To cut costs and strengthen public schools, Vermont plans massive consolidation: In Vermont, voters will decide next week whether to okay the largest public school reorganization in 125 years. A new ballot measure would merge smaller schools and do away with perks that let parents use tax dollars to send their kids to private schools, even in Canada. Opposition is fierce, but advocates say it'll cut costs and strengthen public schools. John Tulenko of Education Week reports.

The daunting struggle to diversify elite public high schools: San Francisco's Lowell High School is one of the most selective public schools in the country. But the school's selectivity means that black and Latino students, who are often less prepared for academic rigor than Lowell's majority-Asian students, are underrepresented. In association with Education Week, special correspondent Spencer Michels reports on how elite schools are working to diversify.
