

Let's Talk Cincy

Episode # 181

Air Date: 3/2/2024

Synopsis:

A Cincinnati group is making college more affordable by helping students find thousands of dollars in scholarships, plus, honoring local civil rights leaders, and renovating a historic theater to house a Multi-Cultural Arts Center.

Seg. 1

We talked with an organization that is helping find college scholarships for Cincinnati area students.

Seg. 2

We spoke with the president of the Cincinnati Urban League. The group is recognizing civil rights legends for the work they have done.

Seg. 3

We explore efforts to renovate a historic theater and turn it into a multi-cultural arts center.

Seg. 4

We honor a pioneering woman who had a Cincinnati Street named in her honor. Shirley Merrick opened the first African American owned health food store and championed good eating well before it became fashionable.