White-Washed Out of History: Reviving the Legacy of Black Radical Trade Unionists to Educate, Agitate, & Organize for Power Workers Movements Today

With William P. Jones, is prof. of history at the University of Minnesota, president of the Labor and Working Class History Association and author of the award-winning The March on Washington: Jobs, Freedom, and the Forgotten History of Civil Rights. Jones discusses Black radical labor organizations and the great trade unionist A. Philip Randolph, who first called for a march on Washington in 1941 to press for equal opportunity in employment.. Randolph would call for an end to segregation and a living wage for every American. His vision of equality in race matters was inextricably linked with the shaping an economic system where Black workers and white workers would reap the fruits of their labors. His economic and civil rights demands stimulated a movement of sustained grassroots organizing, linked locally to womens groups, unions, and faith-based organizations across the country and broaden the civil rights movement it propelled.

Will SCOTUS Deliver the Final Blow To Kill Affirmation Action in Higher Education: The Case of SFFA v. Harvard

As white supremacy and the discrimination it fosters is strengthening SCOTUS is poised to hear a challenge, organized and financed by right winger Edward Blum to Affirmative Action in higher education. Amidst this climate efforts to rectify the disparate treatment of Black and Brown students in admission to institutions of higher learning cannot be viewed as mere niceties, and attacks on efforts to remediate the inequities of discrimination by Affirmative Action are not benign. There are real consequences for equal rights and justice at stake in SFFA v. Harvard if SCOTUS further erodes or strikes down Affirmative Action. The real threat posed to Asian Americans is not Affirmative Action- it is Edward Blums brand of white privilege wrapped in the fallacy of colorblindness.

Sparks Fly As Congress Forces Biden Contract Down Railroad Workers Throats
With JP Johnson " former freight conductor, now locomotive fireman AMTRAK & steering committee Railroad Workers United Paul Lindsey " Union Pacific rail engineer & steering committee of Railroad Workers United Marilee Taylor " freight engineer
Maximillian Alvarez - Editor-in-Chief at The Real News Network, covering labor disputes

The current move by Pres. Biden and Congress to impose a contract on 115,000 railroad workers " a contract that the members of rail unions representing the majority of those workers have rejected " is an unconscionable attack on rail workers, the labor movement, and the entire U.S. working class. The right to strike is a fundamental human right, and one of the most effective tools working people have to win justice from the greedy railroad bosses and capitalist oligarchs who increasingly seek to control not only our economy and our government, but every aspect of our lives. Railroad workers are fighting for basic human freedoms " harkening back to the Memphis striking sanitation workers demands to recognize their humanity and to be treated with dignity expressed on the picket signs they carried I Am A Man!
