Show: Date: Time: Duration:	Kresta in the Afternoon 11/13/2015 4pm 60m	Fifty years ago, 20 major publishers (including several Catholic publishers) were producing social studies and history textbooks for American schools. Today there are five major publishers, and none is Catholic. In that time, content has steadily diminished in quality and quantity. Founded by an award-winning Catholic headmaster who had grown increasingly frustrated with the content of secular history textbooks that minimized or ignored the significant historical contributions of Catholic laity, saints and religious orders throughout 2,000 years of history, the Catholic Textbook Project provides a fresh alternative for Catholic educators and students. Accurate history, told frankly, and in a writing style that engages students. Founder Michael Van Hecke is with us to talk about the project.

Show: Date Time: Duration:	Kresta in the Afternoon 11/13/2015 5:00pm 60m	It seems nearly impossible that the soul of Charles Schulz's work, which somehow managed the jump to low-budget hand-drawn cel animation, could survive the transition to high-tech 3D computer animation. Surely the result must be something in the vicinity of The Smurfs or Alvin and the Chipmunks. But Steven Greydanus says "no" – Against all odds, The Peanuts Movie returns us to the old neighborhood of Charlie Brown Christmas, It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown and A Boy Named Charlie Brown. We also tackle The 33, the inspirational real-life story which riveted the nation of a gold and copper mine that collapses, trapping 33 miners underground for 69 days.
