The Taylorville City Council held their regularly scheduled meeting Monday night at the Taylorville Municipal Building. One of the items on the agenda was purchasing a new vehicle for the street and sewer department. There was discussion from the council on whether or not the city should continue to approve borrowing money for additional equipment for the city.

Alderman Larry Budd raised concerns he had with with taking out another loan for the vehicle, saying the city should consider paying off current loans before taking out additional ones.

TUE 1 TvilleCouncil1 :37

Budd said he thought the matter shouldn't have been brought up at the nights meeting, and instead should of waited until after local elections have occurred so the city knows where it's finances will look like in the future.

TUE 2 TvilleCouncil3 :34

Alderman Shawn Burtle, who ultimately voted for the purchase, did say that Budd made a good point, and suggested the city take a closer look at the current loans the city is paying down at the next finance committee meeting.

TUE 3 TvilleCouncil2 :26

The motion to allow waive the bidding process and to allow Superintendent Wiseman to purchase a new international truck passed by a vote of 5-2.

Election day has come and gone, and Taylorville has several new officials including a new Mayor, City Clerk, and City Alderman. Bruce Barry won the Mayor's race with 46% of the vote. Julie Lilly will become the new City Clerk after capturing 45% of the vote. Jacque Nation retains her position as city Treasurer after defeating her opponents with 45% of the votes, and Lee Lanzotti will become a city Alderman after winning his contest with 40% of the votes.

New Mayor Elect Bruce Barry spoke with Regional Radio News after getting word of his election, and says the experience is humbling and life changing.

WED 2 Election1 :31

Moving forward Barry wants to clean up the town, and continuing to promote growth within the community.

WED 3 Election2 :27

The Taylorville School Tax Referendum passed on Tuesday night in a landslide vote, with 69% of voters voting in favor of the proposition. Taylorville Schools Superintendent Dr. Gregg Fuerstenau discussed the victory with Regional Radio News, calling the vote a victory for the district and the community.

WED 4 Election3 :26

The next step for the Taylorville School Board will be the reinstatement of the programs that were slated to be cut should the referendum have failed.

Taylorville is in the process of attempting to attract new businesses to town, and one aspect of that is the creation of TIF districts to give the area another tool to attract new businesses. The Taylorville City Council recently approved the creation of two TIF districts in the city to help lure businesses to the area.

Taylorville Mayor Bruce Barry says the creation of the TIF districts give the city another reason for people to move to the area.

TUE 3 Barry1 :16

Barry explained what a TIF district is, and the general areas of where the two TIF districts the city approved will be located.

TUE 4 Barry2 :26

Taylorville Mayor Bruce Barry appeared as a guest on the Newstalk WTIM Morning Show.

You may want to plan on using an alternate route if you regularly use Cherokee Street in Taylorville on your commute. Road work has started on Cherokee between East Main Cross and Ash Street. The Taylorville Street and Sewer Department is installing new sewer and water lines, along with widening the street.

Taylorville Street and Sewer Department Superintendent Dick Wiseman says some of the work being done next week will lead to partial closures of Cherokee Street.

The new water treatment plant and the two new TIF districts in Taylorville are both one step closer to reality after actions taken at Monday night's Taylorville City Council meeting. A new contract was approved between Plocher Construction Company and the city after new negotiations were started amid fears that state money would not come in because of the budget crisis. Also, both proposed TIF district maps were approved, moving those one step closer to fruition in the city.

Taylorville mayor Bruce Barry says the new negotiations were started to protect the city if the Illinois EPA were to not release the allocated funds to the city.

TUES E BarryJune19-1 :25

Barry says since the contractor has approved the new terms already, things should get rolling quickly on the new water treatment plant.

TUES R BarryJune19-2 :12

Barry says there is some work to do to annex some of the proposed land for each TIF district, but that the boundaries are now sorted out.

Christian County is now under the watchful eye of the newly formed Christian County Search and Rescue Team. The team is made up of dedicated firefighters and damage assessment team members is designed to give Christian County the ability to get a jump start on search and rescue operations before calling in additional help.

Christian County Emergency Manager Mike Crews spoke with Regional Radio News about the team and is happy the county was able to put the team together. A missing persons search several months ago in Taylorville identified the need for this kind of team.

THU 1 CountySearch1 :27

Team members received training to help them better understand what may be going through the mind of a lost person, which can in turn, help the team locate that person faster.

THU 2 CountySearch2 :30

The final portion of the team's training was to locate a fictitious missing person at Lake Taylorville. The team was able to locate the "victim" within 90 minutes, after a search that the instructors had anticipated would last several hours.

Christian County 9-1-1 will be testing wireline numbers in the Shelby County area from Monday, May 22 through Friday, May 26th between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

These tests will determine network accuracy and location detail for each wireline phone prefix within Shelby County. This procedure is required to make a successful test with a minimum of 10% of the wireline numbers. A public safety telecommunicator will make a call to the number and ask that a return call is made using a test code. This will replicate a 9-1-1 call enabling a verification of data.

On July 3, Christian County 9-1-1 will begin providing enhanced 9-1-1 services for the Shelby County area, including calls for wireline, wireless and VoIP.

If you have any questions or comments, please contact Mickie Ehrhardt, Christian County 9-1-1 Administrator at (217) 287-7911.

The Taylorville School Board held their regularly scheduled monthly meeting on Monday night at the Taylorville School Administration building. It was a good night for the board as it was the board's first meeting since the passing of the Taylorville Schools Tax Referendum, which allowed the board to reinstate all staff and programs that were slated to be cut should the referendum have failed.

Taylorville Schools Superintendent Dr. Gregg Fuerstenau did warn the packed house in attendance that the district wasn't out of the woods yet, and there was still fighting left to do. Dr. Fuerstenau spoke with WTIMTV following the meeting and explained that even with the increased local revenue, the school still relies on the state for much of its funding.

TUE 1 SchoolBoard1 :32

The lawsuit gives the school district one more pressure point towards the state in an attempt to get the funding owed to the school.

TUE 2 SchoolBoard2 :36

The State has also told the district that they will receive a preschool grant for the coming school years. This made it much easier for the school district to reinstate the staff members who were slated to be cut should the local tax referendum have failed.

TUE 3 SchoolBoard3 :26

The board also reinstated the programs that were scheduled to be cut if the tax referendum had failed.

Last Monday, the Taylorville school board voted to try out the CEP program for Pre-K through 4th grade students in the district. But what is the CEP program, and what are the benefits for the district and the students? Regional Radio's Kyle Norris has more...

THURS

Q

CEPWrap

2:25

CEP stands for Community Eligibility Provision, and it's a federally funded program to feed all students breakfasts and lunches at no cost to the students and families. Districts can choose to participate at certain schools, or an entire district can participate if they meet the qualifications. There are many districts across the state that have signed up for the program. One of those district's is the East Alton Elementary School District, about 20 miles northeast of St. Louis. The district has about 550 students in Kindergarten through 5th grade. East Alton has just completed their second cycle in the program. The school district participates in the program district-wide, from Pre-K through 8th grade.

Jill Miller is the Curriculum Instruction Coordinator for the East Alton School District, and she coordinates the CEP program in the district. She says one of the benefits for the district is there is a lot less paperwork to deal with on the front end, along with feeding every student in the district.

The school year is wrapping up for many schools around the region, including Shelbyville schools. Although the year is wrapping up, there are still several events and programs that aren't quite done.

WKN 1 DBense1 :29

Shelbyville athletics are still in action as well, with track and field events still taking place, and the Shelbyville softball team participating in their regional tournament.

WKN 2 DBense2 :26

In the first year of Illinois high school juniors taking the SAT for state testing, Taylorville High School principal Matt Hutchison had high hopes for the test scores. When the scores came back; however, those high hopes quickly came back down to earth.

Hutchison presented the test scores to the board at the Taylorville School Board Meeting on Monday. Taylorville's high school juniors averaged a 985 on the SAT, short of the 998 national average and 1,022 state average. 66 percent of the juniors met the 11th grade benchmark in English, Reading and Writing, while only 46 percent met the same benchmark in math.

Hutchison told the board that part of the issue with the math scores may be that not every student at the school is exposed to the math on the test before their junior year. He presented a plan to change that going forward.

Hutchison says the changes would mainly affect those in the lower track math courses at the high school. He says it's designed to give students exposure to geometry and algebra at the same time.

WED Q HutchisonMath1 :25

Hutchison says the school cannot control outside factors such as the test itself or test anxiety among students, so they will control what they can.

WED W HutchisonMath2 :31

Also changing in the math curriculum is that students will be able to move between the low, medium, and high track courses to give students the appropriate challenge needed to stimulate their education. Overall, 43 percent of Taylorville juniors hit the composite 11th grade benchmark on the SAT exam given in April.
