his drinking escalated after that. After his father, Mike Needham Sr., told Jacque that she had to move out and she had agreed, an old girlfriend, Renee Stoner, came to the house, which upset Villagomez. An argument between the two women broke out, resulting in Stoner's departure and a call to 911. When police arrived, they found Jacque Villagomez battered and near death, with John Needham naked, crying, and smeared in blood. There was no evidence that anything other than Needham's fists were used to beat Villagomez and he was never able to provide a clear explanation for the killing. Released on bail, his father sought to get his son the care he believed he needed and insisted that the crime was not murder. The father argued that if not for Needham's war injuries, Villagomez would be alive today. To make his case, Mike Needham Sr. allowed investigative reporter Michael de Yoanna and a team of filmmakers to document the unraveling of his son's life. Before his trial, John visited his mother in Tucson, AZ in 2010 for additional back surgery. His brother, Mike Needham Jr., came to visit from California. Shortly after his arrival, Mike found his brother unresponsive -- he was dead at the age twenty-six. His death was determined to be from an overdose of painkillers, but the question remains as to whether it was an accident or suicide. The prosecutors in the Villagomez case says that John Needham may have been a good soldier, but that he needed to be held accountable for what he did. On screen text graphic: 48 Hours Mystery reached out repeatedly to the Army for a response to John Needham's story. The Army declined to comment. Interviewed are: Villagomez's close friends Sarah and Spencer Savino; Mike Needham, Sr. (father) and Mike Needham, Jr. (brother); Joe Gaul, Orange County homicide detective; Michael de Yoanna, investigative journalist and CBS News consultant; Dr. Richard Friedman, Professor of Psychiatry, Weill Cornell Medical College; Michael Becker, public defender; Steve McGreevy, Orange County prosecutor. 48 HOURS SPECIAL PRESENTATION: "Vanity Fair: Hollywood Scandal" - a trio of investigations presented by staff writers of Vanity Fair magazine. 1) "Natalie Wood's Fatal Voyage" - Sam Kashner reports on the just re-opened case of actress Natalie Wood's death by drowning. This past weekend, after thirty years of rumors, the Los Angeles police department has re-opened the investigation. On Thanksgiving weekend in 1981, Natalie Wood, her husband Robert Wagner and Christopher Walken, her co-star in her latest film, were boating off of the coast of Catalina Island, on Wagner's vessel, the Splendour. Hours later, Wood's body was found floating in the Pacific Ocean. An investigation found no suggestion of foul play and it was ruled an accidental drowning. Now, based on new information, the police have re-opened the case. Interviewed are: Dennis Davern, the captain of the boat, who now admits that he lied to police about that night; Marti Rulli, a longtime friend of Davern's who has spent thirty years investigating the death; Mart Crowley, a close personal friend of Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner; Marilyn Wayne, who was on a nearby boat that night; Detective Duane Rasure, the original investigator on the case. In a written statement, the Wagner family says that it supports the investigation and trust the new information will be judged on the credibility of the source. 2) "The Gangster and The Goddess" - Patricia Bosworth reports on the 1958 stabbing death of gangster Johnny Stompanato. Actress Lana Turner was a much-married, Academy Award-nominated actress who became involved with Stompanato, not knowing he was gangster Mickey Cohen's bodyguard. She tried to break off the relationship, and during an argument between the two at her Beverly Hills home, he was stabbed to death by her daughter Cheryl Crane. Crane was charged with murder, put on trial and the event was eventually ruled a justifiable homicide. Turner continued her career and died at age 75, though many still believe that Turner was the one who did the stabbing. Today, Cheryl Crane writes murder mysteries. Interviewed are: Cheryl Crane, Turner's daughter; Hollywood producer George Schlatter; John Ibrahim, the son of Johnny Stompanato, who doubts the official account of the crime; Eric Root, hairdresser to the stars, who says that Turner admitted to him that she did it. 3) "The Miranda Obsession" - Brian Burrough reports on Miranda Grosvenor, a woman who for the past forty years was known to have befriended, over the telephone, dozens of Hollywood actors, directors, rock stars and politicians. Self-described as a leggy, beautiful blonde, she was viewed as something of a muse to many of these powerful men. Writer Buck Henry was one of those who became a friend, and after a time he realized she was misrepresenting herself. Music producer Richard Perry became obsessed with her and demanded to meet her. When he did, in a darkened hotel room in New York City, it was clear she was not the person she was presented herself to be. He soon ended the relationship. Whoever she was, she was not a stalker -- she just called people on the phone and developed ongoing telephone relationships. For the first time since Burrough located her twelve years ago, she agreed to an interview, with the understanding that her real name not be revealed. Featured are interviews with Buck Henry; Richard Perry; and Miranda Grosvenor. Special correspondents for this 48 HOURS SPECIAL PRESENTATION: Sam Kashner, author, "Natalie Wood's Fatal Voyage", Vanity Fair; Patricia Bosworth, author, "The Gangster and The Goddess", Vanity Fair; and Bryan Burrough, author, "The Miranda Obsession", Vanity Fair. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Murder at the Manor" - a report about Harold "H" Landry, a self-made Cajun millionaire who left behind his life in Louisiana to pursue an international romance with a British woman he met online and how this seemingly perfect relationship ended when Lucy Landry was murdered at their home in February 2010. Landry confessed to stabbing his wife to death. Landry, or "H", as he is known to his friends, is a larger-than-life man who, after making a fortune in Louisiana, went looking for love online at the age of fifty-three. In 1989, he met Lucy Davies, a 28-year-old woman with a child who lived in the United Kingdom. His friends thought the romance seemed more like a business deal, and when Lucy became pregnant, Landry settled into a new life as a retiree and new father. Ten years later, Lucy asked for a divorce. According to his friends, he was in a terrible state and didn't know what to do. Then Lucy Landry was dead. He didn't deny that he killed her. The trial began for "the American Millionaire Murderer", as he was known in England, and the past came back to haunt him. In 1994, Landry had shot a man named Chris Pine, the angry husband of his girlfriend at the time. According to his attorney, who subsequently became a friend, his defense was that it was self-defense. He listened to his lawyer and was found guilty of the much lesser charge -- aggravated battery. He appealed, and eventually all he got was probation, a fine and some community service. Shortly afterwards, he began his new life with Lucy, who, he says, knew all about his previous crime. According to his friends, the marriage was collapsing because Landry believed Lucy was having an affair. He went to Mexico to cool off and when he returned, she had moved her boyfriend into the house. He was furious; divorce proceedings began -- and then Lucy Landry was dead. Shortly afterwards, the trial began, with Landry receiving an initial advantage: the Chris Pine shooting was ruled as inadmissible. His lawyers argued that the fight was the latest and last example of Lucy goading him with never-ending financial demands and threats. In a relatively brief trial, very different from American standards, that lasted eight days, Landry was convicted of murder. On screen text graphic: Landry is planning to appeal both murder conviction and sentence, a process which may take years. Interviewed: Harold "H" Landry; Lucy Landry's son James, from a previous marriage; Landry friends Wanda and Ernie Richardson; Pat Fanning (lawyer and friend); Helen Knifton; Police Officers Steve Eicocks, Ian Booth, Barney Tyrney; Kristin Harton (Landry family babysitter from 1994); Richard Vernalls, reporter, Worcester News; Andy Childs, one of Landry's attorneys. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: LIVE TO TELL: "Hunting Humans" (9:00-10:00p) - On July 29, 2007 Shea McDonough of Chelmsford, Massachusetts, returned home and left the back door open for her brother, not knowing he was spending the night at a friend's house. Hours later, her parents were startled by a sound coming from her room. They thought Shea was having a bad dream. When her father Kevin went to her room to check on her, he saw a large masked man standing over her with a knife at her throat. He jumped on top of him and they struggled and tumbled to the floor. His wife Jeannie came to the room and tried to grab the blade of the knife with her bare hand. Kevin told Shea to call 911. When the police arrived they were able to apprehend the intruder, Adam Leroy Lane, a trucker from North Carolina. A search of his truck revealed more weapons and a DVD about a serial killer, entitled "Hunting Humans". Police put out an APB to other police departments on the East Coast to see if there were similar incidents. Seventeen days before the attack on the McDonough family, a Pennsylvania woman, Darlene Ewalt, was murdered while talking on the phone on her front porch. Her husband Todd would become the prime suspect. One day before the attack on the McDonough family, Monica Massaro of Bloomsbury, New Jersey was murdered in her home, which was in the vicinity of a truck stop. Detective Sergeant Geoff Noble had seen the APB about Lane and contacted the police in Chelmsford. They told him they had found a receipt in Lane's truck from Bloomsbury, New Jersey. When Noble arrived in Chelmsford, he and his team inquired about the whereabouts of Lane's truck and were told that the rented truck had been returned to its owner, who threw Lane's possessions into a dumpster. They retrieved his personal property and sent it back to their forensic lab in New Jersey. Before they returned home, they questioned Lane, who realized they knew he had killed Monica Massaro so he eventually confessed to stabbing her. Several weeks after his knives were submitted to the forensic lab in New Jersey, the results showed that they contained DNA from Monica Massaro and Darlene Ewalt. This information exonerated Todd Ewalt. Lane reached a plea bargain in the McDonough case and was sentenced to 25-30 years in a Massachusetts state prison. For the murder of Monica Massaro, he was sentenced to serve 50 years in a New Jersey state prison. As part of another guilty plea deal, Lane was sentenced to life in prison for killing Darlene Ewalt. The McDonough family attended all of the sentencing hearings to support the other families. Jeannie McDonough wanted to know what would make someone like Lane start killing people and decided to write a book about it. Onscreen graphics: Adam Leroy Lane was convicted of assaulting another woman in Pennsylvania. He will spend the rest of his life in prison. Jeannie finished her book, "Caught in the Act". Narrated by: Shea, Jeannie and Kevin McDonough; Detective George Tyros of the Chelmsford Police Department; Todd Ewalt; Ed Marsico, Jr., District Attorney from Pennsylvania; Nicole Pogasic, Todd and Darlene Ewalt's daughter; Kerry Ahern, Assistant District Attorney from Massachusetts; Detective Sergeant Geoff Noble of the New Jersey State Police Department. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Secrets of a Marriage" (10:00-11:00p) - a report on questions surrounding the apparent suicide of Jocelyn Earnest, a successful businesswoman who was found dead in her Forest, Virginia home in December 2007, from a gunshot wound to her head -- with a revolver by her side and a suicide note on the floor. Investigators believe that the scene was set up: she was shot, her body was then moved and the scene arranged to suggest a sexual assault. Also, the note mentioned financial problems and a new love. To the investigators, it did not seem like a suicide note. They also found two fingerprints on the note they say matched those of her estranged husband Wesley Earnest, who was living and working in Chesapeake, Virginia -- more than three hours away. Jocelyn and Wesley Earnest met and married in 1995. With both making good salaries, they decided to build a multi-million dollar vacation getaway home on Smith Mountain Lake; but soon after, the couple's nine-year marriage was crumbling. Wesley was seeing another woman, Shameka Wright. When Jocelyn learned about Shameka Wright, she and Wesley separated and she filed for divorce. As the divorce proceedings started, it was the lake house they fought over: she wanted it sold. Investigators say he didn't want to let it go. In fact, Wesley, who was in charge of the couple's finances, was in a fix with loans, credit card debt and a more than $6000-a-month mortgage on the lake house. Investigators thought Wesley Earnest had killed Jocelyn for money. Fifteen months after the death, another bizarre twist occurred in this case: the multi-million dollar lake house burned to the ground while Wesley Earnest was out on bond awaiting trial. Investigators believed he was involved because the huge insurance payoff would resolve a lot of debt. At his April 2010 trial, the prosecution painted Earnest as a manipulative, desperate, greedy man who staged the murder scene and typed the suicide note himself. The jury found him guilty, but a mistrial was declared when it was revealed that jurors had read Jocelyn's journals, which had been ruled inadmissible, but were mistakenly provided to the jury. Seven months later, and more than two-and a half years after Jocelyn Earnest's death, another trial began. Once again, Wesley Earnest was found guilty of first-degree murder. The jury recommended a sentence of life in prison plus three years. The judge agreed. Onscreen text graphic: Wesley Earnest's first appeal was denied. Earnest and Shameka Wright have ended their relationship. Taylor and Deli invaded the family cabin in Oakley, Utah and shot their mother, father and grandmother. The sisters owe their lives to their quick-thinking uncle, Randy Zorn, and their heroic father, Rolf, whose fierce determination gave him the super-human strength needed to ignore his own pain and save his daughters. The Tiede family had gone to spend Christmas at the family cabin. Sisters Linae and Tricia Tiede, only twenty and sixteen years old respectively, were forced to witness the murders of their mother and grandmother. They also planned to burn down the home and take the sisters hostage. The sisters drove the men on snowmobiles past their Uncle Randy, who realized something was dreadfully wrong. His brother, Rolf, though wounded, was somehow able to get on a snowmobile and alert Randy as to what had happened and Randy called 911. The police caught Taylor and Deli and rescued the girls. Taylor and Deli were charged with the murders, aggravated kidnapping, arson and the high-speed chase. Taylor eventually pled guilty to two counts of capital murder. He opted to go before a jury instead of a judge, and was sentenced to death for the two murders. Deli went to trial. The sisters testified at the trial, as did their father, whom Deli had not realized had survived. Deli was convicted of second degree murder, with no option for the death penalty because of a jury member holdout. Today, the family continues to return to the cabin, enjoying their life there. In November 2008, Rolf Tiede died from cancer. On screen text graphic: Von Lester Taylor, sentenced to death for two murders, has been fighting for his own life ever since. He remains on death row, appealing his case. Included interviews with sisters Linae Tiede and Tricia Tiede; their uncle, Randy Zorn; Joseph Offert, lead investigator; Brad Wilde, patrol deputy; their aunt, Claudia Tidwell Nelson; Thomas Brunner, assistant attorney general; Nathan Coats, Linae's husband. 48 HOURS MYSTERY: "Drawn To Murder" (9:00-11:00p) - a report on the February 1987 murder of 37-year-old Peggy Hettrick in Fort Collins, Colorado. Her mutilated, half naked body was discovered in a field near the home of Tim Masters, a 15-year-old who lived near the crime scene. He said he had seen the body on his way to school but, thinking it was a mannequin, he did not report it to the police. He then became a suspect when police searched his home and found his collection of knives and his drawings of graphic images of murder and mutilation. Under interrogation, he adamantly denied any knowledge of the murder -- and since police had no actual evidence linking him to the crime, he was not arrested. Ten years later, prompted by the opinions of Dr. Reid Meloy, an expert on sexual homicide, the police did arrest Masters for the murder. He was put on trial, convicted and went to prison in 1999, sentenced to life without parole. After losing two appeals, he appealed again, claiming ineffective counsel. His defense team then uncovered important items of evidence never given to Masters' original lawyers, although they had been entitled to them. This included, among other things, questions surrounding Dr. Richard Hammond, a prominent eye surgeon who also lived near the crime scene and who had been arrested for voyeurism. And now, for the first time, DNA tests were done on Peggy Hettrick's clothing. These tests found no DNA of Tim Masters, but did find that of Hettrick's ex-boyfriend, Matt Zoellner, and that of two other males. Tim Masters' conviction and sentence were vacated, and he was released from prison after more than nine years. Updated concluding text graphic for this 12/24/11 rebroadcast: Tim Masters was exonerated in June by the Colorado Attorney General. He has received $10 million in settlements for wrongful imprisonment. Jim Broderick is under indictment for perjury in the case. (C: Susan Spencer - P: Joshua Yager, Marc B.
