SYNOPSIS: Topics discussed on today's program:

- Louisiana Legislature rejected proposal to repeal common core.
- Instead a committee was formed to seek a compromise between teachers and common core.
- The committee that was drafted for the standards evaluation had 96 pro-common core members handpicked by the department of education with only seven slots permitted for opponents.
- Students are given a test to determine if they pass or fail, teachers are given a test to determine if they are effective or not, and schools are given a test to determine their rank. If ranked lower than a "C" the state takes over the school and repurposes it as a charter or other educational program.
- Common core test scores were never released to the public.

- Common core curriculum wasn't released to the public so parents and teachers could prepare children for the tests.

Callers aired their different viewpoints, both sides were given equal time for callers to voice support or content.
