AIR DATE	AIR TIME	DURATION		TITLE
				Cyber Security: Hackers here, hackers there, hackers everywhere. At least that's what it seems like. The formidable NSA, the Democratic Party, voter registration offices in Arizona and Illinois, to say nothing of department stores, hotels and banks have all been hacked and had their credit card and other data stolen recently. But does the public care?
				Vocab Study: We're launching a series today called "What Learning Looks Like." We will explore learning at the cellular level to help us understand how it happens, or should happen, in our everyday lives. Up first: She talks with a San Diego researcher teaching kids fake words to see how the brain processes language.
				Gary Tyler: Gary Tyler was once the youngest person to be placed on death row, now a free man and living in California, he's part of a coalition to abolish the death penalty in California.
				Horrible Imaginings: Horrible Imaginings Film Festival takes its name from a line in Shakespeare's Macbeth about present fears being worse than horrible imaginings.

				Opioid PT2: Opioid addiction has claimed thousands of lives in San Diego County. Understanding who is dying and how addiction has changed over the last 15 years is central to confronting the region's epidemic.
				Arsenic: Environmental advocates say California isn't doing enough to protect residents who have too much arsenic in their public drinking water
				American Umpire: The film is based on a book by former San Diego State University history professor Elizabeth Cobbs Hoffman, who argued the U.S. must share the burden of protecting our allies more evenly in order to return to "global normalcy."
				What the F: Linguist and cognitive expert Benjamin Bergen breaks down profanity into four categories: religious, sexual, bodily functions and slurs. His new book is titled "What the F: What Swearing Reveals About Our Language, Our Brains, and Ourselves
9/14/2016	noon	58:00:00	Midday Edition	Randy Ward: San Diego County Office of Education Superintendent Randy Ward announced Tuesday he will step down in November, about a year ahead of schedule. This follows a suit alleging he improperly got raises worth $100k--he was placed on administrative leave.
				USS Indianapolis: The GI Film Festival, San Diego, co-presented by KPBS begins tonight with screenings of more than a dozen films and shorts telling veterans stories.
				Convoy District: A neighborhood in Kearny Mesa known for its Asian restaurants and shops wants a makeover to become a vibrant urban community for visitors and eventually for residents.
				Baja Wine: Baja California has become a major destination for wine connoisseurs. Baja's Valle De Guadalupe is home more than three dozen wineries. And this is the time of the year known as "crush season" when grapes are harvested, picked, and crushed for a year's supply of wine.
				Carl Hiaasen: Carl Hiaasen is the author of 14 comic crime novels, all of which take place in the hilarious state of Florida. His latest, Razor Girl, features the return of Andrew Yancy, formerly a detective, now busted down to the restaurant cockroach patrol for assaulting his girlfriend's husband with a Dustbuster
9/15/2016	noon	58:00:00	Midday Edition	Connect: Admirers of Mexican reds, whites and blends are often unable to find any bottles on this side of the border. But that's changing.
				Alex Montoya: San Diego resident Alex Montoya is a triple amputee, but he hasn't let that challenge get in the way of achieving his dreams. His third book is called "See The Good."
				Barona: Native American tribes in San Diego are joining what's become a nationwide effort to stop a proposed oil pipeline. The Standing Rock Sioux in North Dakota are staging a protest against the pipeline they they say could threaten their source of drinking water.
