Mother Nature's Child: Growing Outdoors in the Media Age

Airdate: Saturday, August 25, 2012, 1:00pm

Length: 60-minutes

Description: MOTHER NATURE'S CHILD explored nature's powerful role in children's health and development through the experience of toddlers, children in middle childhood and adolescents. The film marked a moment in time when a living generation can still recall childhoods of free play outdoors; this will not be true for most children growing up today. The effects of "nature deficit disorder" are now being noted across the country in epidemics of child obesity, attention disorders, and depression. MOTHER NATURE'S CHILD asked the questions: Why do children need unstructured time outside? What is the place of risk-taking in healthy child development? How is play a form of learning? Why are teachers resistant to taking students outside? How can city kids connect with nature? What does it mean to educate the 'whole' child? Visually rich, inflected with humor and the unexpected, the film stirred intense discussion among parents, teachers and health professions nationwide. Featuring Richard Louv, author of Last Child In The Woods.

Pact

Airdate: Saturday, September 1, 2012, 1:00pm

Length: 60-minutes

Description: Inspired by The New York Times bestseller, THE PACT centered on the gritty and provocative true-life story of three African-American friends from Newark, New Jersey, who overcame poverty, criminal records and drug-addicted parents in their quest for a medical degree. This was no easy feat considering 50% of students in their school dropped out before the 9th grade. Today, physicians Sampson Davis and Rameck Hunt, and dentist George Jenkins, share their success stories in the hopes of motivating inner-city kids to avoid gangs and drugs and lift themselves out of poverty through education

New Jersey Capitol Report #206

Airdate: Saturday, September 8, 2012, 6:00am

Airdate: Saturday, July 7, 2012, 6:30pm

Length: 30-minutes

Description: President of the New Jersey Council of County Colleges, Dr. Lawrence Nespoli joined Steve Aduato and Rafael Pi Roman to discuss the importance of a college degree and how it could help break the poverty cycle. Next, Sara Bluhm, VP of Energy, Environment & Federal Affairs at the New Jersey Business & Industry Association talked about the waiver rule, which would allow development to bypass environmental regulations on a case-by-case basis. Finally, Mark Dilonno, Columnist at The Star-Ledger joined Steve and Rafael to discuss the sentencing in the Dharun Ravi case.

Nature #2813 "Bears of the Last Frontier"

Airdate: Monday, July 16, 2012, 8:00pm

Length: 60-minutes

Description: Bear biologist Chris Morgan set up camp at a remote spot in the heart of Alaskan wilderness, alongside the largest concentration of grizzlies in the world. Filmed during the spring (June) in the Alaska Peninsula, the sun would set well into night and bears would take advantage of the long days to feed, mate and raise new cubs. Morgan tracked their progress as they feasted on the riches of the season and re-established the complex hierarchal social dynamics of bear society. Along the way, he experienced close encounters with bears, observing brutal battles among males during mating season as well as tender moments between a grizzly mom and her cubs.

Caucus: New Jersey #2400

Airdate: Saturday, July 28, 2012, 12:00pm

Nature #2601 “White Falcon, White Wolf”

Airdate: Monday, August 6, 2012, 8:00pm

Length: 60-minutes

Description: On Canada's remote Ellesmere Island, where June is spring, July is summer and August is already autumn, this episode of Nature examined the race between two remarkable species to raise their families - the white gyr falcon and the Arctic wolves. The white gry falcon is enormous, the largest and most powerful falcon in the world; yet the prior summer, the nesting falcon pair featured in this episode failed to raise any young. The rare Arctic wolves rely on every member of the pack to chase and bring down the prey that keeps them alive. The prior year was good to them, and they raised three cubs. But for the wolves and the falcons, as well for as the snowy owls, musk oxen, lemmings, Arctic foxes and hares who share this fragile ecosystem with them, fortunes are always precarious, as shown by this episode of Nature.

Lost Valley

Airdate: Thursday, August 23, 2012, 10:30pm

Length: 30-minutes

Description: On Aug. 28, 2011, Hurricane Irene dumped record amounts of rainfall on the borough of Manville. Manville has a history flooding, and Ken and Letty Burlew have rebuilt their house three times in a span of seven years living in the Lost Valley section of town. With upwards of seven feet of water on the first floor of some homes, residents had to rebuild and wait. They waited on FEMA money, news about a government buyout, and the next major storm that could put them under water again. Lost Valley was a production of the Star-Ledger, media partner of NJTV.

inhabited continent on the planet. It is a place you might expect to see kangaroos but certainly not waterbirds. Yet once every 10 years, rains flood into dried-up river beds and head inland to create the largest lake in Australia, and 100,000 pelicans -- a third of all the pelicans in Australia -- arrive for the event. Leaving their homes on coasts and harbors, they come to feed on fish washed in on the floods and on billions of brine shrimp and other crustaceans which hatch and grow to adulthood in a few days in water twice as salty as the Dead Sea. The pelicans come home to court and raise as many families as possible before the water and the food disappear once more.
