Topic: Denver became first city in decriminalization of psychedelic (magic) mushrooms

Denver became the first US city to use the decriminalization of magic mushrooms on the 8th after voters voted through the initiative with a small gap. The new law has relaxed restrictions on the use and possession of psychedelic mushrooms for adults over the age of 21. However, the new law does not stipulate that it is legal to buy, sell or possess the drug. The decree instructed the police to treat users of psychedelic mushrooms as their lowest priority. Kevin Matthews, who led the decriminalization of this psychedelic mushroom, told the Denver Post that despite the difficulties, they won. This happens when a small group of enthusiastic people unite in a single idea to create change.

Topic: Migrant Father Drowned with Daughter at Border

After the Trump administration imposed pressure on Mexico to block the border defense, the undocumented immigrants in Central America pursued the "American Dream" through the Mexican state. On Sunday, a younger father and his 23-month old were drowned in the Rio Grande River near the border when trying to sneaked into the U.S. Their bodies were found lay faces down near in the muddy riverside. Public opinion compares the photos of this news photo with the picture of the Syrian boy whos lifeless body found in the smashing beach in 2015. Democratic Party of the United States also blames Trump for his cruel policies surrounding migrant entry.
